GREGG MCBRIDE

Start saving your small change—student football tickets go on sale next Tuesday.

A well trained mind is essential to success in every branch of human endeavor.

Acknowledged ignorance is the beginning of wisdom.

BACK THE TEAM.

Back the team. Talk Nebraska. Instill that old U-U-N-I spirit into the hearts of every Cornhusker. Be present on the gridiron Saturday afternoon and show the team and coach that you are interested in their progress. Saturday you will be given the first opportunity to see the Varsity in actual scrimmage against the Freshmen team.

Nebraska needs more equipment for her football team. Every day the waiting list of hopeful pigskin artists grows, because the athletic department is unable to furnish them with equipment. These men should be given a chance. This can be accomplished in only one way, namely, by bringing a quarter with you and attending the first scrimmage. The receipts of the game will go to buy new equipment for these men who are anxious to get in action. The athletic department has bought more athletic paraphernalia this fall than ever before, and still has been unable to meet the demands because of the increased supply of available football material. They are therefore justified in making this nominal charge for Saturday's scrimmage.

SELF-SUPPORTING STUDENTS.

College students of today are getting away from the rah rah type, which were more intent on spending father's money than in acquiring proficiency in their studies. The occupations engaged in vary from the menial tasks of waiting on tables, washing dishes, etc., to the more dignified ones of clerking and assisting in the various offices of the cities.

It is gratifying to learn that the young men and women of American colleges are not ashamed to resort to honest means to keep themselves in school. The students have come to realize more and more that when they leave home for their final stage of education, that the time has come to relieve their parents of a large part of their educational expenses. The University Y. M. C. A.'s and Y. W. C. A.'s have paved the way to a large extent for this new attitude by securing work for the students through their employment agencies.

The student who is making his way through attends college for a definite purpose—to lay the foundation for a successful life. Hats off to the man or woman who shows the spirit of independence and self-support.

DO IT NOW.

Do it now. Subscribe for the "Rag" today. The Daily Nebraskan must have a daily circulation of 2,500. In a University of several thousand students it is not only a possibility but a probability that this number of subscriptions can be attained. The despicable "Rag" picker has already begun his activities in the postoffice and some means of weeding out this characteristic from the student body will be resorted to in a short time. It may be necessary to resort to authorities to clean out the pickers but this is no different as a measure than policing the football grounds, the gymnasium, etc.

THE EVERLASTING GROUCH.

There is nothing that so completely upsets a person as to walk across the campus feeling happy and cheerful toward everybody and everything, than to have a grouch throw a wet blanket over your friendly state of mind.

There are two kinds of grouches the temporary or forgiveable grouch and the perpetual or unforgiving type. Of course we are all susceptible to the first type at some time or other, because life does not always take on its rosy appearance after we have stayed up to the wee hours studying (?), or after you can not find a shaving stick in your room-mate's drawer, or after your best girl has proven herself unfaithful. But, this is not perpetual and you soon find him back on the world and bubbling with enthusiasm.

The everlasting grouch is the one we are shooting at. This type is bristling over with importance and business and never has time to speak a cheerful word as he passes by. He measures his life by the amount of work he tries to make other people think he is accomplishing. He makes everybody miserable with his whines and alibis because they can not see that he has the crown prince right to have everything as he wants it. The perpetual grouch is obnoxious to society, since he comes in contact with a great number of people.

Cheerfulness is a characteristic of college men and the student grouch should be alien to University atmosphere.

CLASS ELECTIONS.

Competition adds real dignity to class offices. The field is open to every student in their respective classes. In the past, often times there has been but one candidate for the office. It is hoped that this year that competition will be made more keen by the application of several candidates for each position. The coming University elections affords every prospective politician the opportunity of schooling himself in leadership and organization.

FRESHMAN LECTURE ANNOUNCEMENTS

Through a misunderstanding registration week some students were registered for Freshman Lecture meeting at eleven o'clock Tuesday. As there is no section meeting at that time students so registered must change either to the division meeting at nine o'clock Tuesday or to the one meeting at five o'clock Thursday. Lists showing the seats of each on the bulletin board in front of the member of the class will be posted Administration Building and in the Temple. Students are asked to find out the number of their seat before coming to class. Those who do not have classes immediately preceding the Freshman Lecture will be able to insure their being seated with less confusion if they will come early.

Attention is called to the fact that all students who received an "F" or an "A" will be required to change such grade to passing before graduation.

Stratford Clothes

Let us show you the difference

TRUE it is, that style signalizes Stratford Clothes. But style is not the whole Stratford story. Let us show you the other superiorities, specifically and concretely.

Let us, for instance, show you how the Stratford idea of inner construction in sack coats eliminates the old nuisance of linings. No linings to wear out. None to sag and twist the coat out of shape.

Let us point out the other vital betterments that distinguish Stratford Clothes. You'll understand then why we are so proud to handle these clothes, and why we can recommend them as the very utmost in clothes for active young men.

Let us tell you the whole Stratford story, and you'll know something about clothes and clothes-value.

Now is a good time to get this story—while we are showing the new Stratford styles for Fall and Winter.
