CHANCELLOR AVERY TO ADDRESS UNI SOCIETY

Chancellor Samuel Avery will address the members and prospective members of the Menorah Society at its opening meeting of the school year Sunday evening, October 3, at 8 o'clock in Faculty Hall, Temple Building. He will speak on "The Value of an Undergraduate Academic Society to the Student."

After the talk the work of the Society for the coming year will be outlined by the president, E. Y. Lipetz. A "recess" will then be called in order that prospective members may have the opportunity to become acquainted with the members of the organization. Refreshments will be served.

The Menorah Society is a national organization for the promotion of an academic interest in, and the study of, Jewish culture and ideals. It is an open collegiate society, a proper interest in college work and a serious regard for University ideals being the only requisites to membership. The first chapter of the Society was organized at Harvard University. At the present time there are about seventy-five chapters throughout the country.

At the annual convention in New York City last December, Prof. Hartley B. Alexander delivered the principal address.

AMERICAN LEGION HAS NEW ROOMS IN TEMPLE

American Legion Post of the University has secured an office room on the first floor of the Temple. Hours the room is to be open are 10 to 12 a. m. 1 to 2 p. m., and part of the noon hour, on all days except Saturday and Sunday. Last year the office was located in the Law Building. The room now used was formerly a part of the University cafeteria room. All ex-service men are urgently invited to attend the next meeting, the time of which will be announced this week.

YOUTH AND IMMORTALITY.

I am a youth and I shall never die!
My life's a flame which death can never quench.
My life's a bulwark which will e'er defy
The storm of any woeful circumstance.
My spring of life shall stay, for creeping age
Will never mark me for a speedy goal,
Nor kill belief, each youth's own heritage
Of endless life not only for the soul.
Though men pass on, and so it must ever be,
I fell my life's an immortality.

BASSES NEEDED FOR UNIVERSITY CHORUS

Registration is still open to all who may wish to join the University Chorus which is under the direction of Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond. For any student who is desirous of adding another hour to his schedule, the Chorus offers a fine opportunity, according to the director.

Basses especially are needed to fill out the Chorus for this semester. The Messiah will be repeated this year and will be given away from the University. Indications point to the putting on of another May festival this year. Mrs. Raymond reports that many of the more trained members of the Chorus were graduated last June, leaving a wide gap for this year's students to fill.

ALUMNI NOTES.

WEBWORM DISCOVERED IN NEBRASKA CORNFIELDS

Reports of Damage From Butler, Seward and Lancaster Counties.

The webworm, which has been causing damage to Colorado crops, has been reported to be injuring the Nebraska corn crop in four counties, according to Prof. M. H. Swenk, state entomologist. Its appearance was first reported in Sarpy county June 28. Immediately thereafter reports of its damage came from Butler, Seward and Lancaster counties.

The worst damage so far reported is near Ulysses in Butler county. One farmer found an entire field heavily infested with the worms. The injury seemed so bad to him that he decided to plow up the corn. Professor Swenk advised against this on the ground that the damage might not be as great as it seems. Some damage has been reported in Lancaster county, about ten miles southwest of Lincoln.

Professor Swenk does not look for extensive injury to the Nebraska corn crop. It is too far along. The attack of the webworm is a warning, however, he believes, of what may happen later in the season. This is the first time that the first brood of webworm has caused any damage in Nebraska. It is the third brood that usually works the largest injury in this state. This brood comes in September and attacks the alfalfa.

Webworms eat the corn leaves and then spin a web over the injured parts.

Reports of serious damage to cabbage by a pest known as the Harlequin cabbage bug also have been received by the state entomologist. This is a new pest in Nebraska, and from the progress which it has made this year it may do extensive injury to cabbage and other vegetables in years to come.

Between June 18 and June 30 the state entomologist received reports of injury by this bug in Dundy, Hooker, Custer and Valley counties. One man reported fears of losing his entire crop of 11,000 plants. The bug infested several areas in eastern Colorado last year and at that time crossed the line to the town of Sanborn, Dundy county, where it destroyed fifteen acres of cabbage for one grower. No other reports of its presence in this state last year were received. This year, however, it has invaded the state proper, moving rapidly in a northeasterly direction and it is now present in at least five counties.

The bug works rapidly, sucking the sap out of the plants. Once it has entered a cabbage patch little can be done to save the plants. A 10 per cent kerosene emulsion will destroy the very young bugs but nothing has yet been found that will kill the adult bugs.

The United States department of agriculture, which has been studying the pest in the southern states, where it has done extensive damage for years, advocates cultural methods of fighting the pest. Cabbage stalks and other remnants of the crop, together with all weeds and rubbish in the vicinity of the infested patch, should be burned in order to prevent the bugs going through the winter. Trap crops, such as mustard, rape and other early vegetation, have been used with some success.

The Harlequin cabbage bug has been until recent years a southern pest only. It spread, however, eastward along the Atlantic coast, doing great injury to cabbage and other garden crops, and then extended its operations north and west, entering Kansas and Colorado a few years ago. From Colorado it crossed the line into this state.

Miners' Strike Fulfilled.

BRIDGEPORT, Ohio, Sept. 27.—Fifteen thousand miners have walked out from the eastern Ohio field. The extent of the strike is not known as yet.

Theatre Reviews

"Jes' Call Me Jim"—Goldwyn.

Will Rogers does a rather artistic bit of work in this rough story of pathos and humor. There are many good laughs and a few tears combined with a really gripping story—all of which produce a really artistic picture.

"Suds"—Artcraft.

"Suds" is the tragic tale of a little London laundry-worker. "Sudie" and her horse provide both entertainment and tears. One would never recognize Mary Pickford, she has so completely erased her usual characteristics and has substituted others.

"Remodeling Her Husband"—Paramount.

Dorothy Gish and her newly-acquired husband have an awful time at the Lyric—one feels inclined to knock their heads together. It is rather well done and is typical of the Dorothy Gish pictures. The vaudeville acts are unusually good. Sargent Brothers present a unique musical entertainment, the three Falcons give a clever acrobatic skit, and the dogs in Emmett's Animals are very well trained.

"Extravagance"—Paramount.

This is a play in which money is the desire for its possession. Dorothy Dalton, as a pampered society woman, plays a stirring part. Her final realization of the many more important phases of life make "Extravagance" worth while.

"Sweet Lavender"—Realart.

Sweet as its name—the memory of "Sweet Lavender" will linger long in the minds of its hearers. It is the story of a girl in a college boarding house and features the usual Sophomore-Freshmen fights. "Sweet Lavender" is a trusting little girl and through her trustfulness wins her life's happiness.
