COLORADO TO FIGHT HARD

 lies entirely on what his experienced men can accomplish in this inter-conference game.

On Saturday Hughes played every available man at Laramie, Wyo., to determine how much knowledge and ability each one had. He gave them all a chance and the following day reached a decision as to his probable lineup against Nebraska.

A Big Game for the Aggies.
 "It is going to be a big game for us," Hughes told the Star's correspondent. "We feel the importance of an opportunity to play the University of Nebraska and it is up to us to make the very best possible showing in the inter-conference game."

Coming so early in the season, we are not in very good shape and this is due largely to the fact that we have had to crowd things. The men have had little chance to get into shape and working them hard has had a bad effect on several of the men, as you have observed. Three are out and there is little likelihood of their shaping up by next Saturday. "Nebraska will have an advantage in weight over us, as it would be foolhardy to send in the big men who are green to the core. We must play our experienced men, which means that we will have what should be termed a light team. That is where my only hopes lies. With the light men having had experience in some hard battles, we may make a much better showing and we certainly won't look as foolish as we would by playing the big men because of their size and weight."

Keep an eye open for the Rosewilde announcement on October 29.

Marked Style Changes in Men's Clothes for Fall

Style changes for Fall as correctly interpreted by Society Brand Clothes will be heartily welcomed by undergraduates who pay particular heed to their appearance.

The long vent in the coat has gone. Vents in modish suits this Fall will be noticeably shorter.

Body contours have changed. The high waist line and the pinched-in effect have gone.

Coats hang with greater fullness from the shoulder. The result is a pleasing effect of unusual ease and smartness.

These are the distinctive style features that mark this season's models in Society Brand Clothes.
