Dramatic Skits For Thursday Afternoon

The University Dramatic class will present five more skits Thursday afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock. The plays given two weeks ago by the department proved so popular that the invitation is again extended to the University public to attend these plays. This week's skits will be: "The Best Man," "The Peace Maneuver," "The Bridal Trip," "Feed the Brute" and "A Matrimonial Venture."

Theatre Reviews

The Colonial will run the famous picture "While New York Sleeps," a mighty picture, one feature of which is an entire dancing number filmed from Florenz Ziegfeld's "Midnight Frolic," and shots taken during the moments of greatest revelry in the Cafe Palais Royal. The "vamp" and all her cohorts are exhibited and all their clever tricks displayed. A skillful plot weaves throughout picture making a story of fine dramatic quality.

The Sun will run its customary program of three shows, Enid Bennett in "Fuss and Feathers," a Paramount Special, "Secret Service" and William S. Hart in "The Breed of Men."

The Lyric will present two cinema masterpieces this week. "The Idol Dancer," a D. W. Griffith feature with the reputation of being one of the most remarkable pictures in years will be shown the first part of the week and a Maurice Tourneur super-production, "The Great Redeemer," a really big picture, starring House Peters and Marjorie Daw, the last three days of the week.

If you want an evening full of laughs, you must go to the Rialto this week. Charles Ray in "An Old Fashioned Boy" is just as mirth-producing as ever. Thursday, Friday and Saturday the little comedy, "So Long Letty" which ran so long as a stage success in New York will also attract fun-lovers.

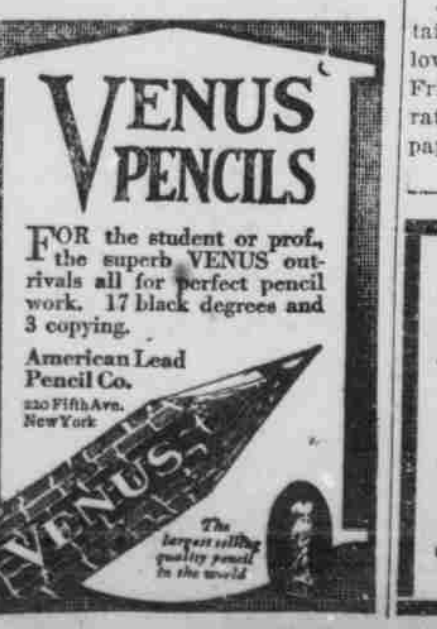

Emma Haig, who made herself famous a few years ago as a Follies dancer and Richard W. Keene, in "Playtime," are to be the headliners at the Orpheum this week. "Sah-h!" a clever new comedy with Frank Wilcox and Company and William Drack and Company in an eccentric gymnastic act are the contributing headliners. "The Primrose Four"; Wallace Galvin, an egg eggspert; Coley and Jaxon in "The Minstrel and the Maid," and Elly, the world's youngest feminine juggler, make up the rest of the bill. Topics of the Day and Kinographs will be shown.

Chemist Tells Relation of Science to Industry

Dr. H. G. Deming Speaks of His Experiences with Eastern Manufacturers.

Dr. H. G. Deming of the Chemistry department, who addressed the Nebraska section of the American Chemical Society at the University Thursday night in Chemistry hall, illustrated from his personal experiences the ways in which modern industry is calling upon science to solve some of its fundamental problems.

Dr. Deming has had a wide experience in industrial chemistry extending from investigations in the gold reduction processes in use in Juneau, Alaska, to the problems presented by eastern manufacturers to firms of research chemists in Cambridge and Chicago with which he has been connected during the last two summers. His work as research chemist with "Little, Incorporated" of Cambridge, Mass.; Mariner and Hoskins, of Chicago; Ricketts and Anks, of New York, furnished the chemists some insight into the many curious and momentous problems of modern business.

One manufacturer of "surfaced paper," or imitation leather, found his tank-heating coils corroding for some unaccountable reason. An analysis disclosed that they were the victims of an electrolysis set up in the zinc chloride solution between the copper coils and copper sheet tank lining. It was discovered that the addition of a small amount of copper chloride to the zinc chloride solution produced a highly corrosive mixture attacking the copper positive under these conditions. This discovery, and a method of prevention, saved the plant hundreds of dollars in equipment and removed the cause of many operating delays. Another manufacturer wanted to find a rival's formula for a paint brush. The bristles were found to be not hairs, but a composition, cellulose acetate, set in bakelite.

Omaha Gas Company Case.
A particularly interesting case was that of the Omaha Gas company's pipes at the time of the purchase of the gas company by the city of Omaha. The pipes were crusted with a coat of calcium carbonate and the question arose whether the coating affected the life of the piping. A test by electrolytic erosion indicated that the coating was in fact an asset and protected the piping. A depreciation of two per cent was written off on the valuation on this showing instead of a much larger one claimed by the purchaser.

Dr. Deming has taken a walking trip through Japan, in the course of which he studied the artificial methods of curing tea and the attempted stimulation of tea plants by electrical discharges. He finds the chemist in demand for five kinds of service to industrial concerns: Trade analysis, duplicating formulas, solving legal difficulties, solving sudden troubles in manufacturing processes, and in development of certain manufacturing processes and materials. Among the latter he mentioned the experiments being conducted to manufacture gaseous fuel from inferior coal.

Florence Reuwe of Fremont, a Freshman in school here last year, was in Lincoln Friday evening attending the Alpha Omicron Pi house dance. Margaret O'Brien returned to Fremont with Miss Reuwe and visited until Sunday.

Gordon Trimble, F. H. Pollock and Charles Dundy were hosts at a dinner dance for several members of the active chapter of Sigma Nu at the Omaha Athletic Club Saturday evening. Elmer Anderson, Floyd Swan, Ben Lake, G. W. Rodwell, Tudor Gardner, Maurice Bramman and Clarence Parsons were guests.
Betty Kennedy, '23, and Imogene Evans, '24, returned yesterday from Omaha, where they spent the week-end. Classes for the instruction of children in drawing and painting are being held on Saturday mornings from 9 to 11. These are in charge of Miss Helen Stines under the supervision of Miss Wittie.

Omaha University, 14; Cotner, 13.
Hastings, 20; York, 14.

Games this Week.
Nebraska Wesleyan vs. University of Wyoming at University Place.
Omaha University vs. Colorado at Denver.
Doane vs. Midland at 'reta.
York vs. Grand Island at York.
Nebraska Wesleyan vs. Cotner at Bethany.

The weekly laundry day review of the previous week's football games in the state conference, features the rise of the Wesleyan Coyotes. The Methodists soundly trounced the Peru eleven, 40 to 0, and thereby have worked their way towards the head of the list and must be considered among the real contenders for the state title.

Wesleyan's one-sided victory came as a complete surprise in state circles. The Methodists had been picked to win—but by a narrow margin. The Morningside game had evidently settled the Coyotes down to business and the Wesleyan eleven worked with the precaution of a well oiled machine displaying some of the best ball exhibited at the University Place school for a number of seasons.

State fans will have an opportunity this week to compare the brand of football displayed by Nebraska colleges with the style of game put forth by Rocky Mountain conference, with two inter-sectional games on card. Wesleyan meets the Cowboys from the University of Wyoming at University Place while the University of Omaha Maroons tackle the Colorado Aggies, leaders in the Mountain league, at Denver. The Aggies are the same eleven which gave the Cornhuskers such a hard fight earlier in the season. Wyoming has not been defeated this season and having won from the Colorado School of Mines last week, 14 to 0, are out to avenge the 14 to 0 defeat handed them by the Coyotes.

Tough Going for Maroons.
Coach Adams' Maroons from Omaha found going rather rough in the University of Omaha-Cotner game. Omaha's team work and line plunging in the first half enabled them to pile up a lead which the Bulldogs could not overcome, although Cotner surprised the large number of spectators, in the last period, when he pushed over a pair of touchdowns due to Omaha's over-confidence.

Hastings took a 20 to 14 victory from York college. The first half of the contest was scoreless, but both elevens broke loose for a liberal portion of touchdowns in the final period. The victory puts the Bronchos at the head of the second division.

Grand Island did not play last week. The Islanders were slated to meet Kearney Normal but the crippled Antelopes were forced to cancel all the remaining games. Seven Normalites have been declared ineligible and four others have been laid up for the rest of the season with injuries.

Midland won over the husky Nebraska Central team, 28 to 0. Central showed a trifle better defense in the last game than in the Omaha tilt, and thus were able to keep the Tigers from scoring as often as Omaha. This week the Midland eleven is matched for a game with Doane at Crete, while Central meets York at York.

Messrs WWolfanger and Goeke both U. of N. graduates, returned Friday from the soil survey work in Deuel and Garden counties. Mr. Wolfanger will begin at once on a report of the counties. Mr. Goeke will assist in the resurvey of Lancaster county.

Rupert Lundgren, '25, spent the week-end with friends in Council Bluffs.
Emily Ross, '24, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home in Omaha.
Katherine Searle, '24, spent the week-end in Council Bluffs.
Melba Bradshaw, '20, has returned from a week-end visit in Omaha.
Mercedes Abbott, '23, is ill at the Alpha Omicron Pi house.
