THE UNIVERSITY TENNIS COURTS.

For five or six years there has appeared an annual agitation for a few more tennis courts on the city campus. Each season a promise has come from somewhere that plans were under way and that ample court space would soon be available. And each time followers of the sport greeted such news with delight and indulged in the expectation that perhaps before their allotted four years were up, they would be able to play tennis on University courts. But each year has sent out its graduates with their rackets still unpacked and with no recollection of the tennis matches staged.

Now that the campus has been extended and the new buildings completed it would seem that the long-promised tennis courts might materialize. Especially when the ground where they are to be located needs little preparation and at least six serviceable courts could be made at once with small expense.

The two courts that exist have not been in first-class shape and yet have received extensive use. The fact that they are not in continuous use lends little weight to the argument that more would not be used. About one experience of a student getting up six and waiting "in line" for their turn to play, serves as a rather valid excuse for not playing tennis and incidentally for little interest in a tennis team.

This year a good start has been made, several meetings held, and quite a number have manifested a revived interest by their attendance at these meetings. The question now arises: "What can the student body do that its request will not be shelved for another year or more? Tennis committees might be appointed to circulate a petition. But such a method is hardly in keeping with the general scheme of our institution and ought not to be necessary.

WHAT YOU MAKE YOURSELF.

Did you admire your friend who made that brilliant impromptu speech at the banquet last night? Did you notice how easily that athlete carried off the gold medal because of his excellent physique? Did you hear that your class-mate who doesn't study half as much as you received ten per cent more than you in his final grade? Did you see what a good impression that girl made just because of her "good looks?"

And, then, did you feel sorry for yourself?

Let me give you a "hunch." The things that appear to be accomplished the most easily are often the results of the hardest work. The ordinary person can learn to make a good impromptu speech. A course in debating or public speaking will be of great assistance to you in developing this art. If he forms the habit of remembering all the good jokes he hears and telling them often, he will be considered witty. The ordinary person can develop his physique. The ordinary person can prepare his lessons in one-half the time he now spends if he will persistently practice concentration.

"But," you may ask, "how about 'looks'?" Can we develop cupid's bow lips out of straight, firmly set lips? Can we change an irregular, turned-up nose into a Grecian nose? No. But think a moment. What are the elements that are most important in making a favorable impression? They are taste in dress, pleasing facial expression, taste in combing the hair and general immaculate appearance.

The type of person you are to be is not pre-ordained. Every person is what he makes himself. If he does not overcome his natural handicaps, it is because he is mentally lazy.

If in a moment of discouragement you feel that you are not big enough to mold your own life, think of Theodore Roosevelt. A physical weakling, a consumptive,—with that iron will of his he molded his life and lived perhaps more intensely than any other American. If he had been lazy he would have died of tuberculosis, but, instead, he became noted as hunter, explorer, writer, scientist, statesman. What he has done other people can do.

THAT DELINQUENCY.

Were you notified that you were delinquent in one of your studies? If not, congratulations! If so, what are you doing about it? Will you have the delinquency removed before the mid-semester reports are sent in to Dean Engberg?

The reports are due November 13. From the eighth to the thirteenth your time and your professor's will be occupied by mid-semester examinations. Today is November 4. You ought to have your work all made up today or tomorrow if you want to have a clean record when the next reports are made.

A TIME-SAVER.

A busy student cannot afford to be without a University directory. Besides giving the addresses and telephone numbers of all the students and the addresses, titles and degrees of all the members of the faculty, the directories give valuable information about University organizations. Suppose that a student's time is worth thirty-five cents an hour, which is a low valuation. The price of a directory is fifty cents. If a directory would save him an hour and a half it would pay him to buy one. Most students know that a directory will save an hour and a half many times. If you don't know, ask someone.

Students Invited To Hear Code Commission

Prof. Hattie P. Williams, member of the Nebraska Children's Code Commission, will speak on the September report of that commission, at an open meeting of the Socio-Economics Club at 7 o'clock Thursday evening, in Social Science building, room 105. Social Science students are especially invited.

The Children's Code Commission is trying to co-ordinate into a consistent whole all laws and movements in any way affecting child welfare. Mrs. Williams will discuss the proposed changes in child welfare laws and marriage laws.

New Songs Learned At Vespers Tuesday

University co-eds were in charge of Vespers Tuesday. New songs were learned for the year from the new association leaflets. A special musical program was given consisting of a violin solo by Helen Newmeyer, and a vocal solo by Mary Duggan. Miss McKinnon lead the devotional part of the meeting.

A special announcement was made that the Y. M. C. A. invites all the girls to hear Fred Rindge, national industrial secretary at the Temple, Thursday, November 4, at 7 o'clock. Next Tuesday, November 9, Miss Lute Sterns, a well known club woman, will give a talk at Vespers on "Child Welfare."

GREEN GOBLINS ELECT HERBERT BROWNELL

At a special meeting of the Green Goblins, Freshmen men's society, held Tuesday evening, Herbert Brownell, Jr., was elected to take the place of a member who did not return this year.

First Buffalo Hunt Attractive Booklet

A very attractive booklet on sale at the College Book Store is "My First Buffalo Hunt," by T. R. Armstrong. Those desiring a real thrill will find it in this story of a buffalo hunt on Nebraska plains. The book is written in verse and is full of attractive illustrations of the author's experiences in the early eighties. It will appeal especially to Nebraska students because it is a story of early Nebraska life and experiences. It tells of the clashes with the Indians in their effort to hold their territory and hunting grounds. Then too, it contains a very interesting romance of a white man and an Indian maiden which ends in rather an unusual manner. Not only will an interesting story be found in this small book but also something of real interest in early Nebraska history. The book is on sale for twenty-five cents and will be of real benefit to Nebraska students.

Bubbles
By Ima Guokee.

Somebody asked me today if I knew the little girl with the gold tooth in Art class!

If the shimle is familiar to all of us, what is the industrial Service Movement?

Man on campus: "Isn't that dress just a trifle extreme, Dollie?"
Co-ed: "Oh no, Jack, why, I put this on merely that you may become accustomed to the one that I am having made."—Boston Transcript.

Marie Dressler IS big, but this headline from the Syracuse (New York) makes her appear IMMENSE: "Marrie Dressler Crowds Empire."

Bostonian versions of some popular songs:
"Slow and Easy."
"My Isle of Golden Dreams."
"I Gave Her That."
"Sweet Kisses."
"I Want a Daddy Who Will Rock me to Sleep."
"Deliberate and Tranquil."
"My Archipelago of Aureate Visions."
"I Bestowed that Upon Her."
"Honeyed Osculations."
"I Want a Parent Who Will Lull Me Into the Arms of Morpheus."

When first I met my Polly I fell quite "deed" in love, And for a few days after Floated on the c e. l o v o u d b a s

When my Polly's arms are 'round me, And she greets me with a kiss, Then my mind is all a-flutter, And my heart goes j l t u t i e h s a k i

But when my bank-account is low, She greets me with a frown, My batting-average seems to slip, And kind of slumps way d o w n.

Wyoming, 14—Wesleyan, 7.
The University of Wyoming from Laramie won from Wesleyan at University Place Wednesday afternoon, 14 to 7. Wyoming scored a touchdown in the first five minutes of play. A few seconds before the whistle blew at the end of the first half, Wesleyan made her first and only score. Wyoming tallied again in the fourth quarter. The Methodists failed to rally in the second half. The Wyoming warriors made approximately 290 yards from the line of scrimmage, while Wesleyan gained but fifty yards.
