THE PRESS CLUB

To foster journalism in the University a Press Club was formed last night. This club will help in making the Daily Nebraskan a greater success by increasing the sense for news values and insilling in the heart of every student the desire that the University paper be the best in the middle west.

A live Press Club should furnish a supply of energetic reporters to collect campus news. We wish you to feel that The Nebraskan is your paper—for your use. We believe that the real news of every department of the University and of every student activity—both personal and organization—should be published. We want to see this done. We ask each member of the Press Club to help.

If the news of an organization or of the activities of any of its members has not been published before, we want it published now. If news has not been published correctly, let us know and we will guard against repetition. Let's all get together and make The Nebraskan a thoroughly representative student paper.

The editor will be glad to meet the members of the Press Club who desire membership on the staff of reporters or who will turn in news. The editor is in the office from 8 to 6 o'clock daily.

COLLEGES AND THE PILGRIMS

Shall Nebraska University let the twenty-first of next December pass without any recognition by a pageant, play, tableaux, or ceremonial of any sort?

Is the University of Nebraska to permit the Pilgrim Tercentenary to go by unobserved, when for this three hundredth anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers there has been prepared, as never before, both the materials and the methods of observing the Day by striking community activities?

The opportunity of linking history with drama and pageantry lies before hundreds of American colleges and universities which can translate to the present day the historic events and episodes of 1620 that are commemorated in this herking-back to the great early adventure in Americanism.

One noteworthy pageant, having intellectual substance and rare artistic beauty, which may be adapted as a masque in American colleges is entitled: "Raleigh, Shepherd of the Ocean." It was produced in October at Raleigh, N. C., under the direction of Elizabeth R. Grimball of Community Service and may be locally adapted to other places. Players from the Folk Theatre of the University of North Carolina, together with several hundred citizens of Raleigh presented it as a community enterprise and as part of North Carolina's Pilgrim Celebration.

A spectacle of exquisite workmanship which includes a pageant of the American universities, and which like the Raleigh masque, is especially adapted to college communities, is "The King's Progress" by Constance Smedley Armfield. This play deals with an incident in the life of the boy king, Edward VI of Enguand, (1548-1553) and with the repeal of the laws which enabled strolling players to spread the new learning.

It gives a vivid picture of the genesis of freedom in England and the establishment of universal education, and ends with a prediction that the light will spread to the "New Worlds beyond the Seas" in the Mayflower that is building at Southampton. The play is noteworthy for its pure Tudor English and its picturization of historical data.

"The Pilgrims," a pageant published in the April number of the Woman's Home Companion was written by Constance D'Arcy Mackay especially for the Tercentenary Celebration. This pageant deals with the early settlement of the Pilgrims at Plymouth, where one of the Pilgrims, half dreaming over his book, sees a vision of America in the future years. Through this vision all the great men and women of America appear, thus making the pageant relate definitely to the whole country. The pageant contains dialogue, pantomime, tableaux and processional effects as well as symbolic dances and folk dances. Clearly there lies before the American colleges and universities an opportunity and a duty. The Pilgrims were the early seekers after freedom and light, and the right to think and learn according to their desires and talents. The American college today perpetuates the vision and high ideals of the Pilgrim Fathers. It is therefore fitting that upon Nebraska University roll the commemorative exercises of this Tercentenary should find special footing.

Heard on the Campus. First student—"Did you hear about the score? Twenty to twenty." Second student—"In favor of whom?"

First student—"Going to the library tonight?" Second student—"No, I have to study."

Tell me pretty maiden, With eyes of deepest brown, If I kissed you on the forehead, Would you call me down? —Gargoyle.

He—"You didn't seem thrilled about the musical comedies?" Second one—"No, I take them as a matter of chorus."—Ex.

As he was going out one night, His mother questioned whither, And he not wishing to deceive, With blushes answered, "With her." —Ex.

Innocent Freshman—"Why do the girls always smile at me?" Cruel upperclassman—"Perhaps they are too polite to laugh out loud." —Ex.

There's a Reason. (A short story with an anti-climax.) The telephone rang. The Freshman naged him. Reluctantly he condescended to answer. A coaxing feminine voice came vibrating through the wires in nervous little trembles. "Is this Charley?" "Yes!" "Won't you come over tonight?" "No!" "I'll drive over in the car and get you."

"No!" "I've a cozy fire burning in the library." "Can't help it." "I'll let you smoke father's cigars." "Not smoking tonight."

"I won't bother you a bit if you don't want to be bothered. I'm just lonesome." "Too bad."

"I think you're horrid." "Yes?" "Please come. The folks are out. I'm here all by myself."

"Can't help it, SISTER. Have to study." (Anti-climax) Thereupon he rudely hung up the receiver and dashed back to his books.—Ex.

A "Thundering Thousand" has caught the attention of students at the University of Oregon. All students want to join but it seems that most of them expend their voices in exhorting their companions to howl. Possibly, like the Thunder Thousand of Kansas University fame, they will come to a ludicrous end when they try a trip away from their home campus.

FINE GRADE OF FOOTBALL SHOWN IN HIGH SCHOOLS

Gridiron Sport Proves Popular and Attracts Large Crowds to Games.

When the curtain rings down on Nebraska high school football Thanksgiving day one of the best seasons of high school football in the history of the gridiron sport will have ended. This year more high schools have put forth teams than in past seasons. These teams have been followed by an increase of interest on the part of sport fans and every game has brought forth a large crowd.

Cambridge high and Omaha Commerce still hold the position of title contenders and seem to rule favorite in the race for the state pennant. Both teams have been pulling through the season with a clean slate winning games by good margins.

Cambridge won the right to represent the west in her victory over Bayard high in a gruelling battle on Bayard field. Last week the Cambridge team walloped York, 40-0, using mostly straight plays. Commerce scouts saw the battle and returned with an eye full of Cambridge football satisfied that should the bookkeepers and westerners meet in a match it will be battle royal from start to finish.

Ansley high from Custer county also comes in for a share of recognition. Ansley holds scalps from Broken Bow, Ord, Loup City, Ravenna, Seward Academy and Red Cloud. The Ansley team has scored 340 points to twenty-seven registered by opponents. Under the leadership of Coach Jones and Erwin, the Ansley machine has been hitting on all cylinders.

Tecumseh, holder of the southeastern Nebraska laurels, also is entitled to recognition. The Johnson county boys have not been defeated this season winning from Falls City in the title battle for that section. Tecumseh will pass through the final mill this week when she meets University Place on the Tecumseh gridiron. The snappy Methodists may split the Tecumseh beans if they continue to hit the clip they have been travelling during the past week.

Lincoln will have her chance to enter the arena this week when she meets eBeatrice. The Red and Black have been taking them on and winning by large scores in the games of late and may cause the eleven from Gage county considerable worry in the game this week on Nebraska field. The Links walloped the State Aggies 55 to 0, last week in a contest at the University Farm. Beatrice trounced the Lawrence, Kas., delegation in an armistice day battle.

Up in the northwestern section of the state the schools have a title contest all of their own. Wakefield and West Point are booked to collide Tuesday. Both teams have been wiping the platter clean and the contest should be an interesting one.

Friend high also has a good eleven of gridiron fighters. Coach Conrad of Friend claims the championship of central Nebraska. Last week the Friend team walloped Geneva. The preceding week Geneva was pushed down to a 81 to 0 defeat. This week Friend is slated for a game at McCook.

Some large scores were registered on the high school scorebook last week. Columbus trampled the Fremont eleven underfoot, 114 to 0. Chadron turned back the Crawford city team, 111 to 0. Wakefield walloped Stanton, 61 to 0. University Place sent Seward down to defeat, 96 to 0. Broken Bow smothered Ord 81 to 0.

Prominent games this week include the Beatrice-Lincoln clash, West Point-Wakefield at Wakefield and Grand Island at York.
