

FRENCH CLUB HOLDS MARDI GRAS PARTY

La Soiree Francaise, a conversation club which originated at the University four or five years ago, held a Mardi Gras party Friday evening in the recreation room of the Temple. About thirty advanced students in French were present. A French comedy, "Etrennes", was given with Amelia Chard and Mark Johnson in the leading parts. Valentines and French music furnished entertainment during the remainder of the evening. All conversation was in the French language. Another Soiree Francaise meeting will be held in March.

DOCTOR ANDERSON IN CHARGE OF SEMINAR

Dr. Anderson now has charge of the seminar in organic chemistry. Dr. Anderson is considered an authority on organic chemistry. He has published many books on the subject and has done considerable research.

Dr. Brown is now giving a course in advanced inorganic chemistry. As this course is being offered for the first time, most of the faculty members of the department and the graduate students are attending it. At the department seminar which meets every Saturday old and new theories are discussed in detail. Research work by members of the department is also reported on.

NOMON CALCULATES FAR BETTER THAN SLIDE RULE

The Mathematics Club announces another program for Thursday evening. Professor Horace J. Deming will give an illustrated lecture on Graphical Calculations, and will demonstrate his well known invention, the Momon.

This popular lecture will be of special interest to chemists and engineers who know the "slide-rule" method of calculation. The Momon, it is claimed, is as far ahead of the slide rule as the ladder is ahead of counting on the fingers.

In order to accommodate the large number attending the meetings of the club, this lecture will be given room 206 in Mechanical Engineering Hall.

The Oklahoma team is rated as one of the strongest mat aggregations in southwestern intercollegiate circles. Not in four years, during which the Ags have competed with such schools as Oklahoma University, Texas University, Arkansas University and Nebraska University, has Oklahoma A. & M. tasted defeat in a dual mat meet.

Co-Eds Also Invited.

Nebraska co-eds, with perfect propriety may attend Cornhusker wrestling meets. The women students at all the large eastern institutions take an interest in intercollegiate wrestling meets that is fully as keen as that of men, and the effort to fan the "Cornhusker spirit" into a flame, in connection with the mat sport, would be doomed to failure unless the co-eds realize that their presence is necessary if wrestling is to "go big" at Nebraska U.

Patrons and patronesses, accepting invitations to attend the Nebraska-Oklahoma meet, include Chancellor and Mrs. Avery, Dean Buck and wife, Dean Engberg and wife, Walter S. Whitten and wife and Miss Heppner, dean of women at the University.
