ARMY OFFERS STUDENTS SUMMER TRAINING CAMP

Student's Expenses Are Paid.

Each student who attends a camp will have the expenses of his trip, to and from the place of training paid by the government. In addition he will be furnished a uniform, a cot, blankets, sheets, pillow cases and a mattress, and his sustenance and shelter while in camp.

Chancellor Avery, in a talk before members of the R. O. T. C., pointed out that by attending the summer camp at Fort Snelling a student would receive from the government about $600 in clothing and pay. "This $600, if placed at interest, would amount to about $1,000 by the time your oldest son is ready to go to college," Chancellor Avery said.

The war department has endeavored to make the program of these camps as broad and comprehensive as possible so that the men will receive the greatest development from the experience. Taken altogether the proposition presents an opportunity that merits the serious consideration of every man who can possibly arrange to attend this camp.

Marcus Potcet, who spent a period in the training camp at Snelling before receiving his commission in the army, mentioned the benefits to be derived from a vacation in one of the cadet camps, at the military convocation last Thursday. "For a summer vacation you can find no better place. It will profit you physically, morally and financially and in every way increase your well being."
