A CONFLICT OF VIEWS.

It seems that the views of professors at Northwestern and those at Nebraska are directly in conflict along certain lines. The statement made recently by Mary Ross Potter, dean of women at Northwestern University, to the effect that the fashion extremes adopted by the modern girl should not be judged too harshly, seems directly in contrast to the statement made by Dr. Lyman, dean of the College of Pharmacy at the University of Nebraska, in a recent session at the Y. M. C. A., that all dancing is sensual.

Dean Potter continued to say: "There is nothing wrong with the girl of today because she uses a lip stick and a dab of powder." The curious part of these statements is that they were made at a meeting of ministers' wives. She added: "Of course, the dress of the girl of today—skirt to the knees almost, flimsy stockings, flimsy everything—is not the dress of mother's generation. Nevertheless, she is sweet and good and kind at heart. She has an independence that did not belong to her mother's day; but such is the spirit of the times. It is a result of the war."

These sweeping statements of Dean Potter do not even jibe with the modified views of Professor Barker, who believes that modern dancing is "not so bad"; but that it is the dress of the girls who are dancing that is to be condemned. If Dean Potter approves of all the things she says she does—we certainly imply that she is in favor of the toddle, shuffle, shimmy and Hunny Bug. These same dances would make Dr. Lyman blush, and we might venture to say that Dr. Barker would color just a little.

Can we believe that the views at Northwestern differ so widely from those at Nebraska? Is the sentiment of Dean Potter the "weight of authority" at the Evanston college and do the views of Dr. Lyman and Dr. Barker coincide with most of the views at Nebraska—among faculty and among students?

THE LURE OF THE CINDER PATH.

With the coming of the Inter-Greek track meet and the prospects of several important meets with other colleges, the lure of the cinder path is so attractive that new figures are seen each day in the field. The draft to the diamond sport has taken several of the most promising track men from the ranks. For this reason, Coach Schulte has issued the clarion call for men—just ordinary normal men—who have the endurance to "stay with the ship." It has often been said that any healthy, normal individual who has not been infected by the drone of laziness can develop into a good track artist.

The proof of this rule is realized every day—not only at Nebraska—but at other colleges and universities throughout the country. TRAINING is the thing.

Nebraska has had the largest number of track men on the field this year that she has ever boasted. However, more men are needed NOW, if the Cornhusker school is to rank as one of the great track institutions of the country. According to Coach Schulte, there are more than two hundred good track men going to seed right now on the campus.

If you are one of those who are becoming "seedy," saunter over to the Armory and don a suit. Then you must stop SAUNDERING. Show some PEP for Nebraska and help put her in the position in the world of track that California held last year in the world of football.

GET OUT FOR TRACK THIS AFTERNOON!

If the late Professor Beckwith of Syracuse University had been chosen as a professor in our College of Business Administration there would probably be a reduction by two of the number of the professors in that department by this time, provided the western air had affected him in the same manner as the air of central New York.

Especial attention is called to the parody on "The Japanese Sandman," called "The Cornhusker Sandman," which appeared in the issue for Thursday, April 7. This song, with its appropriate words, might be preserved for splendid use next fall during the grid season.

Those medical students in Omaha who were awarded membership in Alpha Omega Alpha, honorary medical scholarship fraternity, which corresponds to Phi Beta Kappa honors, have truly received a distinct honor. The number of very difficult and specialized courses which they are required to take makes this honor more valuable probably than any other similar honorary scholarship fraternity.

SUCCESS OF THE BOYCOTT.

The success of Nebraska University's boycott on the high—we may say exorbitant—prices of amusements which prevailed at the beginning of the present school year, has been proved by the announcement that the Lincoln hotel has complied with the terms of the students and will reduce the rent of its ballroom to $25 for an evening.

It is encouraging to feel that the students have had enough backbone to "stick together"—we stand united—during an entire school year of boycott. It is refreshing to realize that Nebraska students have really been serious enough to know that the prices were too high and that some definite and united action would be necessary to check them.

THOSE WHO STUDY DURING VACATION.

After reading an editorial which appeared in the Daily Nebraskan the first part of the week, a certain student remarked that he emphatically differed with us on the point that students should not study during any vacation in general—and spring vacation in particular. He said that there is certain work that must be done during vacations for those students who are taking much laboratory work. He explained that he, for one, had left many things to do during spring vacation.

"And were you playing around while you were saving up those things to do during recess?" we asked. He didn't deny that he was.

If you apply yourself from day to day you need not worry about the work you will have to do during spring vacation. "The sooner University students realize that they must do their work from day to day, the quicker their scholarship will show an even increase," said a student yesterday.

Don't forget that the Single Tax proposition is to be voted upon very soon now. Start thinking about it and above all VOTE for it when you are given the opportunity. The vote must represent a two-thirds majority of all the students, if it is to have much weight, we are told.

FOUR YEARS AGO YESTERDAY.

Do you remember four years ago yesterday, April 7, 1917. It was then that the United States officially and formally declared that a state of war existed between her and Germany. It was then that the masses of men, ammunition and supplies began to surge across the Atlantic for our allies "over there."

Now after a return to "peace times" again, what do we find? The Red Cross, which accomplished its work so nobly during the war, is still "carrying on." The Salvation

Army is stronger than it has been for years.

The government of our country is sending to school under the vocational training banner some of those ex-service men who were disabled in France. This same government of ours is paying these students $100 a month for maintenance while they obtain the education in our schools and colleges which will prepare them for later life.

Had it not been for the recent great struggle, war risk insurance would be an unknown benefit. Protection for those who are dependent on ex-soldiers is offered at a minimum rate through this medium.

Perhaps the war was not such a bad thing after all!

Today we blossom out again with a six-page paper. Perhaps it has taken almost a week for the spring epidemic of laziness to get out of our systems, but now we are ready to dig again. Six pages mean more work, but more work means fewer non-essential pastimes, so what's the difference?

EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

WORDS.

(From the Bulletin.)

Words are like flowers. They have their roots—their stems, their color and their odor. Some are poisonous and vile-smelling and should be eradicated from the garden of our vocabulary by the salt of discretion. Others are sweet and loved by the poets and form the flowers of speech. Others are like simple daisies nodding to children and pleading to be plucked by innocent hands. And still others are the grain which philosophers grind into flour, making food for thought for future generations.

Words are with us, whithersoever we go. Beware the languorous, intoxicating, tropical orchids which deck "the viney path that leads to the great bonfire," but choose rather those flowers of virtue which grow along "the straight and narrow path."

Society

Spring is here. No matter whether it is a little chilly, the signs of spring are undisputable. It is the open season for spring parties. And spring parties mean a profusion of flowers, dainty organdie and taffeta dresses and a feeling of gaiety that is not equalled in any other parties of the year. The spring season promises to be the best of the year, particularly after the boycott and the ban on formal put a damper on big winter parties. More affairs are scheduled for Friday and Saturday than were held any other week-end this year. Every place in Lincoln there will be a University party. Even the pavilion at Antelope park has become a popular place to hold spring dances, although it is several miles from the University center. House dances and banquets are also popular. This will be a strenuous week-end. The spring season is started.

Alpha Omicron Pi.

The active and alumni members of Alpha Omicron Pi will entertain at a tea Friday afternoon between the hours of 4 and 6 at the chapter house in honor of their grand president, Mrs. M. L. McCausland of Providence, R. I., and Mrs. Lyman B. Darling of Pantucket, R. I., who will arrive Thursday, to be the guests of the local chapter. The guests at the tea will include the patronesses of the sorority and representatives and chaperons of the other sororities. Friday noon, Miss Viola Grey will entertain the aluminae members and visitors at a luncheon at the Brown Betty tea room. Saturday the sorority will entertain at a luncheon at the Lincoln Hotel.

Throw 'em Out.

An unwelcome guest
Is a terrible pest
Any hour of the day or night:
But the man I could maul
Is the man who would call
When I've got a term paper to write.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY HAS BEEN SELECTED

"The Invader" Name of Production to Be Given By Members of Third Year Class.

"The Invader," a four-act play, has been selected as the junior class play by the junior play committee, Mildred Gollehon, Leonard Cowley and Pauline Starrett. All juniors are eligible to try out for parts in the play. Tryouts will be held from 7 to 10:30 p. m., Saturday, April 9. Those wishing to try out are asked to register their names at the Student Activities office today.

"The Invader" is a play of New York social life. It is the story of a man who makes good in the west in the mining game and goes east to continue his fight for success. He encounters difficulty in obtaining entrance into the social set. He determines to force his way into the most exclusive circles and becomes known as "the invader." His marriage to the daughter of a wealthy social leader is the first step. Arising from his abrupt arrival in the "four hundred" are a number of interesting situations. The play is full of modern business energy, human interest, puppy love and the love of a big man for a fine woman. For every bit of sadness there are two hearty laughs.

The date for the play will be announced soon.

FRATERNITIES INDORSE THE SUMMER MILITARY CAMP

Long List of Organizations Give O. K. to Plan of War Department.

An indorsement for the summer military camp of the R. O. T. C. by the national inter-fraternity council of forty-six men's colleges has been received by the military department from the office of the adjutant general at Washington.

The resolutions urging the different fraternities to ask their members to attend if possible and naming its benefits to young men were passed at the meeting of the council held last December. The recommendations were as follows:

"Whereas, the Reserve Officers Training Corps is a provision of the law of the United States for the training and development of the young men in colleges as officers for the Reserve Corps, and

"Whereas the Reserve Officers Training Corps is a very important element in the preparedness of our country for self-defense,

"Be it resolved that the Inter-fraternity Council publicly indorses the R. O. T. C. and recommends that all fraternities associated with this conference urge their members to support the Reserve Officers Training Corps in their institutions and individually to be active members thereof."

DELIAN SOCIETY WILL GIVE PROGRAM FRIDAY

The Delian Literary Society will give a program Friday evening at 8 o'clock in Faculty Hall, Temple. All University students are invited to come and get acquainted.

Some of the special features of the program are as follows:

Vocal Solo—Mildred Robbins.
Debate—Resolved: That seniors in the University of Nebraska should not be tied up on "Senior Sneak Day."

Affirmative—Glenn Weakly, Florence Williams.

Negative—Arthur Allison, Lottie Shafer.

Delian "Stringed Trio"—Mrs. D. Inglis, Milo G. Sherman, Mary Ellen Inglis.

"Electricity—What Does It Mean"—Odessa Keyes.

Cornet Duet—Wayne Gray, C. C. Tempe.

At the business meeting of the Delian Society Monday evening, April 4, the date was set for their Crete picnic for April 22 to 24. Various committees were appointed to arrange for accommodations and entertainments.

GIRLS ALSO LIKE TO COOK AND SEW

The publication of an article to the effect that Nebraska girls are more interested in pig and calf clubs than in cooking and sewing clubs has brought a number of protests to the college of agriculture. Several members of last year's clubs have shown their indignation at the suggestion that the younger generation of girls are losing interest in home work. They say that girls are now taking grater pride than ever in cooking, sewing and other arts of homemaking. Some of the letters admit that a few years ago a considerable number of their sex imagined they would lose their social standing if they devoted too much time to the kitchen. Times have changed, however, and now girls realize that it is a fine accomplishment to be able to cook, sew and keep house efficiently.

According to figures of the college of agriculture extension service, nearly 1,000 girls were members of cooking and baking clubs last year and about the same number studied sewing in clubs. About 600 completed the year's course in cooking and nearly 400 in sewing. The recipes sent to the cooking and baking clubs were used 55,635 times, which included the baking of 13,000 loaves of bread.

FRAT BOWLERS RUN THROUGH SECOND ROUND

(Continued from page one) receive a trophy that will be retained by the team winning the tournament three successive years. A skin will also be presented to the winner.
