The Kearney Chamber of Commerce recently announced that gold medals would be awarded to boy scouts of the first class who gave one hundred hours of their time to community service, while bronze medals would be awarded to second class scouts with fifty hours of work to their credit. Following this announcement, the club the past week awarded two bronze medals to scouts having performed fifty hours of work in community betterment.

SCHULTE ISSUES CALL FOR MORE TRACW MEN

Coach Schulte is now ready to handle two-hundred and fifty track men and the same number in cross-country. He wants the men to come out now and be in shape for the spring word-outs. There are a good number out now but he wants at least twice as many to report every day or at least four times a week. The Coach says not to be discouraged because you cannot run but to come and he will show you how to run. Many track stars started out as "dubs." Come out and run men if for not other reason than keeping yourself in a good physical condition, you won't miss an hour a day between three and six p. m.

Noon day luncheons of the Hastings Chamber of Commerce were resumed on Monday of this week, Gilbert A. Currie of New York addressing the members on "America's Position in Furnishing Chemical Products to the World", the object of his visit being to create public sentiment to influence congress to pass sufficient tariff tolls to prevent the German manufacturers from selling their product in this country.

After a discontinuance of noon luncheons during the summer months, the Fremont Commercial Club again resumed these luncheons on Monday of this week, Rome Miller of Omaha, being the speaker. The social committee has arranged for two series of luncheons, the first to extend over the period dating from September 19 to December 19 and the second series from January 2 to March 27. Beside the regular luncheons, the dates for the six regular annual banquets were fixed as follows: Retail Section banquet, October 24; semi-annual banquet, November 23; Retail Section banquet, January 23; Social Section annual banquet, April 10; Retail Section banquet, April 24; Commercial club annual banquet, May 8. The Commercial Club committee that has had in charge the securing of a live stock pavilion, opened bids for the construction of this building and awarded the contract to Joseph D. Phillippi at a figure of $7,961.38, other bids running as high as $9,785. The Sales Pavilion Company is capitalized at $15,000 and John Monnich is president, and K. A. Whitmer is secretary-treasurer.

At the last regular meeting of the Nebraska City Chamber of Commerce, road matters were discussed and also the necessity of changing the tourists' camping ground to another location; this latter question was left in charge of the entertainment committee for action.

A program in observance of the one hundred and thirty-fourth anniversary of the signing of the Constitution of the United States was held at Columbus on Thursday of this week under the auspices of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce. The program consisted of songs by the audience, vocal selections, and addresses by Dr. C. D. Evans, Sr., on "Declaration of Independence"; Mr. P. E. McKillip on "The Americanism of Platte County" and Hon. Robert G. Simmons of Scottsbluff, department founder of the American Legion on "The Constitution of the United States". Following this program, there was a concert by the Columbus city band.

The newly organized Peru Chamber of Commerce has elected the following officers for the coming year: Carl Hansen, president; S. J. Ellenberger, vice-president; W. W. Barnes, secretary; Carroll Lewis, treasurer. The club now has a membership of fifty, and regular meetings are held on the third Monday of each month.
