HUSKERS ALMOST READY FOR PITT

Coach Dawson's Men Will Have Another Workout in Chicago Friday.

LINEUP MAY BE CHANGED

Stonewall Defense and Smashing Offense Sought For Saturday Grid Battle.

The Cornhusker squad with Coach Dawson and Director Leubling in charge will leave this afternoon for the Burlington for Pittsburgh where the Huskers will mix with the Pitt Panthers in one of the most important inter-sectional contests on Saturday's calendar. Coach Dawson will post the list of men who are to make the trip this morning in the armory.

The varsity battled the Freshman crew last evening until darkness hid the proceedings. The Huskers are hitting their mid-season stride and are in the best condition of the year to hit the Pittsburgh athletes. Arriving in Chicago Thursday morning, the Huskers will take a light workout on Stagg field and will then journey to Pittsburgh, arriving in the "Smoky City" sometime Friday morning.

In meeting Pittsburgh, Nebraska has been fortunate enough in getting a chance to play one of the greatest teams in the east. The Pittsburgh tribe has made big preparations for the Nebraska contest and the report in Lincoln is that in the neighborhood of 30,000 tickets have already been sold. The scene of action will be Forbes field, the home of the Pittsburgh National league baseball team. Headquarters for the Nebraska crew will be at the William Penn hotel.

Preparations for a big send-off by the student body for the team have been made and a big crowd is expected to turn out at the depot this afternoon. Many of the organizations about school have already started plans for the Saturday following this one in preparation for Homecoming and the Kansas game. The Jayhawkers have had a successful season thus far and have lost only one Missouri Valley contest.

Coach Dawson has been shifting the men about somewhat this week in an effort to find a combination that will be able to put up a stonewall defense and smash the Panther offense. Captain Swanson and Scherer are almost sure to start at the wing positions with Pucelik and Lyman filling in at the tackle holes. Weller and Bequist will probably be the choice of guards with Peterson, Hense, and Wenke being available at the pivot position. Wenke is being given a chance at center and on account of his weight and experience will probably be given a chance against the Pitt aggregation. Pitt boasts of having one of the greatest centers in the United States.

Second Year Olympic Contestants Make Good Showing At Armory.

Sophomore tryouts for Olympians were held Tuesday afternoon at the armory. A fine representative group of sophomore athletes tried on.

Definite announcement of the events which will be allowed in the Olympic has not yet been made by the Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Until this is made no definite plans can be followed by either of the two combating classes.

The second year men have entered the work of preparing for the contests with vigor and some people are inclined to be skeptical of the chances which the freshmen have to win the Olympic.

The Olympics will be held Homecoming day, November 12.

CO-ED CORNHUSKER LUNCHEON SATURDAY

The tickets for the annual girls Cornhusker luncheon Homecoming day, are going fast. Only 550 plates will be reserved, so it is up to the girls to get their tickets at once. Members of the W. S. G. A. council as well as the student activities office have tickets for sale.

This year's luncheon promises to be the best ever held. A special section will be reserved for the girls at the hotel in a parade and snake dance to the field.

The toast list for the day will probably be withheld until the day as a pleasant surprise. The university girls orchestra will furnish the music.

GOOD OLD DAYS OF '49 TO BE REVIVED

Military Carnival at Armory Next Saturday to be Big Event for Nebraska.

The good old wild west days of '49 will be revived at the armory this coming Saturday when the university will be treated to its first annual all-university military carnival. The carnival will be a continuation of a tradition which will be equalled only by the roulette wheel and the three-card monte. It is expected that the bar will also do a rushing business during the evening. There will be prompt service at the bar by many beautiful barmaids whose very presence will be enough to make the carnival goers thirsty.

The committees for the carnival held their final meeting last evening and the perfected plans for the entire event were given their final revision. Several boxes of paper hats have been ordered and enormous quantities of confetti have been laid in to add to the merriment of the occasion. The head bartender, known outside of business hours as Joe Nole, the pharmacist, reports that he has secured a large assortment of miscellaneous beverages and a real bar to dispense the over. Nothing will be lacking to make the affair resemble the good old days except the honkey-tonk that used to come on the morning after.

The ticket sale has gone forward with an unexpected speed and it looks as if the entire male population (Continued on Page Four)

Discussion of Disarmament Problems

Article No. 2.

The Pressure of Population and the Danger of War.

By Dean J. E. Le Rossignol.

Among the most striking phenomena of recent times is the enormous growth in the population of the "Western World" that has taken place during the past 150 years, attributable in part to the opening of new lands, in part to the productivity of modern machinery, in part to comparative freedom from war and famine, in part to the reduction in the death rate brought about by medical science.

According to Mulhall and other statisticians, the population of the Roman empire at the time of Augustus was about 54,000,000, and the population of Europe in the year 1778 was 150,000,000. One hundred years later (1878) the population of Europe had increased to 300,000,000, and at the opening of the world war in 1914, it was about 450,000,000. The population of the United Kingdom in 1780 was about 12,600,000; in 1914 it was 46,000,000, and other European countries have had an equal or greater growth in population. In the same time the population of North and South America has increased from a few millions to more than 160,000,000. Some Asiatic countries, also, as India and Japan have increased considerably in numbers, although they have been densely populated for many centuries.

In recent times the population of the leading countries, excepting France, has continued to increase at a very rapid rate. From 1870 to about 1914, the population of the United Kingdom increased from 32,000,000 to 45,000,000; that of France from 37,000,000 to 39,600,000; Italy, 27,000,000 to 35,000,000; the German empire from 39,000,000 to 68,000,000; the Russian empire, from 75,000,000 to 150,000,000; the United States from 38,500,000 to about 95,000,000; Japan from 33,000,000 to 54,000,000.

The growth of population is very closely connected with material wealth, military power, foreign commerce, emigration, and the disposition of growing peoples to encroach upon their less populous and powerful neighbors. Prominent among the causes of the late war was the enormous growth in population of Germany and Russia. Their interests clashed in the Balkans, where the great war began. England, on the other hand, with her great empire and vast foreign commerce, was on the defensive; while the United States, less densely inhabited and with vast undeveloped resources, was at first relatively indifferent to the great issues involved.

Now that European affairs have been more or less unsatisfactorily settled, people are beginning to notice that the United States and Japan, who have suffered comparatively little by the war, remain as the rival powers of the Pacific, looking at each other across the ocean with a measure of suspicion and fear; while Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Dutch Colonies and the Pacific States of South America are looking on with intense interest, not unmixed with trepidation.

The numbers by lists, two symphonies, "Orpheus" and "Les Preludes" will make up the program. Those who will take part are: Ed. J. Walt, first violin; Ernst Lange, second violin; Wm. T. Quick, viola; Lillian Eiche, cello; Edith Eulenburg Rose, piano; and Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond, organ.

The musical programs which will be given from time to time throughout the year, are under the direction of Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond.

BABY INTERNATIONAL WILL AWARD PRIZES

Eighty Champion Animals To Be Exhibited at Agricultural College Saturday.

The Baby International, which will be held Saturday evening, November 5, at the college of agriculture under the auspices of the Brock and Brillo club, is progressing nicely according to reports from the committees in charge.

Eighty prize-winning animals owned by the University will be on exhibition at this show. In all, there will be two classes each of swine, sheep and horses, and five of cattle. Friday and Saturday will find the young herdsman busy cleaning and preparing their animals for the grand dress parade. The parade will undoubtedly be featured by many animals showing in the height of showing perfection as there are some young experts at work who are very efficient in this art.

The official judge will place the awards, not upon the merits of the animals as is the case in showing competition, but upon the student who has exhibited the most ability and skill in the preparation and presentation of his animal.

O. Martin Kueger, chairman of the entertainment committee, has arranged for several novel features. An orchestra has been engaged to render music early in the evening and music at intervals during the showing of the livestock. A male quartet and other musical numbers will furnish additional entertainment.

CHILDREN'S THEATER TO OPEN SATURDAY

Dramatic Department Will Start Series Of Plays For Youngsters This Week.

The dramatics department will open a children's theater on November 5, at 2:15 in the Temple theater. The purpose of this theater is to cultivate the desire for the spoken drama among grownups as well as children. The first play to be produced is the fairy tale "Snow White and the Dwarfs."

The Children's theater consists of the students taking work in dramatics in the University of Nebraska. The players have a great desire to entertain children and bring to them the best classics in literature in dramatic form. They are planning on bringing to their patrons this year such stories as Cinderella, Pollyanna, Jack and the Bean-Stub, Three Pills in a Bottle, and many others of especial interest.

There are very few other theaters of this kind in the country. The Children's theater players of the University expect to develop a children's department of educational recreation to keep Lincoln abreast of the work being done elsewhere for the little people of the country.

The play "Snow White and the Dwarfs" will be given at the Temple theater Nov. 5 at 2:15.

AMES PREPARING FOR CROSS-COUNTRY MEET

Iowa Aggies Working Hard to Carry Off the Championship Here on November 12.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 31.—Special.—Coach Art Smith is grooming his varsity squad of cross-country men separate from the main group of runners for the Missouri Valley championship run at Lincoln, November 12. Assistant Coach S. S. Graham, who was captain of the cross-country team which took western conference honors last year, has been placed in charge of the remainder of Smith's men for the fall.

With an idea of what the team could secure by the dual meet with Kansas university, October 22, Captain Frevert and his men are expected to show the valley a good race at Lincoln. Rathburn lived up to the hope by coming in ahead of Patterson of Kansas, beating him by nearly half a lap of the track. Massey of Kansas and James, the Jayhawk captain did not do as well as they are expected to do at Lincoln, while Captain Frevert is showing up better in the practice runs this week.

One change has been made in the team since the dual meet. Cannon being replaced by Brown, who was a miler on the track team last spring. Bert Webb, crack half miler, and Bierbaum have both been running strong in practice, while Hollowell is expected to improve later in the season, according to Coach Smith.

Although the Cyclone runners have held the valley record for three consecutive years, they are being as sure that there will be some strong men in the distance run this year. Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Kansas Aggies, and Oklahoma are said to all have some outstanding men, while Grinnell and Drake, although they have not sent out much information, have the material in school, it is known here.

The Cyclones also have entered in the Western conference run at the University of Indiana, at Bloomington. This will be an even stronger race,

FRESHMAN ENGINEER CONVOCATION HELD

Prof. M. I. Evinger Speaks On "Municipal Engineering" Monday.

Prof. M. I. Evinger, of the civil engineering department spoke before the regular freshman engineering lecture class Monday evening on "Municipal Engineering."

He differentiated between different kinds of engineering and briefly discussed some of these branches. Hydraulic engineering generally consists of the study of irrigation engineering and the control of waterways to prevent future floods and utilize the wastewater. A closer to home project is the irrigation work under consideration for the Platte valley in western Nebraska.

Professor Evinger read and discussed a paper entitled "Municipal Engineering," given before the American Society of Engineers by Mr. Webster, president of the society.

The paper dealt with all the problems to be met by a municipal engineer in the designing of a modern city. The problems are many and in a large size city are quite complex. Some of the most notable features are: Street design, sewage and drainage systems, transportation, street crossings, and recreation parks, playgrounds, water supplies, collection of garbage, and in some cases design of bridges and port facilities.

One of the most important features is the water supply for a large city. Practically all of the water is, or should be purified by some process, probably filtration. The process of filtration for purification of water to be used for drinking purposes has long been used in Europe and is used in most of the cities and larger towns in this country now, except in places, as in the mountains, where the water supply has small chance for contamination.

RALLY AND PARADE AS SEND-OFF TODAY

Students Meet This Afternoon at Armory and March to Burlington Depot.

SLOGAN IS "BEAT PITT"

Band to Begin Playing at 3:45—Nebraska Urged to Show the True Spirit.

With a rally at the Burlington depot today, a parade from the armory at 3:45 p. m., Nebraska students will send the Cornhusker gridiron heroes to Pittsburgh with a spirit greater than that of Goshutea—greater than that of Notre Dame—inspired by the enthusiasm that is being shown by the student body.

"We cannot urge you too strongly to join in the parade rally," said a faculty member. "Nebraska has spirit, if her students will only let it bubble over. It generally comes near the bubbling point, but somehow it fails to overflow."

The university band will call every student in school today in front of the armory at 3:45 p. m. The parade will start from this point at 4:00 o'clock, so that it will reach the Burlington depot in time for a farewell rally before the train pulls out carrying the noblest heroes to their fight with Warner's Pitt Panthers.

The results at Nebraska are especially urged to join in the line of march. They were conspicuous by their absence at the depot rally before the team left for South Bend. Students were also asked not to walk on the sidewalks ahead of the marchers during the parade, but to join in the line of march.

Because it was reported that trolley wires "jerked" on the occasion of the Notre Dame parade, students are also asked to refrain from this "sport" today. "This is NOT a short-tail parade, but a farewell rally to the team," they were told.

The cheerleaders will lead the marchers in the chant, songs and yells while the drumline leads the way to the depot. A short rally will be held in front of the coach that will carry the team to Pittsburgh.

"Nebraska can have 3,000 students marching in today's parade, if she only will," is the comment made by several students. "Her spirit is there; it is only hidden by indifference on the part of a few students."

EPISCOPALIAN CLUB FALL PARTY FRIDAY
