THE DIRECTORY.

The University Directory of faculty and student members of the State University has been in the hands of the school for over a week. Nearly every copy of the book has been sold and the Y. M. C. A. is planning new activities through which it may serve the University.

The book is a good one. With many more names than were in last year's book, it was issued nearly as quickly as the one in use last year but with additional features that make it far more serviceable than ever before.

In the first place, the addition of a town directory will make the book of benefit to every student traveling in Nebraska this coming year, and a pleasure to every man and woman going from city to city in the state next summer.

The explanation of symbols used, is adequate, the list of organizations very complete,—in fact the book is a splendid one.

The two men in charge, Orvin B. Gaston, editor, and Eugene Ebersole, business manager, should be congratulated for this splendid accomplishment.

FALL FEVER.

Each spring, as regularly as it comes around, the Editor of the Daily Nebraskan, through inspired words, tries his best to get the student body to stick to work and finish the job creditably when the work of the semester is so nearly completed.

The disease that overcomes is called "Spring Fever."

Is Nebraska suffering from the same ailment this fall? The weather has been ideal—in fact if we had wished for weather of this kind our fondest hopes would never have imagined such a fall as we are having this year.

Nebraska's scholarship record may be suffering from it, but most of the student's whistle the far-famed "I don't care."

EXCHANGES.

Every day the Daily Nebraskan receives copies of University publications in the United States. They are looked over quite carefully by members of the Daily Nebraskan staff and such ideas as are worth while that are in vogue in other institutions are "tried out" on our University public.

To think that the small number working on the Rag are the only ones enjoying these publications, makes it appear to us that we have not been as generous as we should be with these papers, so to remedy this we invite every student of the school who is at all interested to come to the Daily Nebraskan office to inspect any or all of these papers.

TRYING THEIR WINGS.

Nebraska students that work while in the University are of two types—those who have to earn enough to pay their living expenses, and those who devote their time to business affairs in order that they may test their ability to organize, supervise, and take advantage of the opportunities that may present themselves.

The first type—the student working his way through school—is to be admired very much for doing this. His grit and determination makes what he learns of double value to him, for he appreciates the University a great deal more, and he does not waste his opportunities as he might if everything came upon a golden platter.

The enterpriser (we might call him that) usually does not work with his hands. This second type of worker usually tries to explore some field that has not been worked, originate some new plan for doing an old thing, to capitalize some of the theoretical ideas he has learned in his class rooms before actually being "out on his own," and in general, get a touch of the practical while seeking the theoretical.

Both class of workers gain a great deal because of their efforts. In a financial way they may not realize as much as they hope for now, yet in the long race of life, the training they receive, the accompanying mental discipline resulting, and the necessary call upon the resourcefulness of an individual will show in most cases what an advantage this work has been.

Cornhusker Queries.

Q—Who was captain of the football team in 1914?

A—Victor Halligan was captain at that time.

Q—How long has Jack Best been connected with the University?

A—Jack Best has been helping the members of the University teams for about forty years. His pleasant smile and unending patience are remembered by all who know Nebraska.

Q—What is the present value of the buildings on the city campus?

A—Many of the older buildings are not as valuable as when they were built, but in 1919 the value of the campus buildings was $1,516,000.

Q—Who designed the seal of the University of Nebraska?

A—Chancellor A. R. Benton designed the seal of the University while he was taking a long railway journey to the east.

EXHAUST

Saturday Morning Seven O'clock.

The alarm clock Was ringing Its best. The thing Wouldn't stop. It kept right on The darned thing Was surely

A pest "Tommy, Get out! It's time To get up."

I heard someone yell out To me. It's time to Awaken!

It certainly Was not. It was dark As dark Could be.

But 'twas seven O'clock, And more work To be done. Wouldn't it Ever

Let up? So I had To crawl out. No more Rest for me. It's awful To have to Get up!

Gosh! Aint it fierce?

Dear Buffon: Gimme sympathy. I have the "blues," wish I was color blind for blue, but all the experiments seem to indicate that I am normal. What shall I do.

—M. T. NUTT.

M. T. N.—Try the music cure, something without any depressing notes. Have you been down to the Lindell Gymnasium, the music is cheering. Sammie's music makers are color dumb for all "blues," and the callisthenics will build you up.

Girls worshiped him. Not because his name was Gene. For his hair was slick From using bandoline.

—Ajax.

I saw a "Queen" At Chemistry hall Her name was Not known to me. I looked at a book As she copied away And noticed The name thereon Then I hid me away In search of a friend To make me a date With the "Queen"

But as the way With the "Queens" She copied her work

And deigned not to do the same The date I got Was a hard working gate And swung not As we think of "Queens" From this date on I copy no names And advise you To do the same.

The entire Kindergarten department of the teachers college will take a trip to the Home for Dependent Children Friday.

Superintendents from over the state have begun to come to interview students who wish to teach next year. This is much earlier than in previous years.

Student Opinion.

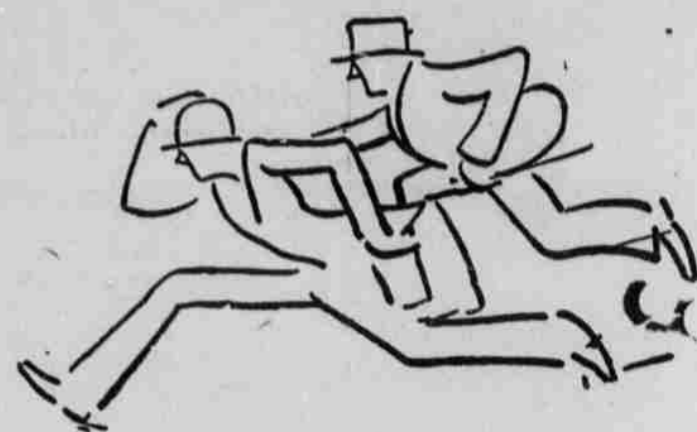

In a Student Opinion published recently, an organization of the Barbs was offered as a possible solution for the present condition of affairs. By suggesting a remedy the evil is admitted. But the Barb organization is the last thing this campus needs. There has already been too much Barb-Greek friction, and an organization such as this would be directed against the Greeks, would certainly not remedy the present unrest.

The fraternity organization is a logical solution of many of our housing and social problems at Nebraska, and from these standpoints, which are of greater importance than university politics, their existence should not be threatened as such a large "anti" organization surely would.

But "ifs" must be simmered to facts. Such an organization probably could not and surely should not exist.

The Greeks are, as was stated, the dominant factor, but the conclusion drawn does not follow: That there fore they should fill all major student offices. These offices should be filled by the most capable men in school, regardless of the organization to which he belongs, whether to the dominant minor, or unorganized factor. It is up to the dominant fraternity organizations to see that this happens.

The "simmerings": The Greeks are the dominant factors. They shall, insofar as we can see, continue to be for some time. In the past they have neglected the rights of the unorganized student body (those who didn't happen to have an athletic reputation or a friend already in a frat. when

BARB "HUSKER" BOOSTER.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY.

What Do You Want Most?

(From Side Talks by Ruth Cameron)

What do you want most?

That is one of the most important things in the world to know. And one would say it was one of the simplest. And yet how many of us know what we want most?

You can't have everything. That's the law of the universe. You will have to choose, and your choices are your life.

determinate and meaningless and unsatisfactory as that word "muddle" suggests.

Other people choose what they want most at the moment, without stopping to weigh value and decide whether it is what they want most for keeps.

It is only the wisest few who look things clearly and thoughtfully in the face, and then decide what they want most and go and get it.

You can't have everything. You can't have health and the pleasures that destroy health. You can't have an effortless, easy life and the fine kind of character you admire and which is builded only by eternal vigilance.

You can't have the appearance of good grooming which you like so much and that last half hour of sleep in the morning. You can't have a well informed mind and yet devote all your reading to easy novels.

But you can have almost anything you really want, provided you know what you want most, and make up your mind today to go and get it. Why don't you?
