COME ON YOU POETS! HERE'S YOUR CHANCE

Poets! Here's your chance! You know what a grand and glorious feeling it is to see your name in rin' You know how happy you would feel to have your friends introduce you as Mr. or Miss So-and So, the famous, world-wide poet. Couldn't you just strut around the campus like a peacock and give all the campus hounds a treat, if they knew you as that person that gets his poems published and paid for? ? Why, there is a chance of you making Neihards sink into oblivion, and of making Walt Musou and "Doc" Bixby sorry that they ever attempted to write poems.

Here is a tip. (You would have to pay the Wonder Girl a good sum for this valuable information.) The American Intercollegiate Magazine offers a prize of fifty dollars for the best poem published in its first twelve issues beginning with Decem ber, 1921, and written by a student in any American college or university which has among its students at least five subscribers to this magazine. It really is a little late to begin, but only three months of the twelve are gone and it seems that so far no one has created a sensation with their poems. So come right along, you high-brow writers and send in a sample of your brain work, and help keep up the "morale" of the school.

It would be a perfect shame if all colleges would send in contributions and this little old "knowledge foundry" didn't, wouldn't it? Especially. since this uni is noted for brains and not beauty??? Just think how you would be honoring your school, why you would almost be a hero, or hero ine, in the eyes of your fellow students, and may be, teachers, if your poem happens to be the type that appeal to the teachers of literature in general.

Then think, think of the enormous salary. Fifty dollars is a fortune in this day and age. If you, poet, happen to be a boy just think how fifts dollars would help; Lindell once a week, Rosewild twice a week (drinks afterwards both times), a new muffler and a little left to add towards

TO TEACH UNI SONGS

(Continued From Page One.) Organized bodies are the best builders of school spirit possible. But in the past the fraternities have devoted too much attention to teaching their freshma ntraditions of their own or configurious and have neglected 3 each Nebraska traditions and to it still Nebraska spirit as highly as i could be planted among them. Now comes a proposal whereby they car repair at least a part of the damage done in the past. That is to require eery freshman to know at least eight of the popular tunes.

If fraternities and sororities will will be singing. As they sing the songs students will feel the spin vhich has made Nebraska great and son the indifference toward attending athletic contests will be gone and Ne braska will receie a reputation for its spirit equal to that which has been secured by its accomplishments.

Wake up, ye followers of the Greek and teach yourselves Nebraska songs and so help spread the fame of the University of Nebraska to the north and the south, and the east and the west. Let no students of other uni versities be able to sing more songs his alma mater than you can sim ! Nebraska.
