"EVERYBODY'S CORNHUSKER"

Completed Cornhuskers are being received by the editor of the book at the rate of three hundred copies a day. Friday the books will be ready for distribution to the student body.

Nebraska is going to be pleased with their year book because it is a dandy. The book is bigger than it has ever been before. For nearly a year a careful staff of efficient workers has been spending a great deal of time in preparing "copy" for the book.

The cuts in the book are an excellent example of fine workmanship, each having been carefully inspected before being accepted for the book.

All pictures have been keyed carefully so that the book will be as free from errors as a book of this kind can be.

Careful preparation and inspection of the student life section has made it a decided addition to this book. Clever, witty, humorous situations of this past school year are well portrayed in word and picture.

Nebraska's beauties are shown with all the skill that a clever photographer and splendid engravers possess. Flo Ziegfeld probably will investigate the possibility of their working for him next year.

Every phase of university life will be portrayed in the many sections of the book.

A great deal of credit is due those responsible for this realistic of the University of Nebraska.

Contemporary Opinion

TRAINING OR EDUCATION?

(University of Cincinnati News) Sitting in the smoking compartment of a Pullman car, the fat man was talking.

"The trouble with colleges today is that they don't turn out enough men who know anything. The educational system of today does not give a man or woman a specific information that can be used in the practical business world."

"But how about poets and artists and such men?" this from the little man in the corner near the wash-basin. "A scientific or business education won't help them any." A snort from the first speaker was his only response.

Then the tall man wearing glasses, with an academic stoop to his powerful frame, decided to break the silence. "Haven't you gentlemen something of a misconception of what college education really is?" Inquiry showed that neither of the former speakers were college graduates. "It seems to me that the real purpose of higher education is not so much to give young people facts and data as it is to broaden their lives so that from a cultural and even esthetic point of view, life shall be more worth living."

And after all the latter was right. A technical education, essential as it is, is only a means to the end of a fuller life. But the man or woman who allows the routine and detail of a technical or any kind of training to supplant the desire for a quest of knowledge is lost in a world of figures and facts.

NEW VOCATIONAL BOOKS FOR UNDERGRADUATES

"Careers for College Men," under the editorship of Professor Ralph L. Power of the University of Southern California, is to appear from the press shortly as a vocational guidance volume designed especially to assist college undergraduates and high school seniors in selecting a life career.

Among the list of more than a hundred well known educators and public men who sponsor various chapters are: David Edstrom, international sculptor; Couch Walter Powell of Stanford; Professor Samuel Ume, director of Greek Theater at the University of California; Dr. L. D. H. Weld, former professor at Yale; Dr. R. S. MacElwee, sometime chief of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce; Dr. John A. Stevenson, vice president of the Equitable Life Assurance Company; Dr. Ford Carpenter, California meteorologist; former U. S. Trade Commissioner Nels Bengtson; Dr. Carl Emil Seashore, famous psychologist; William H. Kuffen, Jr., well known banker; Ordway Tead, personnel expert; John J. Flaherty, at one time vice-president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; DeWitt Stoddard, former U. S. Attorney General; Prof. James S. Pray of Harvard; Dr. John Whyte, National Association of Credit Men; L. E. L. E. Boyter, editor of The Purchasing Agent; Dean William Borling, Columbia; Geoffrey S. Childs, office manager of the Alexander Hamilton Institute; Frank Alvah Parsons, authority on designing; Peter Lutkin, a founder of the American Guild of Organists; Dr. W. W. Charters, educational research expert; Dr. Louis Haney, economist, and many others.

The University of Nebraska is represented in the publication by a chapter from Professor Nels A. Bengtson.

UNIVERSITY GLEE CLUB IS PERMANENT AFFAIR

The new "University of Nebraska Glee Club" has become a permanent organization on the campus. While the organization was made late in the year, regular weekly rehearsals of the thirty men, under the direction of Professor Witte, have been held for the past two months. It is the intention of the club to promote the cause of Nebraska and to serve let, by giving the very best in the way of music, in fact, something over the average glee club.

The club will start rehearsals upon a heavy program immediately in the fall, with the intention of making an extensive tour of the coast and through the western states and also of giving the first annual concert for the University.

The following officers were elected by the club for the next year: President, W. W. Hunter; Vice-President, V. A. Doty; Secretary-Treasurer, Sauch Morris; Business Manager, E. J. Berquist; Librarian, D. Berks.

LIEUT. R. D. WOOD TO RETURN NEXT YEAR

Lieut. Wood, who has been absent a year in Central America writes to Captain Nix under date of May 11th of his experiences.

His letter in part follows: "After spending my first two months in this country on the farm, as time keeper and assistant overseer, I was transferred to the district office as assistant chief clerk. Four months later I was again transferred to the manager's office Tela. I have been in that office nearly six months.

"The work is very interesting; I handle all the radio communications and the work concerned with maritime movement. We have shipped already this year over two million bunches of bananas. This week we are loading ships for six different ports—Havana, Mobile, Boston, Philadelphia, New Orleans and Liverpool.

Saturday we load the S. S. Greenbrier of Eldors and Tyffes' fleet for Liverpool. The Greenbrier was, during the war, one of the most effective and most feared German destroyers. From that status to a banana boat should prove quite a blow to her pride.

"I dislike very much the idea of giving up my work in the Military department, because I have realized since I have been down here, that it has been of fully as much value to me as any course which I have studied."

Lieut. Wood writes that he expects to leave for the United States about August 15th and that he expects to register in the University and begin the advanced course in September.

PARTIES ARE NOT ON RAG STAFF'S NEWS LIST

Early Monday afternoon when the "Rag" office was deserted, with the exception of one "unenergetic" reporter, a rather strange thing happened.

It was raining. The reporter had been out gathering news and came into the office with the idea of jotting down material for the next day's paper. As it happened, the reporter had taken advantage of the shower and was "sopping" wet and tired. He had removed his coat and was "lopping" ungracefully just about all over the table. Remember, no one was around. Do not get a wrong impression of the Nebraskan office; it is usually the busiest, most alive room on the campus, but this happened to be one of its very rare resting hours. To proceed then, the reporter was "lopping," but he did not "lop" done for a wild-eyed, excited co-ed rushed in with a swish and pointed her finger accusingly at the poor, bedazzled journalist and said in a very desperate tone, "Say, what kind of a paper do you call this?"

The startled "lopper" smiled wanly and, in the polite way of reporters, replied, "I call this a very good paper, madam."

This seemed to anger the young lady, for she clenched her dainty fist and placed it, not too gently, on the table and exclaimed in a voice that caused the reporter to rise and close the door, "Well I don't!"

Again the wan smile and then rather drawlingly, "State your grievance."

"Well, I gave a party Saturday night, and invited a Nebraskan reporter especially so it would be written up. Never have any of my affairs been written up and I want to know the reason. Do you have to have a stand in with someone in order to get your name in this paper? Why wasn't there a report of my party?"

"Answer me that."

Poor, misguided youth! Why did not the young person find out the custom before dashing breathlessly into the office and spoiling the delicious "lop" the reporter was having?

JEWISH PHOSOPHICAL SOCIETY TO BE FORMED

Members of the Menorah society, at a meeting held Sunday, May 21, 1922, adopted the following resolutions: Resolved, that we are to organize a society in Lincoln for the purpose of discussing and analyzing all phases of Jewish and worldly questions.

That society to be known as the Jewish Philosphical Society of the University of Nebraska.

That said society is formed for the reason that other organizations formerly organized to discuss Jewish culture and ideals have failed to accomplish that purpose.

Further, he it resolved that only those members will be eligible who can present some topic pertaining to Jewish or world affairs and who will show a particular interest in the organization as a whole. Also outsiders who will have some message to deliver which will be of interest to the society will be welcome.
