Neilson, president of the club, for the purpose of electing officers for the first semester of 1922-23, resulted in the following elections: Glen C. Cook, president; Geo. P. Sprague, vice president; W. O. Weaver, secretary; and C. M. Mead, treasurer.

SEATON RETURNS FROM EASTERN CONFERENCE

L. F. Seaton, operating superintendent and purchasing agent of the University of Nebraska, has just returned from a two weeks' trip thru the east. He was in attendance at the meeting for university and college business officers at Ann Arbor, Mich., and later attended a meeting of the national association of purchasing agents at Rochester. He was elected vice president of the educational buyers' division. At this meeting final arrangements were made for the cooperative purchasing of many materials used by the various universities over the country. Purchases were pooled for a five carload shipment of grain alcohol at a price of approximately forty cents per gallon, to be distributed to several universities. Other purchases are being made in a like manner, effecting a real saving to the various institutions.

IVY DAY PROGRAM IS NEXT THURSDAY

Mortarboards in Charge For the Morning and Innocents in Afternoon

Preparations are in full swing for the best Ivy Day in Nebraska history next Thursday. The Mortarboards have charge of the morning program and the Innocents in the afternoon. The Silver Serpents will devote the throne under the supervision of Mary Herzog and Ruth Fickes. The Little Green Theater will be used for the throne as in the past.

The Grecian ballet that recently took part in the W. A. A. dance-drama will repeat that part of the program. Dorothy Whelpley will have charge of the dancing. Milrae Judkins, kindergarten pupils will give the maypole dance. Margaret Perry will sing the song of the May Queen.

Who will be the queen? The secret is half of the beauty of the day. And who will be the class poet? Only two poets have submitted pieces. Is it timidity or lack of spirit? The Mortarboards will choose the prize winner.

A mass meeting of senior girls will be called soon to learn the two songs, Fair Nebraska and the Ivy Song. Madeline Hendricks is chairman of the senior girls who will take part in the daisy chain. Mary Sheldon will take charge of the under-classes in the same. Hazel Fickes will manage the little children who take part in the ceremonies of the day.

RUSSELL ATTENDS AG CONFERENCE

Professor J. C. Russell of the Agronomy Department spent a portion of the last week at a meeting of men interested in soil fertility at Columbia, Mo. While there he took opportunity to talk over the prospects of candidates for two fellowships which the Agronomy Department is offering in Soils, and found a rather interesting situation existing all over the United States. It seems that there are far more fellowships open in both Soils and Crops at the various agricultural colleges than there are candidates for them. Representatives of six agricultural colleges stated that they were looking for candidates for fellowships which they had to offer and had no students majoring in Agronomy whom they could recommend to other colleges.

The reason for this situation is explained in various ways. Some say that it is due to a decline in interest in scientific investigation. Others think that it is due to the bigger financial inducements in Smith-Hughes schools and other professional lines. Certain departments like Animal Husbandry, report that they are having no trouble in finding as many as twenty-five candidates for every fellowship which they have to offer.

There never was a time when there was more opportunity for students who want to follow a professional career to find in Soils a field of work that is certain of leading to good openings. The teaching and investigation ranks in our agricultural colleges must be filled, for teachers and investigators are continually dropping out to more remunerative commercial positions, and we must look to the graduate students to fill their positions. Several years hence, if this lack of students in our graduate department in Soils and Crops continues, we are going to be faced with a serious situation in filling important positions.

Flagg's Choice Of Cornhusker Beauties Published At Last

At last it has "leaked" out! At last the University is allowed to know the decision made by the noted James Montgomery Flagg! At last the names of the Cornhusker Beauties are revealed!!

Mr. Flagg selected these wondrous six from a group of twenty-five and he confessed that it was a difficult task to make the selection. The pictures of the girls voted upon by the university as being the prettiest were sent to the artist.

"Nebraska University is to be congratulated upon its pretty co-eds," wrote the judge of the beauty contest.

One interesting feature about the winners is that all types of beauty are represented: blondes, brunettes and Titian hair were among the winners.

They are: Mildred Hulinger, Villisca, Iowa; Esther Crider, Kansas City, Mo.; Vivian Hansen, Lincoln, Nebraska; Isabel Evans, Omaha, Nebraska; Mildred Taylor, Omaha; Helen Kummer, Columbus.

This was the first contest of the kind that has ever been held at the University of Nebraska, but the keen interest that the public as well as the student body has taken in it is assurance that it will be an annual affair.

The original plan of the Cornhusker management was to keep this list secret until the book was actually in the hands of the public, but owing to misplaced confidence in one of the Omaha papers which was given the list for release and publication next Sunday, this list of winners was announced Tuesday in Omaha.

CORNHUSKER TO CONTAIN MANY NEW FEATURES

1922 Annual Divided Into Seven Distinct Books—Larger Than Ever

BOOK DEDICATED TO PROFESSOR BARBOUR

"Male Flappers" Pictures in the "Men's Beauty Section" of Student Life

From the front cover to the final page of the Student Life section, the 1922 "Everybody's Cornhusker" is full of new features of interest to every Nebraska Student.

The cover of the new book is of maroon leather stamped in gold. It is substantial and is a very fitting cover for this type of book.

Dr. E. Barbour is the new man to whom the book is dedicated. Following Dr. Barbour's picture are pictures of many of the faculty members.

The book is divided into seven distinct books as follows: Campus and State, with pictures of the school and scenes from all parts of the state. The section is edited by Harlan Boyer.

Next comes the Class and Honors section, edited by Robert Craig. This year the honorary societies of each class are pictured with the class history.

Athletics, with Homer Sandrock in charge, comes next. Pictures of the teams, coaches, players and write-ups of the different sports make this section exceptionally interesting.

The Colleges of Nebraska section with the different college organization writeups was edited by H. M. Meyer. Joe Noh, a member of the R. O. T. C. and Pershing Rifles, is responsible for the excellent Military section.

Men's Beauty section

The Student Life Section has many a humorous feature that will make it worth while to read it over several times to get every "kick" that it contains. The humor is clean and refreshing. The Men's Beauty Section, with the male flappers of the school pictured, will make many a girl's heart flip-flop.

More pages than ever before, remarkable engraving work, tasty section covers and splendid pictures make this year's annual the "best ever."

FINE ARTS EXHIBIT IS NOW IN GALLERY

An exhibition of art work done by the students in the fine arts department during the current year is being hung in the art gallery for the commencement season. An unusual amount of high class work has been done in all lines. The exhibition will be open to the public free of charge.

The three following there was a banquet followed by a recital by the visiting delegates, in which Miss Perry, accompanied by Miss Lowrie, sang. ONLY FRESHMEN CRAM— SENIORS KNOW BETTER

Cramming is an amateurish habit at the best and should never be indulged in by an intelligent student, according to one of the English professors of this university. When some freshman start to sit up among the stilly hours, drink tea-kettles full of coffee and wrap wet dish rags around his head, the sophisticated senior snaps his fingers and takes in a show at the Wonderland. What's more, the senior will be the one who gets the grades while the freshman will be lucky if he is not the recipient of two or three delegations from his professor to keep him from somnia during the exam period. "Merely a simple problem in psychology," explained the English professor in question. He ought to know the ins and outs of the affair, as he has tried both methods, especially the last, during his own college career. As to the word "psychology," don't ask us to explain it, as on the same authority as above, it is the most silly used and inexplicable word in the dictionary.

The book is heartily endorsed by the alumni "N" men who were each asked to subscribe for a copy of the book in order to assure publication of the volume.

Coaches Endorse Book

The book has received the endorsement of all the coaches and of the captains of all athletic teams for next year. Statements of the prospects for the next year in each sport will be contained in the book.

Pictures of all athletic teams together with the coaches will be contained in the book. The book is dedicated to Jack Best, "Nebraska's Grand Old Man," who has worked faithfully for Cornhusker athletic teams for more than thirty years.

Reviews of the last season in each sport together with the outlook for next year will be important features of the book. Humorous little incidents of the training periods will occupy a section together with reviews of the high school basketball and track tournaments and the state pentathlon.
