

FACULTY MEMBERS GO ON VACATION

University Instructors to Spend the Summer in Many Various Activities

University faculty members are planning to spend their summer vacations in varied fields. From research work to writing books, the instructors will keep themselves busy. The plans of some of the faculty members follow:

L. A. Wolfanger, of the department of geology and geography, will spend his summer in the United States bureau of soils. In the fall, he will go to Columbia where he has a teaching fellowship.

Miss Vera Rigdon, instructor in the department of geology and geography, left last week for Emporia, Kans., where she will teach during the summer sessions. She has been called to a teaching fellowship in the University of California at Berkeley.

Miss Laura B. Pfeiffer, of the history department will teach in the first summer session of the summer school following which she will leave for California accompanied by her mother to spend the rest of the vacation.

Dr. J. E. Weaver, of the botany department will continue his investigations during the summer in connection with the Carnegie institution at Washington. He will drive through to Colorado Springs with his family and will work at the Colorado Springs home station for the summer. Professor J. W. Crist will assist Dr. Weaver in his investigations. Dr. Weaver will be associated with Dr. F. E. Clements, '94, of the Carnegie institution at Washington in the completion of a book dealing with their investigations.

Professor McFayden of the history department will study at the University of Chicago during the first month of the summer. He will then go to Washington university at St. Louis where he is to be professor of history.

Professor W. G. Brooks, superintendent of York schools next year, is giving three courses on education during the first term of this summer.

Professor C. F. McNeill expects to spend the summer in New York doing research work with the New York Transit commission. He was statistician of the company before coming to Nebraska.

Dean LeRoussignol of the college of business administration, will spend the summer on Pelican lake. He intends to do considerable writing and at present is working on a series of articles on economics for the "Midwest Veteran."

Professor O. R. Martin of the college of business administration expects to spend some of the summer in Boulder, Colo., with his family.

Professor Paul W. Ivey is giving a series of lectures on salesmanship at Kansas and Oklahoma under the auspices of the University of Kansas.

Harry Pike will study at Columbia where he will take work in accounting and similar subjects.

Professor E. S. Fullbrook will spend the summer at his home in Sioux City, Ia.

After teaching in the summer session, Professor F. E. Wolfe will go to Evansville college, Evansville, Ind., where he will spend a part of the summer. He will then go to his wife's home in Maryland and to his own home in Virginia.
