LUTHERAN CLUB HAS SUCCESSFUL PICNIC

Thirty Students Attend Luncheon Held At the Antelope Park on Friday Evening.

More than thirty Lutheran students of the university attended the picnic given for them by the Lutheran club of the university Friday evening at Antelope park. A pleasant evening filled with games, eats and enjoyment was spent by all of the picnickers.

The Lutheran club is planning a series of entertainments for the summer. It is finding it difficult, however, to get in touch with the Lutheran students since no identification cards are kept at the registrar's office in the same way as they are kept during the regular school year.

The Lutheran club is planning to hold a general reception for all Lutheran students who attend the university next fall. Plans are already underway to make this a lively affair and summer school students who will be in school throughout the year are working hard to get things in shape for the reception.

Does one seek to reform others because one wants to save their souls or because they annoy him? Benevolence or irritable selfishness, which?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

There will always be something in need of reforming as long as people are willing to pay salaries to professional reformers.—Wynne Progress.

Watch the reformers claim that coffee is dangerous. A man recently killed his wife by hitting her with a percolator.—Richmond Dispatch.

THE DOG AND THE FLEA

Deficient unto the say is the drivet thereof.

A barking dog maketh a poor hunter. When the dog is about the cat won't play.

Do not waste your pity on a scamp—is the moral of "The Dog and the Flea" of the "Aesop's Film Fables" series.

A dog is peeved by his fleas.

Those who never enjoy a day off have dog days.

Some folks are like blotters—they absorb everything.

Each flea is a patriot—he believes he dwells on the most wonderful dog in the world.

On a dog's back we usually find freedom of the fleas.

The best way to lie is on the night side.

THE BEAR AND THE BEES

A drink is yours for the flasking. Male finale hoppers and bees swarm around queens.

Some chaps profiteer by the other fellows' mistakes.

Sometimes yearning is an extensive thing.

Evil gains bring their pains—moralizes the "Aesop's Film Fables" picture "The Bear and the Bees."

One sting from a bee is enough—it satisfies.

A bee in a bonnet is as bad as one in the hand.

Every fellow called Frank isn't like his name.

As bees sting us so shall we weep. Spelling bees always result in words.
