"FORGET-ME-NOT DAY" DRIVE COMES FRIDAY

Co-ed Volunteers to Solicit Funds for Needy Disabled Veterans of World War

A "Forget-Me-Not" day drive will be staged Friday and Saturday of this week by the Disabled American Veterans of the World War. Volunteer girls from sororities and dormitories will act as solicitors. All the money received will be handled by the Lincoln State Bank. The purpose is to give aid to the disabled soldiers of the World War who are in hospitals or who are in urgent need. The district of campaign will include the entire city.

The following letter which gives definite information concerning the movement has been mailed out by the organization:

"In preparing for its annual 'Forget-Me-Not' Day movement, of Saturday, November 4, the Disabled American Veterans of the World War are pleased to take this opportunity of advising your goodself as to the purposes and aims of our organization, as well as the disposition of funds secured from 'Forget-Me-Not' Day.

"With over 100,000 of the nation's wounded and disabled veterans of the world war within our ranks, pledged to look after the interests of the other 200,000 disabled American veterans, our association is vested with a distinct and worthy purpose; that of assisting the men who were wounded and disabled in the service of the American flag during the recent great war. Not only are the disabled men in the various cities and towns of the country looked after, but a service of welfare and interest is performed for the many thousands of our comrades who are still in hospitals and institutions of the nation.

"The establishment of clubhouses and summer camps of our chapters, the aiding of national legislative committee at Washington, D. C., the maintenance of a national weekly newspaper, the aiding of men to adequate civilian jobs, assisting them in measures affecting rehabilitation and hospitalization, handling of claims for adjusted compensation and hospital treatment—these are but a few of the many worthy causes in which the Disabled American Veterans of the World War take an active and unselfish interest, functioning for all disabled veterans, whether members of organization or not.

"Forget-Me-Not' Day carries with it a two-fold means of support for these activities; the street sales of the little flowers to the passersby, and the cash donations from firms and individuals interested in the problem of restoring these, the nation's heroes to their aims in life, so that they can become self-reliant and self-supporting, without being the charge of our government or of any institutions. Your support is respectfully requested, by way of check contribution to this project; thereby denoting your approval of this work, and an appreciation of the sacrifices made by these disabled American veterans of the world war. Please make your subscription payable to the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, or the Lincoln State Bank, in care of the 'Forget-Me-Not' Fund."

Y. M. C. A. TO OFFER BIBLE STUDY CLASSES

In Dr. Holmes' opinion the doctrine of infallibility is harmful. He gave several instances where sin and evil have shielded themselves behind it. He pronounced it "untrue, un-Christian and pernicious."

In taking up inspiration Dr. Holmes noted that "only in one place does the Bible lay claim to inspiration." However, he said, "no book can gain inspiration by simply claiming it." The real proof for me is that one can hardly read the scriptures without feeling the spirit of God in them. The writing in the Bible were not let down from heaven or dug out of the earth. They came from the human heart, and God is found in the human heart as in no other place. The Bible bears the errors and the marks of sin of man."

After pointing out some of the helpful qualities of the Bible, Dr. Holmes ended, "The Bible teaches, reproves, corrects and disciplines in righteousness. I would not have you bow down and worship it. Read it, study it, drill yourself by it, and you will become living inspiration."

STOCK FEEDERS HERE FOR ANNUAL MEETING

Hog Feeding Experiment Proposed—Further Reports to be Given in Spring

The annual state stock feeders meeting was held at the Agricultural College campus Tuesday afternoon. Livestock conditions were discussed, and a summary of the feeding experiments carried on by the University was presented. Another meeting will be held in the spring, after the completion of the experimental feeding and the resulting report.

An experiment of unusual interest this year is being carried out in connection with the bureau of animal industry in Washington, D. C. The object of the experiment is to determine whether or not it would be profitable for farmers to ship feeder pigs in from outside districts into the corn belt and finish feeding them for market. The hogs for the experiment were raised at McNeil, Mississippi, from purebred stock of Tamworth, Chester White, Poland, Duroc Jersey, and Hampshire breeds. They are divided into three groups according to the amount of grain fed. Each group will be re-divided and one-half fed white corn and the other half yellow corn.

The farm on which the pigs were raised has never had hogs on it before. Hogs will be raised there for several years by the Bureau of Animal Industry in Washington, D. C., and records kept as to worm infestation each year.

Other interesting facts brought out in the meeting were that the price of feed nearly doubled since last November, and that the tariff on imports will cause the wool prices to rise and bring that industry back to normal.

Outlines of the cattle and sheep-feeding experiments were presented following which the visitors inspected the cattle for the steer-feeding experiment.

Declare War On College Betting

War to a finish against betting on college athletic games was instituted last week by John L. Griffith, Commissioner of Athletics of the Big-Ten Conference. In a letter to the various papers in the Big-Ten schools, Griffith stated that he has determined to deal college betting its deathblow.

Concerred action by all the universities is necessary, Griffith said, because fraternities of rival schools often make pools and lay bets between the two chapters. If pressure were brought on both schools, this would be eliminated, the effect of concerted action of all universities, by the alumni organizations, high school and contiguous colleges, would be much greater than if only a few universities agitated the reform; and because it is fitting that the conference, which has always been progressive, should lead the way in this new plan.

Mr. Griffith says that college betting is an evil because: (1) if betting grows with the growth of inter-collegiate games, the opposition to the games will increase so that they will have to be abolished; (2) the betting man bets his father's money in most cases; (3) the betting man has a wrong viewpoint of the game, and is often hypocritical of the team and referees; and (4) when large sums of money are at stake, the men lose sight of the great ideal for which they are striving.

The plan of Mr. Griffith is to foster a campaign conducted by members of the coaching staff and also of the faculty, who will give talks to the various fraternities. He aims to secure the support of the various civic clubs for the plan, to secure the pledges of the many pool hall proprietors to oppose betting on college games, to urge civic and university authorities to punish all those who violate these decrees of the conference committee.—The Minnesota Daily.

Schools May Arrange Triangular Debate

Plans are being laid for the arrangement of a triangular varsity debate between Whitman, the University of Idaho and the University of Washington, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon by Gordon Gilmore, A. S. W. C. debate manager.

Nothing definite can be said at present concerning the likelihood of the time or question for debate. However, the surety of the debate was assured when Mr. Gilmore received a telegram late yesterday from Darwin Meisner, the University of Washington graduate manager saying that the board of student control had decided to enter into the triangular debate with Whitman college and the University of Idaho.—Whitman College Pioneer.
