KANSAS SPIRIT. With the Kansas team playing against a superior eleven, the factors drenched with rain, and losing a game in the new stadium, the indomitable Kansas spirit remained at a peak during the entire game at Lawrence last Saturday.

When the Nebraskans faltered their defiant banner, "Who Owns the Valley?" in the faces of the defeated Jayhawkers, the Kansas band answered the taunt by playing the Nebraska chant. This act typifies the splendid spirit of the Jayhawkers.

THE NEW CAPITOL. Like many other things, the opportunity of witnessing or participating in the ceremonies of the laying of a cornerstone for a state capitol comes but once to the average person.

Dedicated to Nebraska's soldiers, it will serve not only a splendid material purpose in being the seat of governmental activities, but it will stand out magnificently as an imperishable monument to a legion of heroes whose valor and loyalty will be most fittingly symbolized in the shaft-like tower.

THE STADIUM CLOCK. We are wondering how the stadium clock is going to register the result when Lincoln business men exceed their quota in the Stadium builder's campaign in the city.

NATIONAL CANCER WEEK. The week of November 12-18 has been designated "Cancer Week" by the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

made as regards cancer is in that direction. Its object is to acquaint the public with certain ailments which precede the onset of cancer and the symptoms that will serve them as warning signals.

What, then, is one to do "to be saved?" Simply this, to look upon any and all ills to which the flesh is heir as potent for harm until proved otherwise.

Initial "Dad's Day" Is Big Success at Jayhawker School

Over three hundred and fifty fathers and sons gathered at the University Commons Saturday night to celebrate the first Dads' Day dinner.

A four course dinner was served and entertainment was provided under the auspices of Dean John R. Dyer.

Prof. W. W. Davis, of the department of history, was toast master for the evening. He proposed the following toast, "Here's to Dad; God bless him; may his tribe increase."

Benny Owens' Talk. A pleasant feature of the evening was the presence of coach "Fighting" Benny Owens and his "Sooners" who were foster-fathered by the Lawrence Chamber of Commerce.

Prof. W. W. Davis, of the department of history, was toast master for the evening. He proposed the following toast, "Here's to Dad; God bless him; may his tribe increase."

Favors consisting of a large red balloon for each Dad and a rose for Mother, were provided by the two student councils. Miller's orchestra played throughout the evening, all of the latest hits, and the University quartet gave two selections which were received with great applause.

The evening was brought to a successful close by a chorus "Our Fighting Dads," written by Mark Mohler. "I feel," said Chancellor Lindley this morning, "that the success of this occasion has made permanent the celebration of an annual Dads' Day."—Daily Kansan.

College Heads Support Hopkins

America's college presidents today came to the support of President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth, who recently created a great stir throughout the nation by declaring too many people are going to college.

Leaders in the National Association of State Universities, embracing forty-five college presidents, meeting in annual conference here declared yesterday, that in principle, Dr. Hopkins' plea for "weeding out undesirables" in college was justifiable.

Several of the university executives, however, did not agree specifically with Hopkins' exact plans for curtailing college enrollment.

"In a general way, it is true," said Dr. David Kinley, president of the University of Illinois, "that too many people are going to college. By that I mean restrictions should be placed on students who come to college merely for social prestige, and greater opportunity afforded those who are prepared admirably for higher education, but, who, because of lack of finances, are unable to attend."

Kinley made it clear that he did not imply a restriction in numbers solely; rather a careful selection and adjustment to determine those intelligently prepared for college work.

Dr. Frank L. McVoy, president of the University of Kentucky, echoed Kinley's opinions. He urged development of an education process whereby the adaptability and qualifications of prospective students could be ascertained by mental, physical and medical tests, and by an examination of the students' record of achievement in high school.

Dr. John C. Jones, president of the University of Missouri, while not agreeing specifically with the Hopkins' point of view, expressed belief that all college scholastic requirements should be tightened up considerably.—The Lincoln Star.

During Mr. Thomas' absence, Geo. S. Dennison, chairman of the Executive Committee of Law School, will be in charge of student activities.

DeBaufre to Attend Conference in East

Professor W. L. DeBaufre, chairman of the Department of Mechanical Engineering, will leave Friday evening for a conference in New York on Sunday. He expects to spend the following two weeks in Washington, D. C., working on the production of helium from natural gas.

The details of a semi-commercial plant working on the same principles as the laboratory plant built in Washington during the summer, will probably be worked out this trip. Professor DeBaufre said yesterday. The plant is to be erected in Texas in the spring.

Hard Problem for Students to Know Scholarship Merits

One of the greatest problems confronting the universities of this country is that of getting the students on the campus to recognize the merits of scholarship, was the belief expressed by President Marion L. Burton, when speaking in Grand Rapids last Friday.

"The real problem in undergraduate work is the social status of the scholarly student," said President Burton. "Social tyranny on a university campus is the great impediment to educational progress. A student who actually studies is considered queer."

"So long as students, either as a pose or as an actuality, take the attitude that intellectual merit is not among the highest values of college life we are not liable to accomplish much by our complicated organization of curricula or the promulgation of epistemological theories. The issue is: 'Can it be brought about in American colleges that social prestige attaches to the man who achieves intellectual distinction?' As things stand now, to be a highbrow is fatal to campus recognition."—Michigan Daily

Kansas Uni. Library Receives Valuable Set of Text Books

Original editions of the first periodical literature ever published on chemistry have been obtained for the chemistry library. There are sixty-two volumes in three sets, all of which were printed in Germany and range in dates from 1781 to 1803.

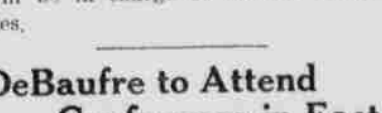

Before this time almost all scientific literature was either written in book form or was to be found in the memories of past scientists. These quaint volumes, however, are valuable as the first periodical record of the progress of chemistry in Europe, written by scientists of that day.

The three sets are: Chemische Annalen (1784-1803), Neuesten Entdeckungen in der Chemie (1781-84), and Neues Chemisches Archiv (1784-93).

The books, which will soon be moved from Spooner to the chemistry library, were obtained from a bookseller in Paris. Their course from the German publishers to Paris is unknown except for two library stamps which appear on several volumes. One of these libraries was at a French artillery school. It is evident that the young artillerymen, possibly of Napoleonic days, were not deeply interested in chemistry, as the leaves of the books are still uncut.—Daily Kansan.

Workmen in the Havelock Shops Hold a Meeting

A meeting of Havelock workmen in the Burlington shops was held in the Havelock City hall Monday afternoon. About thirty attended. The meeting was called by W. F. Ackerman, shop superintendent. Sheriff Ira Miller spoke briefly. The meeting was the result of the recent attack upon Havelock homes with bricks and stones. Five homes of shop foremen or returned strikers were damaged.

With the exception of City Clerk Pinkerton, none of the Havelock city officials attended the meeting. It was said. The workmen claimed they have received no protection from the city authorities.
