A MINNESOTA GAME?

We have read with elation the incomplete Nebraska football schedule for 1923 which includes games with Illinois, Syracuse, Notre Dame, Kansas, Missouri. Three games yet remain to be scheduled. Of those games scheduled, the Syracuse, Notre Dame and Kansas games will be played at home.

It was a wise move on the part of the University athletic authorities to schedule a game with Illinois, one of the leading teams in the Big Ten. But we would suggest that Nebraska go a step further and attempt to secure a contest with another Big Ten eleven, Minnesota. With the wonderful eleven that Nebraska will have next year, in addition to the new stadium, we believe that it is not only feasible, but necessary, that Nebraska should schedule a game with another big team, and Minnesota is the logical team, for it is among the strongest teams in the Big Ten, and Fred Luehring, erstwhile Cornhusker director of athletics and now director of athletics at Minnesota, is said to favor the resumption of the annual grid contest between the two schools.

With such a schedule, Nebraska would be playing two of the strongest Big Ten teams, a fact which would no doubt be taken into consideration if Nebraska seeks admission to the Ten.

Also, we should like to see Nebraska play the Kansas Aggies again next year. The Aggies put up a wonderful fight against the Huskers this year, and deserve a return game.

"CREATURES OF ENVIRONMENT"

The man who works his way through school is usually the man on the campus with the broadest grin. He is the one that can clutch his sole capital in one hand. He is that person who subscribes first to the worthy causes. He is the one who keeps up the scholastic end of the institution.

Many colleges find that at least half the students in school are working their way through. They are sacrificing the present for the future. It is hard to watch others enjoy the social events of the school while they must ponder over their studies and devote their spare hours to outside work. They have little time to take in activities. They force themselves to become obscure elements in the life of the school.

That sole difference of financial difficulties has made the working student the better scholar and proved to be the downfall of the fortunate one. If the situation were reversed the scholar would, under the influence of the life of ease, tend to become an inferior student while the other one would assume the position of the leader. It is merely another phase of the "creature of environment" theory. It cannot be remedied and it must be accepted for it will be over this.

UPPERCLASSMEN ADVISERS.
There is a scheme in operation in many other Universities that could be made a benefit if tried at Nebraska. That system is the Upperclassman Adviser idea. It is now in operation among the women students of the University and is functioning very successfully, but so far little effort has been made to promote and introduce it for the men students.

Under the plan, when a freshman registered at the beginning of the semester, he would be assigned an upperclassman adviser. It would be the duty of the adviser to help and instruct the freshman in every way possible.

A close bond of friendship is formed between the freshman and his adviser. The adviser shows the freshman the ropes, gets him into activities, teaches him the traditions of the school, and looks out for his welfare in general. This system has been very successful in getting the freshman into the spirit of the school immediately. It does away with the aimless wandering that so often characterizes the first semester.

This idea is especially beneficial to the non-fraternity freshmen. He is given some reliable upperclassman to teach the way to successfully get started and to help him to find his niche.

The success which the plan has met with elsewhere and the way it is working out with the women here warrant it being given a serious trial by the men at Nebraska.

Prof. J. Warshaw of the Department of Modern Languages, has an article on "Spanish Composition" in the October issue of the Modern Language Journal published by the National Federation of Modern Language Teachers. The article sets forth five "working constants" that should be under the control of the student of Spanish composition. They are: (1) position; (2) agreement; (3) gender; (4) mood, and (5) accentuation.

The night of January 12 is closed because of final examinations, which begin the following day. This ruling prevents all University groups from holding parties on these nights.

Six new organizations were recognized by the committee. They are as follows: The Forum club, and organization of the freshmen of the College of Law; the Wyoming club, the Bloomington club, the Ambassadors club, the membership of which includes a representative of each home town; the Ches-Nuts, and the Senior Girls' Honorary Society of the Teachers College.
