ASSOCIATIONS PLAN FOR CO-OPERATION

"International Thinking" is Suggested as Common Purpose for Y. M. and Y. W.

At the joint cabinet dinner of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. at the Faculty hall Wednesday, an open discussion of the possibilities of further co-operation between the two organizations was held. This is particularly important in view of the distinguished foreign visitors who are soon to come to Nebraska.

As a common purpose for the two organizations, "international thinking" was suggested. The need for financial aid in the European countries was emphasized.

The discussion was led by Carol Prouty, president of the men's organization, and the devotions were given by Edwin Edgar. Thirty-three people including Miss Erma Appleby and Paul McCaffree, secretaries of the University auxiliaries of the organizations, were present.

GENERAL PERSHING IN MINNESOTA

"I have heard of the good work which Minnesota's cadet corps is doing, and I regret exceedingly that I will not be able to get over to see them," was the comment of General John J. "Black Jack" Pershing, America's war-time leader, when he visited Minneapolis yesterday. "I know what you are doing over there, and I heartily commend the work. Tell the boys to keep it up. You have my best wishes for success."

General Pershing came to Minneapolis under the auspices of the American Defense society. In a spirited address to members of that organization at the Auditorium, he urged a large standing army as the only sure method of keeping the peace. "We have had a war on an average of every twenty years," he said. "There is no reason to believe that any development of present conditions may bring about a cessation of international strife. Alexander the Great predicted that his campaigns would be the last wars in history."

"We cannot prevent wars by a program of unpreparedness. When we can leave our windows up, our doors unlocked and our jewels on the table with safety, then I will become an advocate of disarmament. An effective army is just as necessary for an international police force as is the group of men we maintain in our cities for the protection of our lives and property."

An ardent believer in military training, the General gave some time to a discussion of its merits. "Military training is good for the individual as well as for national protection. At the University of Illinois, there has been no need for the faculty to discipline the students since the institution of military training. The faculty and administration join in commendation of the results."

"Last summer, we were able to care for only one third of the boys who made application for admission to summer training camps because Congress had made appropriation for but twenty thousand of them. If the young men of the country take this much interest in the training and the benefits to be derived from it, why shouldn't we take care of them and give them what they want?"

Pershing stepped from the train in smart civilian clothes. He was greeted by a number of civic and military men of the city. Mayor George E. Leach, former colonel of the 151st artillery, Dean Edward E. Nicholson of the University of Minnesota, Col. A. W. Bjorstad, Fort Snelling commandant, and a number of others comprised the welcoming party. When the general saw Dean Nicholson, he stepped forward, and shook hands. "Hello Nicholson," he greeted. When Pershing was a cavalry lieutenant and commander of the cadet corps at the University of Nebraska, Dean Nicholson, then a student, served in that corps.

A strenuous day faced the general. Before noon he asked for time to rest and work on his speech. When he came from the depot and when he passed down Nicollet avenue in an automobile he was greeted by the shouts of thousands of people and had turned out to get a glimpse of "Black Jack." Four speeches, including one which was broadcasted by radio, a review of high school cadets, visits to the disabled men at Asbury hospital and two receptions were on the program for the day.

During the review of high school cadets, Pershing expressed satisfaction with the work done by the various high school corps. He questioned many of the members as to how they liked the work, whether they joined voluntarily and how long their uniforms lasted. He complimented Major W. J. McWade, high school cadet commandant, on the neatness of appearance and proficiency of the battalion. After the review he gave interviews to representatives of the high school papers.

OYSTER STEW FOR AG CLUB MEMBERS

Hold Big Get-together to Promote Spirit in Agricultural College

The first Ag. club oyster stew and get-together meeting was held at the Agricultural College Cafeteria Wednesday evening. This meeting was sponsored by the Ag. club to promote fellowship and good feeling among the men students registered in the College of Agriculture.

Ellery Frost, president of Ag. club, introduced speakers who spoke on the following topics:

"Rosie" Rosenquist—Basketball.
"Bud" Stenger—Ag. Hats.
L. T. Skinner—United Agriculture Week.

J. C. Adams—Report on Work of Judging Team at Chicago.
L. T. Skinner outlined the plans for a United Agriculture week the first week in January when all state agricultural organization will unite in a big conference. A special feature this year will be a celebration the last night of the program in which the College will be host to the visitors. Ames has an entertainment of this nature each year, when one of the prize-winning steers is barbecued.

Each member present at the meeting was requested to do a stunt and some unusual talent was discovered.

How will you treat them?

These tired, overworked feet of Dad, Mother or Sister? After their tireless tramping back and forth, in stores and out, standing at crowded counters, striving to make Christmas day for you happy and full of fun. How joyously those weary-worn feet will welcome a pair of cozy, restful slippers. Then the cramped toes, the aching heel can take their much needed vacation; they may take their ease in pleasure and comfort.

Felt Satin or Leather Slippers for Mother or Sister
