UNIVERSITY LIBRARIAN SUGGESTS GOOD BOOKS

If You Want to Buy Books for Christmas Presents This List Is Well Suggested

Many people enjoy giving books as Christmas presents, but find it perplexing to choose from the many offers by the book stores. The following list is suggested by Mrs. Nellie B. Pickup of the University library, as suitable gifts for the "folks at home."

Nebraska writers:
Dorothy Canfield, "Rough-hewn."
Willa Cather, "My Antonia" and "One of Ours."
Avery Abbott, "Catpaw Martha Mary."

Keene Abbott, "Wine o' the Winds."
Other Western Stories.
Emerson Hough, "The Covered Wagon."
Herbert Quick, "Vandermark's Folly."

Recent books that have been much discussed:
Sinclair Lewis, "Babbitt."
Joseph Hergesheimer, "Java Head."
Booth Tarkington, "Gentle Julia."
A. S. M. Hutchinson, "If Winter Comes."

Hugh Walpole, "The Wooden Horse."
Joseph Conrad, "Victory."
Louis Herman, "Marie Chapdelaine."
H. G. Wells, "Tono-Bungay."

Pure Comedy.
Wodehouse, "Damsel in Distress."
Leacock, "Nonsense Stories."
Irvin S. Cobb, "Anatomy."
Harry S. Edwards, "Aneas Africanus."

The University library has comparatively few children's books. But those that have become classics or are by important authors are there, and a number are on display this week. Among them the following are particularly attractive:

Scott's "The Talisman," illustrated by Vedder.
"Aesop's Fables," illustrated by Heighway.

Charles and Mary Lamb's "Tales From Shakespeare," illustrated by Norman Price.

Stevenson's "The Black Arrow," illustrated by Wyeth, and his "Child's Garden of Verses," illustrated by Kate Douglas Wiggin.

"Arabian Night's Entertainment," edited by Lang.
"Story of King Arthur and His Knights," written and illustrated by Howard Pyle.

The library has been distributing a short list of children's books suitable for Christmas gifts and classified by ages. Copies may be had on request at the loan desk.

MANY STUDENTS GET JOBS DURING RECESS

Employment Secretary Wm. Altstadt Finds That Salesmen and Waiters in Demand

Fewer applications for work during the Christmas holidays have been made to the University Employment Bureau this year than last year. According to William G. Altstadt, this is probably due to the fact that more students have secured work up to this time, and as a consequence, are better fixed financially. Sales positions are more numerous than the others. Grocery stores are also adopting student help through the holiday rush. Some of the positions of the latter class may grow into permanent jobs if the grocers are satisfied. Heretofore few of them have made use of student help.

Restaurants and cafeterias are asking for men to take the place of those students who will not be in Lincoln during recess. It is estimated that about twenty-five students have secured work for the holidays up to the present time. Lincoln business men's organizations are giving much assistance to the bureau in the locating of positions.

Mr. Altstadt is carrying on a correspondence with other schools in order to find out how their advertising is done.

CHRISTMAS CANTATA HEARD AT VESPERS

Beautiful Christmas Program Presented at the Last Vesper Service This Year

"The Anger and the Star," a Christmas cantata, was presented by the Vesper Choir at the Christmas Vespers held Tuesday evening. The service began with the processional of the choir to the loft followed by little Paul Maxwell, who lighted the large Christmas candle symbolizing the joy that was brought into the world by the birth of a little child.

The story presented in music was that old, old story of birth of Christ in Bethlehem and the songs of praise and thanksgiving of the angels on that Christmas night. It was composed of choruses by the choir and solos by the following: Amy Martin, Beatrice Eno, Pearl Shawler, Kathleen Raugh, Margaret Williams, Marjorie Martin, Grace Dewey, and Beatrice Baird. The choir was assisted by a stringed trio, consisting of two violins and a cello.

Mary Creekpaum lead in the reading of the Christmas Epitaph, and in the opening services for Vespers.

THE FORUM WILL MEET FOR DISCUSSION TODAY

The purpose of the organization is as the constitution says: "Free thought, free speech and sane conclusions." It has received the endorsement of many of the men in school and has proved to be a popular and educational manner for settling questions.

Hotel management is soon to become a part of the regular curriculum of the University. In an article entitled "Hotel Management for the College Graduate" written for the December Commercial on sale today, Dean Stuart Daggett has outlined the course to be offered here.

In this connection, the Hotel Oakland will use the December issue as publicity for the $2,000,000 campaign of the American Hotel association to publish hotel management courses in American colleges. At the present time Cornell is the only other American university offering instruction in this branch of business.—The Daily Californian.
