If the interest in the balloting yesterday is shown again on February 20, the annual second-semester class elections should turn out a record vote.

We will soon get away from the idea that the sporting season is over on Thanksgiving Day if we continue to read as we did yesterday: Basketball team leaves for Oklahoma contest; getting ready for track meet at Kansas City; and Nebraska swimmers meet Kansas Aggies.

Perhaps we imagine the sigh of relief that escaped some students when they read that there would be no "Evening Spun" on University Night.

In about a month, the University will be entertaining hundreds of high school students in Lincoln for the basketball tournament. Two months after the basketball contest, we will receive visits from crowds of high school track men, debaters and editors on High School Fete Day.

Each year sees a closer connection between the University and the men and women of Nebraska high schools. Each year, more and more of the future Nebraska students have a chance to see the campus and advantages of this school at close range. It is not too early now to begin to make plans for a pleasant and instructive visit for these visitors.

We have an opportunity during the coming weeks, to influence many high school students to choose Nebraska U. for their alma mater. Let us not neglect to use personal influence wherever possible to urge someone of these visitors to come to Lincoln next year. Athletics would be undoubtedly helped if every high school athlete in Nebraska, who is planning to continue his school work, would come to Nebraska. Special effort should be made this year to utilize every spare moment during the high school meets to boost Nebraska.

A large attendance, a lively open Forum discussion combined with six rapid fire, clear cut, direct and rebuttal speeches, echoed the loud report of the most successful interclass debate season since the war.

Debate has "Rip Van Winkled away" a good many years since the successful years before the war, and the attitude at Nebraska in regard to interclass debates has been that of "let George do it," until this year when interest revived and team positions were hotly contested for. And why should not interclass as well as other debates hold their own against other "he-man" sports. The old comical, exaggerations of the debater has gone, and we find people no longer thinking of debaters as long-haired word gymnasts or "isthetic gentlemen," but instead, as straight-thinking, analytical indices to current problems that are worthy of the attention of every up-to-date student of today.

Where is there any field that offers a better opportunity for clean, manly sportsmanship to display itself than on the debate platform? Where is the sport that introduces a keener, harder fight than is introduced in a debate, where every second may mean defeat or victory; where quick, analytical, close thinking is demanded; and where every point must be carved to the bone before it is contested? Thinkers will find no better field in the development of logical thought, pleasing conversation and manner, and of the ability to untangle a jumble of matter leaving at once a well-dissected skeleton from which to work.

Just as one can never get the real enjoyment from a football until he has "hit the line" for himself, so one can never see the real value and the real sport in debating until he has "hit the line" for himself, and watched his development from one heat of the contest.

Debating has the stuff in it for one of the finest minor sports at Nebraska. All that it needs now to make it such, is just such whole hearted support as the interclass debates received this year.

School tryouts will be held in the near future.—Contributed.

Omaha, Feb. 7.—A Spring Merchants Market Week will be held in Omaha, March 5-10, to be conducted under the auspices of the Omaha Wholesalers and Manufacturing association.

A full week of activities has been arranged for the visiting merchants who will come to Omaha to buy their spring and summer lines of merchandise. Ample stocks of all kinds, the newest and best the market affords will be on hand for their inspection and selection. Omaha's big wholesale and jobbing houses and their entire force of salesmen and managers will be at the service of the visitors.

While the week will be a busy one it will not be devoted entirely to business. The days will be exclusively for the inspection of various lines at the different wholesalers and jobbers. The evenings will be devoted to entertainment.

Monday night, March, 5, there will be a reception and special entertainment at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce. Tuesday night there will be a buffet supper, followed by a theatre party and a midnight dance at one of Omaha's big hotels.

Wednesday night will be the crowning event of the week. This will include an evening at a real circus. to be put on under the auspices of Tangier Temple Shrine, at the Auditorium. There will be plenty of ping lemons, peanuts, clowns, elephants, pretty bareback riders, trapeze performers and everything that makes the old fashioned circus glorious.

Thursday evening will be the distribution of $1,500 worth of gifts which are to be given to the guests. A high powered radio outfit will be the main gift.

The Merchants Market Week committee plans two big market weeks, spring and fall, Omaha being the originator of these events. Last year almost 1,000 merchants were in Omaha to buy their various stocks of merchandise.

Omaha, Feb. 7.—Theodore H. Price, editor of "Commerce and Finance," New York, one of the best known editors and commercial writers in the United States, will be the principal speaker at the annual convention of the Nebraska Lumbermen which is to be held at the Rome hotel, February 14-16. Mr. Price will be the guest of the Omaha Chamber of Commerce at a public affairs luncheon Thursday noon where he will deliver an address on business conditions in the United States. Thursday afternoon he will address the lumbermen on the subject, "The Burden of Railway Freight Charges.

 Can it Be More Widely or Equitably Distributed?" In his speech Mr. Price will explain this question as it affects the manufacturer, retailer and consumer.

The annual "pep" session will be held Thursday morning and led by L. C. Oberlies, Lincoln. Nine topics covering almost every phase of every day lumber business are to be discussed straight from the shoulder with oratory and spell binding banter.

The Knot Hole Club will hold its first annual banquet at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night February 14, all lumbermen and their wives being invited. There will be a special entertainment.

SOMEWHERE LIVES A MAN I AM LOOKING FOR
 AND HE IS LOOKING FOR ME.

I want a man who worked his way thru college by selling books, aluminum ware, brushes, bonds, views or other specialties; a clean-cut, congenial fellow who has been trained in the science and art of selling merchandise direct to the consumer; has had experience in hiring and training college men to sell specialties; has made a record, a worker who believes in knowing his merchandise; a man who has made and saved money; a man who has ambition backed up by a burning desire and a willingness to pay the price of success; where the reward is only limited by the social letter, giving me full details of your past experience and tell me why you think you are the right man.
