

The drawing that won the $100,000 prize in the contest conducted by the Chicago Tribune. Two hundred and twenty drawings were submitted by both American and foreign architects.

TRIBUNE DRAWINGS PLACED ON EXHIBIT

Chicago Paper Sends Exhibit Over Country in Interest of Students.

"The exhibition of the Chicago Tribune drawings has been a splendid success due to the co-operation of Professor Grumman," said R. P. Cross, representative of the Chicago Tribune. Cross explained that the exhibit is being taken over the country in the interests of students of architecture.

"It has already been to the University of Illinois, Washington University, and in Peoria and Kansas City under the auspices of the local chapters of the American Institute of Architects. The exhibit is going to Carnegie at Pittsburg, to Yale, Harvard and other of the leading universities.

Mr. Cross pointed out that all the 220 designs submitted in the contest had to conform not only to the rules of the contest but also to the building laws of Chicago. According to those regulations no building may be occupied higher than 260 feet or 21 stories. The buildings may be built as high as 400 feet. Any superstructure on top of the height of 260 feet must not exceed 3600 square feet in area. According to Mr. Cross, the attempts of largely influenced the design of the buildings.

Many of the architects designed a building 260 feet high and then added a tower to it. The superiority of the pointed out, lay in the fact that the building and the tower were treated as one. The tower was not set on top of the building but the whole edifice was treated as a unit.

Mr. Cross also explained that the windows in the corners of the prize-winning design, make that design different from all the others, and permit the utilization of space that in other plans is wasted. All the space in the building which can be occupied is utilized. The beauty of the design is obtained only after all the space is utilized, and this is not accomplished in other designs of almost equal beauty. The tower will be used as a sight-seeing point for hundreds of thousands of tourists.

"If the thought of the architect is understood by those who see the design, the verdict of the judges will be appreciated," declared Mr. Cross.

The difference is that you are a sane man who fights for his convictions, while the other fellow is a fanatic who fights for his prejudices.
