LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY, 16, 1923

PROGRAM IS COMPLETE FOR ANNUAL UNIVERSITY NIGHT SHOW TOMORROW

Orpheum and Temple Theaters Will Be Used for 1923 Production—Doors Open at 7:30 P. M.—Six Full Stage Acts and Three Curtain Acts Will Make Up Program.

SIGMA DELTA CHI WILL SELL "EVENING SHUN"

Corncocks, Law, Delians, Theta Sigma Phi, Military Department and Engineers Are Putting on Feature Acts of This Year's Show—Cat Prizes Will Be Offered in Prologue.

The program is complete. The "Evening Shun" has gone to press. Everything is set for the greatest University Night that students at Nebraska have been privileged to witness. The curtain will go up for the first act promptly at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow night at both the Orpheum and Temple theaters.

The largest crowd in the history of University Night is expected to pack both show houses. All of the tickets for both places were sold out a few days ago. The demand for tickets has been greater this year than in any other year of the production.

Ten acts will be included in the 1923 production. The management of the production has arranged the program so that the Orpheum and Temple will have the same acts but they will be put on in a little different order at both places.

The five full stage acts include a minstrel show by the Corncocks, Nebraska's stellar "pep" producers and a clever act by Theta Sigma Phi, woman's honorary journalistic fraternity. The Military department is offering a skit that has never been duplicated on any stage here in Lincoln and very few throughout the United States.

The Laws hold a prominent place on the program and are sure to have an act that will be up to the Law standard of other years. They are also offering something entirely different than has been produced in previous years. The Delian Literary Society is offering a modern version of Consensus as pertaining to the University. It is a clever piece of work carried out very well in every detail.

The other full stage act will be put on by the Engineers who have something entirely original this year. An unequalled assortment of musical talent greeted the committee when the call was first sounded for skits but only the best has been picked from this large assortment. A Musical Mixture, featuring Keith Tyler at the piano and Bob Slaymaker on the xylophones with Joe Zimmerman adding a few vocal numbers will make one of the acts. Marshall and Moore are offering a skit entitled "Exposed Facts," which is sure to please everyone and is entirely original.

Bill Wright and "Spiv" Eyth are offering a black face stunt with songs and dances and they will also sing their own and original song, "I Ain't Been Done Right By," which is one of the cleverest pieces of harmony offered this year. Before the beginning of the performance, a short prologue will be offered at which time the winners of the "Cat Contest" will be awarded the prizes. A large number of guesses have already been handed in and two prominent University people are reported to be in a close race for first prize.

Following the production the "Evening Shun" will be sold in the lobbies of both the Orpheum and Temple theaters, by members of Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalistic fraternity. President Boyer reported last night that the little yellow sheet had already gone to press and 2,500 copies are being printed to sell to the student body. The price will be five cents and there is no limit to the number that any individual can purchase.

A Lenten Thought for Every Day

The Symmetry of Life
"The length and breadth and height of it are equal."—The Apostle John.
"The length of Life is its push forward, the breadth of Life is its outreach laterally in sympathy with other men, and height of Life is its reach upward toward God.
"These are the three dimensions of a Life. Without the due development of all, no life becomes complete."—Phillips Brooks.

Are American Students as Serious In Their Work as Those of Europe?

Are American students as serious in their work as European students? This question is buried again and again, yet once more it has arisen from the dead. The occasion of its resurrection was the discussion after the addresses of the visiting foreign students in Social Science Auditorium, Tuesday evening. After answering questions ranging in scope from "Why did the French occupy the Ruhr?" to "Do you personally believe in Hell?" Mr. Hans Tiesler asked permission to put a question to the students in his audience. He asked if it were true that American students are chiefly concerned with the material, and with having a good time; or are they serious about their work? He asked for the opinion of the students in his audience. One of the professors arose and suggested that a certain student, whom he called by name, be called upon to answer this question. An interesting discussion was started. Later, the professor, himself, attempted an answer to the question, explaining that although it had been addressed to the students, he considered himself a juvenile and therefore his remarks would not be out of place.

The question, however, was not settled, even through the assistance of the student-professor. It was therefore thought worthwhile to get the opinion of other faculty members, who had actually been in Europe and who had had an opportunity to obtain their information first hand. Professor Fossler was asked his opinion as to the relative seriousness of American and European students. He said:

"As a body, our students are not so inclined to take themselves seriously. But it's a matter of environment and tradition. Our students, as a rule, are younger than those in European universities. I have never heard American students discuss questions of philosophy or theology, but in Europe it's the tradition for students to do such things."

Professor Warsaw believes the American students are not so serious as the European students because the conditions under which they work are different. European students, he declared, "are a rather select group. Over there it isn't a question of educating a democracy; it's a question of educating a select group, who are recruited from the intellectual classes. The foreign student at the completion of his university work, before he receives his degree, must pass a searching examination. He is constantly preparing or this. Here in America we have periodic examination and as soon as one examination is over, the student loses his stimulus to study. All through high school the American student has been treated as a child, and, when he comes to college, it takes him some time to learn that he is a responsible individual."

FOREIGN STUDENTS LEAVE FOR DENVER

Nebraska Guests to Make Addresses at University of Colorado.

The European students, who have for the last three days been the guests of the students of the University of Nebraska, left Thursday evening at 6:10 o'clock for Denver, where they have two days of rest, and from where they will go to the University of Colorado at Boulder. Thursday, they addressed the students of the College of Business Administration at ten o'clock, the entire student body at eleven, and the people of the Agricultural College at one. Conferences included one with the professor from Baroda, India—Dr. S. L. Joshi.

In speaking of the mission of the students in this country, Jasper King, the representative of the National Student Forum, said: "They have put their case up to us, and we can use what we wish and throw the rest away. 'It is with this spirit,' says Mr. King, 'that the Forum was instrumental in bringing the men over from their native countries.'"

There will be reports of meetings in other colleges and universities which the students will visit during their stay in this country, and Mr. King has promised to send reports on their reception to The Daily Nebraskan. These remarks of the American guide of the students from foreign shores will be published in this paper as soon as they are received.

TRACK MEN ARE OFF FOR K. C. A. C. MEET

Coach Schulte Leaves Today with Twenty Men for First Meet.

The Cornhusker track team, with Coach Schulte in charge, leaves at 1:30 this afternoon on the Burlington for Kansas City, where it will inaugurate the 1923 track season with the C. A. C. indoor meet Saturday night. The Husker tracksters went through a final workout yesterday afternoon. Coach Schulte will not make a final selection of the athletes making the trip until this morning, although it is expected that eighteen or twenty track men will be taken to the Kansas City meet.

Among the events which are on the program for this meet are the fifty-yard dash, the half-mile, the mile relay, the two-mile relay, the high jump, the pole vault and the shot put. A majority of the Missouri Valley schools have teams entered in this meet, and several exciting contests are expected. Contrary to general opinion the Athletic Club meet is not a conference meet, and track men cannot win their letters at this meet.

Coach Schulte is pinning high hopes on two Husker "flashes," Noble and Lloyd, to win high places in the dashes. These athletes have been training hard, and stepped off a fast fifty in the tryouts last Saturday—Lloyd running this sprint in 53-4 seconds, and Noble a fifth of a second slower.

Kosmet Klub Wants Frats to Check In

Fraternities which wish to have their electric crests used in the decorations at the Pan-Hellenic formal party at the City Auditorium of Friday, February 23, must have the money for their tickets checked in to a member of Kosmet Klub by Saturday night, February 17, according to an announcement made by the committee in charge of the party yesterday.

NOTICE

Bring your small change with you tomorrow night at the Orpheum for the purchase of the "Shun" and help the members of Sigma Delta Chi get the papers distributed with as little trouble as possible. There is no limit placed on the number of papers a person may buy. The price is five cents.

ALUMNI HEAR AVERY SPEAK OVER RADIO

Charter Day Celebrated Here—Holtz Makes Address—Band and Quartet Give Program.

"If anyone thinks that the state has been prodigal in supporting its higher education as compared with its political activities, let him make a scrutiny of the University campus and of Capitol Hill," Chancellor Samuel Avery told Nebraska alumni last night in his Charter Day address by radio. "I do not wish to make invidious comparisons, but may I mention that the first capitol is gone, the second one is about to be removed, and the third, in process of construction, is to cost nearly twice as much as all of the University's investment in buildings during these fifty-four years. But the old main University building is still the home of the intellectual activities of thousands of young people."

Harold F. Holtz, alumni secretary, also delivered an address. The University cadet band and the University quartet contributed to the program sent out, beginning at 8 o'clock.

The alumni will elect their presidents on Charter Day in the future. It was announced yesterday, each president calling the meeting to choose his successor.

The Chancellor's address was as follows:

This is the University's birthday. Fifty-four years ago today Governor Butler signed the bill commonly known as the Enabling Act of the University, providing for the establishment of an institution of learning. The University of Nebraska dates from this initial legislation. On such an anniversary occasion a very brief resume of the progress of the institution may be fittingly given, though I believe that the alumni in general are more interested in the problems of the immediate present and the near future.

Soon after the establishment of the institution the contract for the first building was let. Bricks were brought in wagons from Plattsmouth. The old main building on a new foundation is still the center of much of the University's life and activity. It is the University of many of the alumni and will doubtless stand a generation or two longer. I do not wish to make invidious comparisons, but may I mention that the first capitol is gone, the second one is about to be removed, and the third, in process of construction, is to cost nearly twice as much as all of the University's investment in buildings during these fifty-four years. But the old main University building is still the home of the intellectual activities of thousands of young people. If anyone thinks that the state has been prodigal in supporting its higher education as compared with its political activities, let him make a scrutiny of the University campus and of Capitol Hill.

From its humble beginning with a handful of students, the institution has grown until it now ranks in total enrollment eighth or ninth among the tax supported institutions of the country. If one may judge by the size of the institution and the number of students enrolled in comparison with the population of the state, it may be safely said that no University enjoys to a greater extent the confidence of the people of the commonwealth.

The original city campus of four acres has been expanded to forty. The agricultural campus has been acquired. Likewise the medical campus at Omaha and subdivisions of the University's activities at Union, Valentine, Scottsbluff, North Platte and Curtis. In fact, the desire of successive legislatures to establish new plants and new activities has been (Continued on Page 3)

WRESTLING RULES TO ENLIGHTEN ROOTERS

Sports Reporter Summarizes Referee's Actions in All Cases—Decision Explained.

In order that co-eds, as well as the men, may understand some of the decisions of the referee in the wrestling match with K. U. Friday, a synopsis of the rules of the Western Intercollegiate Wrestling Association is printed.

Nothing that endangers life or limb is allowed to go on in the ring. Certain holds are especially barred, among these are the wrist lock, hammerlock, strangle holds, full nelson, toe holds, holds over mouth, nose or eyes, bending or twisting of fingers for punishment. Any hold used for punishment alone, is prohibited. The referee is supposed to break all illegal holds, and if he does not do so before an advantage is gained, the advantage shall not be allowed.

When contestants are down on the mat and, in the opinion of the referee, either contestant is clearly handicapped by having any part of his body off the mat, the referee shall stop the bout, bring both wrestlers back to the center of the ring, and place behind the opponent the wrestler who had the advantage at the instant of crossing the mat. Any advantage (Continued on Page Four.)

COMING OR?
GOING?
Why Do You Think So?
Give Five Reasons—Sign and Place in Ballot Box
Winner Awarded Prize Uni. Night!!!

It has been finally decided that Tomas, or rather Thomas is coming, likewise it has been definitely concluded that it is not Tom at all and that he whoever he is, is going. We have the very best authority for believing both of these theories and have decided to announce the names of the people giving the best reasons for each belief.

This will be the opening feature of the program Saturday night. At eight fifteen sharp, the orchestra will stop playing and the names of the winners will announce and the prizes awarded. Those of you who have not yet stated your opinions on the subject are urged to do so at the earliest possible moment. Who knows but what your fertile brain may bring forth logic that will dazzle the best of them.

Great care has been used in the selection of the presents and there is no doubt but what they will satisfy the tastes of the most exacting.
