University students have to stop for a moment at the outset of their final eight-week stretch until commencement to realize all that has happened since the beginning of spring vacation.

The baseball season has opened; the track team is in California after winning from New Mexico and taking second place at the Missouri Valley indoor meet at Kansas City; bids for the stadium contract have been called for; a campaign to keep students off the grass on the city campus has started; the legislature is busy with consideration of University appropriations.

Probably no other eight-week period in the school year sees as many important extra-curricular activities as the next one. The spring recess furnished a welcome opportunity to rest preparatory to windup of the school year 1922-23.

Of major importance to all connected with the University is the consideration of University appropriations by the state legislature. The special University investigation committee reported its findings during vacation. Its report will be seen in its true light in the following statement by Frank W. Judson, acting chairman of the Board of Regents. The report should be read by every student:

Relative to the report submitted to the house of representatives by the special committee appointed by the legislature to investigate into the affairs of the University of Nebraska, I believe this committee has worked hard and conscientiously in their investigation, and based on the information they have obtained is a fair report. Our state university or any other state institution should be open to such investigations at all times and I am sure the regents of the state university welcome a fair and impartial investigation into the affairs of that institution at all times. I believe the members of this committee have been shown every courtesy and have received much assistance in connection with their investigations from the heads of the different departments, various members of the faculty and others employed by the university.

As is true of every large state institution of this sort, there always exists some feeling that changes should be made in the methods of operation, of instruction and in the personnel of those in charge of its operations. Naturally the moment this committee was appointed those who had criticism to offer became active in furnishing information to the committee, while those who felt that the university was operating along satisfactory lines made no effort to express their feelings or commend the institution or those actively in charge of same.

The committee's investigation and report relative to the growth of the university and the handling of its increased appropriations I hope will be read and carefully considered by all of the members of the legislature. I don't believe those in charge of the university have been guilty of extravagance in the operation of the various departments, as well as the university as a whole. As a matter of fact, I have figures showing the per capita cost per student of the leading state universities of this country and our university is the lowest as compared with ten or fifteen others operating in the state nearest to us. Some of the well-known state universities show an expense of nearly double the amount per student that is expended in our institution. The salaries being paid the officials of the university, faculty and teachers are below the average. Certainly the compensation of the employees of the university is not such as to encourage our young men and women to enter that field of labor, which I believe most unfortunate.

In the report of the special committee they suggest or recommend the re-organization of the administration department, which possibly includes the regents as well as others at the head of that institution. There is nothing in the report suggesting or requesting the resignation of Chancellor Avery, who has served that institution about twenty-six years and twelve years as chancellor. During that period the student attendance has grown rapidly and today our number places us as one of the five state universities with the largest attendance. Our educational standing has greatly improved and in the educational world we stand as one of the leading state educational centers of this country. Chancellor Avery is a scholar, a high minded, conscientious gentleman and certainly loyal to the interests of the university at all times. The head of any institution of this sort has a most difficult duty to perform, including co-operation of the regents as to the general policy, co-operation with all departments that they may work harmoniously together and constant touch with the public or taxpayers that the institution may operate along lines that meet the approval of the majority of the people of this state.
