PLAYERS' GOAL OF 1200 SALES WELL IN SIGHT

Campaign Closes Tonight; More Tickets Sold Each Day of Drive Than Were Taken Altogether Last Year.

800 SEASON PASSES SOLD IN TWO DAYS

Fraternities, Sororities, and Dormitories Solicited; virtually All of Reduced-rate Matinee Tickets Snapped Up

With 800 season tickets sold the first two days of the University Players' campaign, the sales managers expect to reach the goal of 1200 by tonight when the drive closes.

Each day of the drive 400 tickets have been sold. Last year only 250 were disposed of after two days of intensive campaigning. Not many more than 400 were sold altogether last year.

"The larger sale this year is probably a result of the excellence of the last year's production. Another thing is that the plays this year were selected by popular vote which was taken last year," said William G. Aldstadt, chairman of the ticket-selling committee.

Virtually all of the matinee tickets which were sold at reduced rates have been bought, according to Albert Erickson, manager of University Players.

The sale this year is being conducted by students who are soliciting every fraternity house, sorority house, dormitory, and rooming house.

WOULD GIVE COLLEGE COURSE IN RELIGION

Dr. Kent of Yale Says Students Want Schools of Religion in Universities.

"The Place of Religion in a State University" was the subject of an address made Tuesday afternoon by Dr. Charles Foster Kent of Yale university. He spoke in favor of establishing schools of religion in connection with state universities before the Nebraska Congregational conference and a large number of the University faculty.

In advocating establishment of religious schools in co-operation with and receiving credit from state universities, Dr. Kent maintained that an institution of learning was not a university in the full sense of the word unless it offered the broadest possible range of courses. That a non-secular course concerning itself with the great recognized truths of all religion can be given and should be given in the University, Dr. Kent proved by citing examples of universities in this country which are doing it today.

He said that thousands are leaving our Universities each year lacking a well-rounded education and a proper philosophy of life because the fundamental religious ideas are not offered.

That schools of religion have been established in connection with several universities and that the results are justifying the expense, was offered by Dr. Kent as evidence of their need and success. Where such schools have been established the classes are filled, he asserts. Where one or two courses of a similar nature are offered, enrollment is overwhelming.

We do not realize that our young people are thinking upon these problems and are spending their time arguing and discussing them, stated Dr. Kent. He added that although the outward appearance of modern

Get In the Parade Today! SINGLE-WEEK YELL CONTEST OPENS TODAY

All Husker Fans May Try for Prize of Two Season Tickets.

Need for several new yells for Cornhusker athletics has led the Innocents to formally open a contest for the best original Nebraska yell. The contest is open to any person interested in University competition in this vicinity, and the winner will be awarded two season tickets to Scarlet and Cream athletic events for this season by the N club.

The yell contest, open to all students as well as any person interested in Nebraska athletics, starts today. It will be a single-week affair closing at 6 o'clock Thursday, October 11. The submitted yells will be tried out before different companies on the parade field with the Innocents acting as judges. All yells must be mailed to the Chairman of Cheerleaders, Station A, Lincoln, before Thursday afternoon of next week.

Similar competitions have been held in former years and have produced numerous cheers. The winning yell of the present contest will probably be used at the home-coming football game with Kansas, October 20. The author will be announced in the Nebraskan as soon as the best yell has been chosen.

"Are We Going to Have a Team This Fall?"--Uncle Jimmy Husker

"Well, how are the boys coming? Are we going to have another great team this fall?"

The Old Grad settled down in the chair in the club lounge and looked expectantly at Uncle Jimmy. It was a warm night for early October and Uncle Jimmy shook out a handkerchief, wiped a generous expanse of bald head, polished his shell-rimmed spectacles and regarded the Old Grad quizzically.

"Well, I know what you mean, O. G., but it's hard to answer. I don't seem to have that utter confidence in my judgment that I once had. I guess it's a sign of advancing age. I just don't seem to know. I know, however, that there are a lot of fellows who do have that uncanny, almost superhuman sixth sense concerning football. It is a positive gift that they suddenly acquire along about this time of the year and that stays with them until long after the final whistle blows in November. One glance at the first

500 FANS SEE VARSITY MAUL FROSH GRIDMEN

Dawson Puts Warriors Thru Passing, Line-bucking, and End-running in Final Scrimmage Before Game.

TWENTY-FOUR HUSKERS WILL GO TO ILLINOIS

Dewitz and Noble Break Away for Touchdowns Around Yearling Ends; Lewellen and Hartman Show Form.

The Scarlet grid warriors who will make the trip to Urbana, Illinois, are:

Captain Lewellen.	Westopol.
Noble.	Hendrickson.
H. Dewitz.	McGlosson.
R. Dewitz.	Halbersleben.
Hartman.	Rorby.
McAllister.	Hill.
Rhodes.	Collins.
Weir.	Bloodgood.
Bassett.	Gately.
Berquist.	Locke.
Ogden.	Randolph.
Hutchison.	Robertson.

Before a crowd of 500 enthusiastic Scarlet and Cream followers the "fighting Cornhuskers" Wednesday put on their last scrimmage before the opening game at Urbana next Saturday.

Coach Dawson put the warriors through everything from passing to head-to-head bucking on the scrimmage line. At first the squad was divided according to the positions for which the candidates were aspiring and each group went through their respective fundamentals for about an hour. Following that came a short "skull" practice and then a battle royal with Coach Young's pride.

The freshmen took the offensive at the start and duplicated their performance of Tuesday but soon the Varsity hit their stride and the frosh onslaught was fruitless. After many futile attempts at the Cornhusker forward wall the yearlings attempts end running but they got but few yards before McAllister or Rhodes would break up the play.

When it came time for the Varsity to try a whirl at the offense the freshmen were almost helpless. Time after time Herb Dewitz and Dave Noble got away for touchdowns around the first-year ends and Lewellen and Hartman were plowing through the line for yardage on almost every down. There happened to be a Mr. Brown in the stands whose "hangouts" is South Bend, Indiana. It was also learned that he was "sorta" interested in the Notre Dame team.

The lineup that was sent against the freshmen was: Team "A": McAllister and Rhodes, ends; Weir and Bassett, tackles; Berquist and Ogden, guards; Hutchison, center; Captain Lewellen, quarter; Herb Dewitz and (Continued on Page 4)

Special on Illinois Game for Sunday

Cornhusker football fans will be given a special treat in Sunday's Nebraskan. A special story of the contest at Illinois which opens the 1923 Husker grid season, will be written by a Nebraskan sports writer who has been in close touch with Cornhusker athletics for the past two years. He will accompany the team and will wire a complete story for Sunday's paper of how Nebraska's "Fighting Cornhuskers" perform in the inaugural fray of the season. He will give an accurate and detailed account of the game, explaining outstanding features of the play, telling where the Huskers showed the greatest strength, where the Scarlet was weak, and also, possibly, giving a comparison between "Big Ten" and Missouri Valley football.

GRID-GRAPH IN OPERATION FOR ILLINOIS GAME

Board Fifteen by Twelve Feet Shows Game Play-by-Play—Formations Employed, Players Used, and Path of Ball.

MINIATURE FIELD TO BE INSTALLED IN GYM

Band and Cheerleaders Will "Whoop It Up" as at Home Games; N Club Leases the Board for Foreign Games.

Thousands of Nebraska students are planning on seeing the Illinois game Saturday afternoon.

The band will be there in full force and the cheerleaders will lead the throng in rousing yells. But instead of floating out across the football field, the cheers will echo from the roof of the gymnasium in the Armory.

For the first time in the history of the University extensive plans are being made to enable all of the students to see a "foreign" game play-by-play. A device known in all of the larger colleges in the country, and called a "Grid-graph Score-board" is being leased by the N club for this and every other out-of-town game played this year.

The board is fifteen feet long and twelve feet wide. In the center of it is a frosted glass, ten feet long and five feet wide, representing the football field. The entire apparatus is worked by electricity.

On the side of the glass representing the field are the names of all the players. Beside each name there is an electric light bulb that flashes every time that player is used. When the play is a double one, the lights flash for both men.

Beneath the glass is a list of all the plays and penalties used in the game, with a light opposite each play. Every time a play is made on the field, one of these lights is flashed showing exactly which one it was.

The most interesting part of the apparatus is the field itself. There are numerous lights in back of the frosted glass which show the exact ward pass is thrown, the lights show progress of the ball. When a forward it wags thrown from, where it fell "dead" if not caught, and where it was taken.

Those who have seen the board in action at other colleges say that when the game is in progress it is easy for the student to imagine he is on the sidelines.

Get In the Parade Today! Journalism Student to Cover Convention for Associated Press

The Omaha manager of the Associated Press, J. A. Rawlings, has assigned William Carlson, '25, School of Journalism, of Havelock to cover the convention of the Nebraska League of Women Voters at Aurora, October 4 and 5.

ARMORY TO Q STATION FOR RALLY

Captain Lewellen and Other Members of Team Will Be Called on to Talk to Students.

COACH DAWSON TO SPEAK AT DEPOT

Band Leads Line; Corncocks Will Direct Marchers; Innocents in Charge of Celebration.

The parade to start the Husker eleven to Illinois will form at 3:30 in front of the Armory for the march to the Burlington station.

Twenty-four gridsters are going to Urbana for the opening game of the season. By leaving the campus a little early the long line will have time to reach the depot and get organized for cheering and song-singing.

Coach Dawson will give a short talk before the train leaves and Captain Lewellen will also have a few words to say. Several other members of the team will probably be called on to express their ideas of what they are going to do to Coach Zupke's men.

The Cornhusker football machine has not had a chance to hear the entire student body cheer this year and today will be the only real cheering they will have had before they take the field at Urbana. Coach Dawson and Captain Lewellen say this handicaps the men somewhat and are urging every student to get in line and help the team along.

The Corncocks, Nebraska's pep organization, will be in uniform to direct the line of march from the campus to the station. The Innocents will be in direct charge of the parade. Director Quick of the University band will have 100 musicians ready to start at 3:15 sharp this afternoon.

Students will find notices on all class-room boards today urging them to attend the rally. Classes will not be dismissed but there are very few classes at this time of the afternoon and the committee in charge hopes that everyone will be in the parade. There will be no special order of marching.
