THE DAY IS COMING.

Nebraska spirit is assuming proportions that will equal the fight that the Cornhusker football team will put up against the Notre Dame squad. Classes, groups of students, and individuals are meeting the issue and allowing their real Nebraska spirit to declare itself. There is, however, plenty of opportunity for students to keep the good work moving.

Bear in mind that there is one thing that every Nebraskan intends to do and that is to fight. Fight does not mean to say so, but it means also to really do it. It is for you to fight, it is for the team to fight, and it will surely follow that Notre Dame will know that she has hit an element that did not yield readily.

The W. A. A. will be selling cushions at the stadium during the football game Saturday. The women have bought a great number of the cushions and they are very anxious to sell them. When you buy one, bear in mind that the W. A. A. gives half of the profit from the sales toward the stadium.

MAKE A PLEDGE, FRESHMEN.

You are a student at the University of Nebraska and you are a member of the student body, freshman. Now that you are here, and that you probably will be here for four years, isn't it logical that you will make a pledge toward the Memorial stadium? Would you care about claiming the stadium as part of your institution if you did not help pay for it? The payments are easy and the cause is worthy. Make a pledge.

BIZAD DAY.

Every year the students in the College of Business Administration take a day off to play and to get together to build up the spirit of that college. Although quite young as far as the University is concerned, that college has grown very rapidly and has become one of the most important units in this institution. To keep up that standard and to assert themselves, the students in it are taking a holiday. By so doing, they are helping Nebraska and are making their college better for their action.

If you are a Bizad student, you should attend the annual celebration and get in with your college. The college needs your support and you will benefit by the concentrated effort being made.

ATTEND THAT RALLY.

In the history of the University of Nebraska there was probably never a more enthusiastic rally and profitable rally than was held the night before Thanksgiving last year. Even when the Huskers held Michigan to a tie, even when the team returned victorious from Pitt, there was certainly no more enthusiasm than was shown by the students at the Notre Dame rally last year. But that is history.

The point now is for every student in the University to enter the notation in his N book to the effect that he will be at the rally Friday evening. This will be the final test and it is for the students to prove their worth.

OBSERVATION OF TRADITIONS.

There still seems to be the impression among many on the campus that the green cap enforcement rule is a joke. It is such if you but consider it such, and if you do, you are trying to shatter a Nebraska tradition by sheer stubbornness that is not the consensus of opinion. You have adopted a stand that you know is not in keeping with the customs of many years and that is not agreeable to the majority. Although the majority is not always right this matter of green caps merits consideration for more reasons than because the majority are in favor of it. Freshmen coming to this Univer-

Contributions Are Invited

The Rag Doll says that since we have had Homecoming week, Mid-Semester week might be termed farewell week.

EVOLUTION.

First fish to second fish: Aw, go take a walk!

Wonder if the colored gentlemen who was standing on O street this morning with a shotgun in his arms was looking for rabbits.

Ssssssh!

Let us whisper a dark secret. The fuse blew out!

Why does a chicken run across the street?

She probably would be in a stew if she didn't.

This is a singular case, murmured the verb.

Why do you know that there are traditions here and it is not their place to try to break them. Although this is a democratic institution, freshmen cannot come here and expect to mold the environment to suit their particular desires and fancies. They are expected to accept the leadership of upperclassmen until they become upperclassmen themselves. They are not given full consideration until they have become a part of the University of Nebraska.

No tradition can be enforced. No man at Nebraska can be forced to observe any of the practices that have been in effect for many years but he will find a cold greeting and a lonely world about the campus if he does not choose to live as Nebraskans live. He cannot expect anything else and the cold facts are that he will get nothing else. His attitude may be called independence, but it could better be termed stubbornness.

If there is an objection to green caps, it is solely one of the many objections that are found every place that you may go. It is not a joke and it is not done for the funny appearance that it may give to some persons. Look into the real situation from the standpoint of a student in what we call the greatest institution on earth.

Student Opinion.

Contributions to this column are very welcome and invited. Student opinion is valuable to the editorial staff of the paper, consequently we welcome it.

To the Editor:

Owing to happenings of late, and comments written on the subject of the freshman green caps, the writer has taken it up on himself to discuss the subject.

In the first place, let it be clearly understood that I am strongly in favor of the strict enforcement of the practice that has become a tradition at Nebraska. However, let it also be understood that I realize the necessity of using good judgment in this enforcement.

But anyone who feels that the men who wear the green at Nebraska are treated unjust, or too severely, let him visit some of our neighboring, say in the Missouri Valley. Then if he finds that the freshmen at Nebraska suffer undue punishment (if indeed they do suffer at all), it is really the duty of each of us to criticize.

As an instance, see what our neighbor, University of Missouri does with her freshmen. In the first place, as here, the freshman must buy their caps. The matter of fellowship is carried out to a more full extent by having the freshmen of the Law college wear purple; the freshmen of the School of Engineering, green; the School of Journalism, yellow, etc. Besides this, the freshman must not be out after 9:30 any night, or be caught in any pool hall of the city until Thanksgiving, the day of their Olympics. If a freshman be caught walking on the grass of the campus, or be caught smoking on the campus he is subject to punishment as the student senate sees fit.

The punishment that the student senate usually imposes on the offenders is one that here, is considered harsh. The freshman must be taught that he is duty bound to be loyal to the school and conform to the school's traditions and laws. If he is determined to violate these laws he should be subject to punishment, and the punishment at our neighboring school is the well yielded paddle. AN UPPERCLASSMAN.

Dear Editor:

Why not let a freshman express his opinion about this young man who refused to wear his green cap? Does he want to make a name for himself or does he want to lose the name of a loyal Nebraska freshman? To my mind he has already lost it and has gained the reputation of being "a lot of small-town stuff." If

The Rag Doll says that she was recently told that she was the only doll on the staff, but she is used to being stuffed.

We never knew before that professors were common laborers. However, we heard one called a low grader the other day.

She sat in the barber's chair She spilled a wicked lute He giggled and gazed and gapped And cut it all off behind.

"Oh, what a blot on my life," said the man who spilled ink on his autobiography.

THINGS TO WORRY OVER.

Do you realize that if you counted all the telephone poles on the way to school every day people might begin to think of you as polish.

he were told not to wear a green cap, he would be the first to buy one and wear it. He reminds me of a person who commits murder just to see his name in the paper. He doesn't belong here! C. N.
