ATTEND THE RALLY.

The last football rally of the year will be held tonight in the Armory. Plans have been completed to make it the biggest and best rally of the year. There are a number of reasons why all students should make a special effort to attend this rally tonight.

This rally will afford the student body their last chance to show the team that they are backing them, win or lose. It will be the last rally for seven regulars on the football team, who will play their last game for the Scarlet and Cream tomorrow. It will be the last rally for those students who will graduate next June.

In view of these facts, it is no more than fitting that every student be present at the rally tonight, to give a last great demonstration of his loyalty and support of the 1923 Cornhusker football team, which will go down in athletic history as the conquerors of the Notre Dame "wonder team" of 1923.

The superb spirit shown by the students during the past grid season is without a parallel in Nebraska history, and Nebraska students must not fail now. Nebraska must close the season tonight with the greatest rally ever held at the University.

Attend the Rally.

THE COLLEGE COMIC.

There are signs of a chance for the better in the College comic publications. Since the war these publications seem to have taken a rather childish delight in dipping their fingers in the mud. They have attempted to be very, very naughty but have not even succeeded in being interesting. Their continual over emphasis of the sex and the liquor themes and their stupid lack of good taste has made the magazines sickening and tiresome.

Now comes the Harvard Lampon with the announcement that it has changed policy and that from now material will be selected because of cleverness and not because of pseudo-smartness and sophistication. The Notre Dame Comic has followed and there are indications that other magazines will fall in line. This movement should be a relief to those who wish the College Comic to assume its rightful position. As a magazine of real humor and satire no one can rightfully object to it but when it becomes filled with exceedingly dull and rather questionable writing, it certainly may be objected to as a waste of time, energy and print stock.

This change may have its effect upon our own campus. There is talk of the revival of the Nebraska Comic Magazine. If it is revived let us hope that it follows the policy inaugurated by the Lampon and bars from its pages the sort of thing that has characterized most college humorous publications for several years.

CREDIT WHERE CREDIT IS DUE.

Beginning today, the names of fifteen reporters on the Daily Nebraskan are being published in the masthead of the paper. This step has been made by the management of the paper, in conjunction with the publication board, in an effort to give some regard or recognition to those students who have been conscientiously working on the staff this semester.

Each of the persons whose names are printed in the staff of reporters have been hard at work on the Nebraskan for over two months this fall. Their work is done quietly and without ostentation, but nevertheless it forms a most important part in the life and progress of the University. Their only reward is experience and the personal satisfaction gained from the knowledge of work well done.

This list is only a fraction of the students who are working on the paper. Only those students who have done a large amount of work, who the contributing to the issue each day, are on this list. The names of other reporters will be added to the list as soon as their work on the paper justifies the honor.

Student Opinion.

Contributions to this column are very welcome and invited. Student opinion is valuable to the editorial staff of the paper, consequently we welcome it.

To the Editor:

Dear friend Weaver: A second worth—ah! How the ladies do appreciate your dictation regarding their dress. 'Tis well said. We strive to please. By tomorrow all the "high collars, tweed suits, swagger coats, and mannish ties will be donated to rummage sales and the sweet young things will be scouring the five and ten to "match the shade of their eyes," and will trip to 8 o'clocks in dainty taffeta formals with ribbons—oh inches and inches, and yards and yards of ribbon. And the tall girls will look like rainbow-shades, Christmas trees and the plump co-eds like boudoir lamp shades. Small matter. The worthy males dictate and we follow. According to the gentlemen, our future happiness depends on them so they must be pleased at any cost.

Friend Weaver—you had the privilege of expressing your opinions on feminine dress so let a co-ed outline a few improvements for you. In the first place—a girl hates a "feminine man" even more than a man hates a "mannish girl." A girl hates blue and ivory cigarette holders, and soft dainty hands attached to a man are as enraging as a red flag to a bull in most cases. If a girl must be dainty and feminine, then a man should be mannish! He should possess strength and endurance and develop enough muscle to carry a notebook without tiring.

Maybe we could arrange a course of lectures on correct dressing by Willy Weaver. Wouldn't the hall be filled with co-eds, big ones, little ones, fat ones, slim ones, ugly ones, pretty ones—all willing to learn how to attract the masculine world! Or maybe you could arrange private lessons—divulge your little secrets of feminine charm. A divine idea! Que sait? Anyway, may I thank you in behalf of the girls of this University? Very doubtfully yours, A CO-ED.
