CORNHUSKER SPIRIT.

Results of the Cornhusker drive to sell the 1924 yearbook are proving very gratifying, not only from the viewpoint of the number of books sold, but also from the viewpoint of Cornhusker spirit. The spirit and loyalty which the students and campus organizations are showing in helping to put this drive across is to be commended, and Nebraska may be proud of the school spirit that the success of this drive indicates.

While lacking the thrills and excitement found in the heat of a football campaign, such a drive as is being carried on by the Cornhusker this week is just important a time to show school spirit and loyalty as before the annual Notre Dame game. The spirit that is being manifested in the Cornhusker drive shows that the wonderful school enthusiasm born before the Notre Dame game hasn't died, but is still alive and an integral part of the Cornhusker institution.

NOT POSSIBLE.

City Ordinance 1631 of Lincoln, which prohibits a public dance to continue after 11:30, makes impossible the granting of the request of the cadet officers to continue the military ball tonight until 12:30 or a later hour. This ordinance, under which the military ball would fall, declares further that anyone remaining at a public dance later than 11:30 is violating the ordinance.

But suppose, perhaps, that this ordinance could be violated with impunity by the officers in charge of the ball. The impropriety of such action on the part of the University would be serious. If the University, which is supposed to develop respect for the laws, would contenance the violation of a city law by students, who could prophesy the bad opinion of the University and University students which would be broadcast by such conduct? Especially at a time when the University is being constantly subjected to the criticism of the most searching eyes in the state, the amount of harm that would be done the University by such action could hardly be forecast.

CAPTAINS

Captains to lead the 1924 Cornhusker football and cross-country teams have been chosen. To each of these two men has come one of the greatest honors that the University can bestow, and we wish to congratulate them. Both of these men were outstanding performers on their respective athletic teams this fall, and their honors are richly earned.

The tasks, which they have before them as leaders of Cornhusker athletic teams cannot be overestimated. Their duty it is to show the way to the other men on their teams, to set an example by their efforts, and to instill in each man on the team the spirit of co-operation and loyalty that has always characterized Nebraska's athletic teams.

Their position demands that they be leaders of men. When Nebraska is losing, or things look dark, it is the captain who is called upon to inspire the team to greater and nobler efforts. The captain must set an example for his men to follow, and upon the success of his individual efforts, the success of the team efforts largely depend.

Captains Weir and Zimmerman, we congratulate you, and wish you success and new honor as captains of Nebraska's athletic teams.

SMOKING

The Board of Regents has ruled against smoking on the campus. A

RAG CARPET

Help! Help!

The Rag Doll says that a lot of students are within a degree of graduating—maybe.

He—"How did you hurt your hand?"
Him—"Oh, I carelessly dashed out the door this morning."

Educated Tramp—"Madam, I am always uncertain about my meals so I frequently bolt them."

Did you grasp her meaning when she said "no?"
Well, not exactly.

A Convict Melody
"Jail, jail, the gang's all here."

And what course are you taking in College?
Oh, I'm holding down a step on Social Science.

"My hair is getting to be a problem."
"Why?"
"Can't decide whether to multiply or divide."

At the colleges kiss-stealing is now listed as petting larceny.

large number of students violate this rule daily. The rule was made because the practice does not help outsiders to gain a favorable impression of the University, but the real problem connected with the violation of this rule is even more fundamental.

In this violation of a rule we see what seems to be characteristic of Americans. It is an unwillingness on the part of the individual to obey a law which he does not favor. On the campus we see the beginning of what turns out to be a serious problem in political life. The student who smokes on the campus sees his attitude carried to its logical conclusion by the violators of the eighteenth amendment and of the speed laws.

The fact that the students do not receive training to obey laws, even though they do not believe in them, is, in itself, a reproach to both the educational system and the student. If a student does not learn to assume his obligations as a citizen, his university course is useless, no matter how much Latin, chemistry and literature he may know.

Student Opinion.

Contributions to this column are very welcome and invited. Student opinion is valuable to the editorial staff of the paper, consequently we welcome it.

Dear Editor:

The football season is over and there are men who have played their game for Nebraska and for intercollegiate football. Outstanding from the group, one can pick Captain Verne Lewellen as the type of a man who typifies everything that is good in a man, in a football player, and in a leader of the Cornhuskers.

In every game that he played, he was a moral force. He was sincere in his efforts and bore his load of responsibility with a grim silence—even when scandal-mongers broke loose with their poison. He was a leader, he was a real Cornhusker, and he commanded the admiration and respect of every man who saw him play or had the opportunity to meet him.

He has played his last game for Nebraska—but he has left his name behind. He will be remembered as the man who led the Cornhuskers of 1923. He will be remembered as the captain who faced early-season setbacks with determination to win the next game. Whether he be remembered by name or by deeds, his career at Nebraska has made a better Nebraska by virtue of his presence in the student body.

Verne Lewellen has played his final game for Nebraska. He spoke at his last rally as captain of the football team. He expressed regret at leaving. Students express the same measure of regret and feel that Nebraska has lost a valuable leader, a valuable student, and a man well worthy of the name of a great Cornhusker.

EMMETT V. MAUN.

Dear Editor:

I see that the time for all-American football teams and "representative Cornhuskers" has rolled around again.

I'm too awed by the personalities of Walter Camp and Eckersall to say anything about their gridiron selections, but I'd like to make a few comments in passing on this "representative Cornhusker" business.

Selection of "representative Cornhuskers" is always a source of genuine amusement to me. Choosing five girls and five boys who are to bear the burden of being typical Nebraskans—"representative Cornhuskers"—has always seemed laughable.

I didn't know "representative Cornhuskers" were in season again until I saw a girl with her pencil to mouth trying to remember the name of that "sweet" fellow she met at open house and who played on the football team.

Picking out five persons as types seems unfair, not only to them, but also to the masses of untypical. Is the gratification the five receive able to compensate for the sad knowledge of the other four thousand nine hundred and ninety students that they aren't representative?

Then, again, look at the responsibility the ten "representatives" re-ceiv' A "representative Cornhusker" should hesitate before drinking pop of wearing loud ties—he might not run true to type if he did.

The awful knowledge that you are, out of five thousand students, "representative," would seem to me ghastly. Of course, I'm not "representative," but I imagine the thought I had been selected as a "type" of 5,000 odd students would peek at me out of the dark and leer at me when I turned out the lights.

In conclusion, my dear editor, I think "representative Cornhuskers" are the apertures in the macaroni. Their selection is about as uniform as the husbands of Irene Castle, and the responsibility is greater than Coolidge's.

I know however, that like mid-semester examinations, we'll always have "representative Cornhuskers" only I hope the "representatives" don't take themselves too seriously.
