OFFICE HOURS

Every afternoon with the exception of Friday and Sunday.

TAKE AN INVENTORY.

Today is the last day of regular school for this semester. Classes are being attended today for the last time this term. On looking back over the semester, it seems like a terribly short period. The time has gone fast, but much has happened. On reviewing your record for the last semester, what do you find inscribed on the log of your memory for this period? In other words, what have you done?

What have you learned from the various courses on your schedule? Have the subjects been really worthwhile to you, or do they merely represent so many credit hours? Have you made an honest endeavor to meet your professor half-way in the course, and to get all that you could out of it?

What attitude have you taken towards the faculty and your fellow students during the past semester? Have you constantly been on the outlook to make new friends among those you come in contact with, or have you been one of those self-complacent individuals who wouldn't go out of their way to make friends with anyone?

How have you made use of your spare time during the past term? Have you devoted it to worthwhile endeavors, and educational recreation such as reading good literature? Or have you wasted your time going to movies, and indulging too heavily in other forms of idle entertainment?

Have you kept your college life in its proper relation to your life as a whole? Have you been broad-minded, and in close contact with the outside world, or have you been wrapped up in a one-sided college life?

What have you done to improve yourself during the past semester? Have you eliminated any of your little faults, or acquired any new ones? Have you made a conscious effort to develop a winning personality by showing a heart-felt interest in other people?

Answer each one of these questions honestly. Decide just where you have made your mistakes during the past term and resolve to rectify them. Take an inventory and "Know Thyself."

The Daily Illini of the University of Illinois has the following program "For a Better Illinois" printed in the masthead of the paper:

1. An Honor System based upon personal honor.
 2. A well organized, fully developed unit and group system.
 3. Clean student politics. Campus democracy; not campus oligarchy.
 4. A strong local interfraternity organization with power to act.
 5. A more genuine and general recognition of scholarship.
- These principles speak for themselves. With the possible exception of the fourth precept, there is no reason why a similar program for a greater Nebraska should not be adopted by the Cornhusker school. A consistent and earnest effort by the student body and campus organizations to achieve these ideals would do much towards making Nebraska a bigger and better University.

Four students were dismissed from the University of Minnesota Monday for cheating in exams. Cheating in exams is a practice which sways in present in a University, no matter whether the honor system or rigid supervision is used.

Cheating in exams would be largely eliminated if the honest student would view the cheating student with an attitude of disgust and disappointment. Students are, first of all, social beings, and if those around the cheaters disapprove of what they are doing, they will be quick to stop the practice. All too often the honest student takes an envious attitude towards the cheater, an act which in itself glorifies the wrong-doer and encourages him to further misdeeds.

Wasting time is one of the great faults of young America. Particularly might this little truism be applied to the college students of America. They waste their time on every excuse, and if excuses are lacking, they waste their time anyhow. During the week the student idles away precious moments as often as possible, but on the week-end is where the big loss of time comes in.

The student uses up Friday afternoon and evening resting up from the week of school work, Saturday he has his recreation, and on Sunday he is at least religious enough not to defile the Sabbath by conscientious scholastic endeavor. There, in a sentence, is the way many students spend each week-end.

Admittedly, students should not spend the whole week-end studying and preparing lessons. Nevertheless the student should study in the week-end as well as during the week. If the student will plan his week-end as he does his schedule of classes, he will have little trouble getting in his studies, and at the same time resting up from the week's work.

THE PLAN IN BRIEF

I. That the United States shall immediately enter the Permanent Court of International Justice, under the conditions stated by Secretary Hughes and President Harding in February, 1923.

II. That without becoming a member of the League of Nations as at present constituted, the United States shall offer to extend its present co-operation with the League and participate in the work of the League as a body of mutual counsel under conditions which

1. Substitute moral force and public opinion for the military and economic force originally implied in Articles X and XVI.

2. Safeguard the Monroe Doctrine.

3. Accept the fact that the United States will assume no obligations under the Treaty of Versailles except by Act of Congress.

4. Propose that membership in the League should be opened to all nations.

5. Provide for the continuing development of international law.
