match on March 1. The wrestling team, by virtue of its defeat of Northwestern three weeks ago, holds a place in the 1000 per cent column in the standing of the teams in the Western Intercollegiate Wrestling association.

ENGINEERS TO STUDY INDUSTRIAL NEEDS

Five-year Program of Investigation Proposed for Colleges.

That the College of Engineering will participate in the comprehensive study begun by the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education at its recent meeting at the University of Michigan, is one of the developments reported by Dean O. J. Ferguson. Colleges from Maine to Texas sent sixty-five delegates who discussed the proposed five-year program for engineering colleges.

To meet the progressive demands of changing civilization the society has begun investigation of educational conditions—needs, shortcomings, and relations to industry.

Engineering schools will cooperate by investigating their own status. Students will be classified with respect to early training and college preparatory work, and data will be collected showing their college history and placement and development in the industrial field. The college of engineering plans to compile information concerning its alumni.

Experiment Stations Important
 President Rickards of Lehigh University formerly dean of the college of engineering of the University, stressed the importance of experiment stations in engineering colleges. Nebraska has just established an experiment station to work along the lines suggested by President Rickards.

The value of such a plant is fourfold: stimulation of men in scientific investigations; training of investigators; production of data of industrial significance; and the publication of results. Foremost among these points, President Rickards placed the development of men.

PUBLISH PAMPHLET ON LABOR TURNOVER

Extension Division Brings Out Third Series of Printed Booklets.

"Labor Turnover in Nebraska Department Stores" is the title of a booklet just published by the University Extension division, the eighth of a series on "Nebraska Studies in Business" that is being compiled by the committee on business research of the College of Business Administration. This committee is composed of Professors F. E. Wolfe, chairman, G. O. Virtue, O. R. Martin, and Dana F. Cole.

The booklet is the result of research on the question by seminar students in the college and the committee. It contains tables of the rates of labor turnover in Nebraska, and chapters on "The Problem of Labor Turnover," "The Rate of Labor Turnover," and several others. A series of booklets of which this is the third is now being published monthly by the University Extension division. The first was Professor Fogg's "Letter to the Debate Seminar" and the second one of a series on library work.

Different departments of the University compile these pamphlets and send them to other universities and to business men of the state. The first copies are complimentary, additional copies being furnished at a small cost. Orders for the series on "Nebraska Studies in Business" have been received from all parts of the country and one from a Cuban bank.

WORDS - - WORDS - - WORDS (Columbia Spectator.)

Down at Princeton they are again turning intellectual somersaults. First the faculty was busily engaged in selecting the ten books most necessary in case of desert island stranding. Now the faculty is occupied with choosing the six most important words in the English language.

We offer a few suggestions on our own account. By omitting one word they at Princeton, might use the semi-famous motto "For God, for country and for Yale." Or in a pinch "in the City of New York" might come in handy. Were Columbia men asked to select six vital words they would undoubtedly reply, "Kindly call at your earliest convenience."

All of which is aside from the point. We doubt whether, after Princeton has determined on the six most important words, the world will have progressed to any appreciable degree or any significant contribution will have been made to this planet's stock of knowledge. Still, if Princeton professors need a fireside recreation of this sort, far be it from us to deprive them of it.

Big business needs big men

There is room and need for capable men in all the allied activities of big business. But nowhere is there greater need or greater opportunity than in that very essential service to all business—Insurance (Fire, Marine and Casualty).

Insurance, as a profession, affords contact with the most vital activities of the commercial and industrial world.

The Insurance Company of North America, the oldest American Fire and Marine Insurance Company, has been an integral part of big business since 1792 and the earliest beginning of national affairs. Out of this long experience it urges those who are about to choose a calling to consider the world-wide influence of the insurance field.
