THE NEW SINGLE TAX PLAN SEEMS PRACTICAL.

The Student Council has offered a new single tax plan, that provides for three drives each year, a separate campaign for athletics, one for activities, and another for charities. This new plan seems to have remedied many of the objections that were offered against the other plan. The new plan seems practical. Although it would consist of three campaigns, it would eliminate the ten or twelve that we now have and would partially solve this problem.

The new plan would be just and fair to every student of the University, for it divides the activities into three separate groups and the student can take all or two or one or none of these.

This plan would not work a hardship upon any student, because it is up to the individual to subscribe or not, as he sees fit. Then too, each person can support those activities in which he is more interested and no one will be forced to contribute towards activities in which he has not the slightest interest.

The new plan should be acceptable to the athletic department as it leaves the sale of athletic tickets in the same position as before. There will be separate sale of athletic tickets the same as in previous years.

The new plan is necessarily of an optional nature and there will probably be no need of submitting it to the Board of Regents.

The new plan is just and fair to every student. It reduces the number of selling campaigns to three. It is optional to the student whether he contributes or not. The plan should meet with the approval of all concerned.

"THE MARK OF A MAN."

Honesty, decency, chivalry, self-respect and industry were pronounced "The Marks of a Man" by President Burton of the University of Michigan speaking at a convocation there recently.

President Burton's enumeration of these five fundamental qualities was prompted by a consideration of certain things in the life of the University which he regards as evil and by recent occurrences which he characterized as being "about as raw as anything I have encountered in fifteen years of administrative appearance."

He exhorts the students to a sense of their responsibility to the University and described the prevalence of laziness, vulgarity, lack of self-restraint and individuality among students. He made it clear that he welcomes intelligent criticism of University policies and conditions, but he finds most of it "futile if not absurd." He deplored "the unusual facilities for self-expression by certain unrepresentative minorities."

President Burton is a great educator, and we greatly respect his opinions. Some of his criticisms of Michigan students will apply to University of Nebraska. At least the principles he sets forth, are worthy of the thought of all.

THE SINGLE TAX.
Cambridge, Nebraska

To the Editor:
As a student in high school I thought that Nebraska athletics were the greatest in the world and that a football game was a signal for every student to drop what he was doing and go out and boost for his team. But much to my sorrow, I found other conditions existing. Many students think nothing of working on Saturday afternoon of a game. Others will indulge in other pleasures, while still more think they can't afford an ath-

SONG OF SPRING.

Water, water everywhere
No matter where you seek,
I wouldn't mind it, only
My galoshes leak.

"Do you hear from your son at college very much?"
"No, he doesn't get into trouble very often."

PROBABLY.

"Yep, poor old Jones was struck by lightning."
"Goodness, I hope it wasn't in a vital spot."

The Rag Doll says that the fraternity that will head the scholarship list will be the one that is at the top.

Sambo: Yussir, this is a wild turkey. See dat shot.
Rastus: Huh, dat shot was probably meant for you.

Bright: What are you tearing up.
Dumb (tearing up test paper): Nothin'.

She: Oh yes, I would make up my work only the dean does not approve of makeup.

Blazor: Why don't you wear your galoshes?
She: What, in all this mud!

letic ticket. Now all this seemed terrible to me because of my high school training. There a football game is a big event; all the business houses close and even the farmers stop corn shucking to go to the game. That is what I consider real support.

It seems to me that the single tax system as proposed for Nebraska would go a long way in uniting the student body behind athletics, debates and other school activities. A good example was last year's basketball team. They lost many games but still had fair support. Why? Simply because students had tickets. Once there they were enthusiastic rooters.

If the single tax system were to be used many students would go to things which they never think of now, simply because it's paid for. Thus they help themselves, help the event they were seeing and make a more united student body.

I am strongly in favor of the single tax as far as University events are concerned, but not for the individual college activities such as papers, Farmer's Fair, and others. As far as working a hardship on some, it would merely increase the fees a little and no one would think about it after the first year or so.

IS HIGH SCHOLARSHIP WORTH WHILE?

(Daily Northwestern.)

The intensity of the new interest which is being paid to the subject of undergraduate scholarship and the low standard of campus attitude to the seriousness of study may be gleaned from the organized effort that the Alumni Association is devoting to the problem.

The morale of student regard for class-room activities has reached a point of stagnation. Study is not popular. It comes in for last consideration in students' time allotment, and usually the allotment is very scanty and insufficient. Its position in the rank of university duties is very subordinate. The chief ambition is merely to "get by" with a C and to ward off probation.

The general retort to any discussion of this subject is that "what a man learns in college won't do him a great deal of good after he is out, anyway." Answers which have been received to a questionnaire sent out to alumni tend to prove that the opposite is true.

The rebuttal to a presentation of the benefits of study is usually based on the comparative values of the various phases of campus life. Popular stress is laid on the development of character and personality to be gained from social contacts. And there is some truth in the statement. It is foolish to deny the good training derived in good fellowship, the building of poise and personality. But it must be remembered that the idea of social training was not the motive for establishing colleges and universities. Educational institutions are endowed for the purpose of higher learning. All benefits other than learning are results and not causes. They are secondary prizes which are included free of charge in tuition.

When it is deeply engraved on every student's mind that study is the great reason for his being at Northwestern, then will the consensus of opinion rally to the cause of higher scholarship.

High scholarship is worth while, not merely for making the mind a storehouse for so many facts and details, but for training the mind to think accurately and clearly. A mind that has been trained to thoroughness and concentration in college will continue to act in the same manner in later life. Thinkers are always in demand and there is a high price for their services. High scholarship develops good thinking, and good thinking is valuable. Did some one doubt that high scholarship is worth while? After all, are we not at Northwestern to train our minds?
