BE ON YOUR TOES, MEN!

A two-day inspection of the University R. O. T. C. starts Friday when representatives of the war department visit the various tactics classes and review the entire regiment.

Nebraska is one of the collegiate pioneers in military science. A great deal depends on the showing that we make before these visiting inspection officers.

Nebraska turns out wonderful teams, in all sports, that rank with the very best. Nebraska alumni have distinguished themselves and incidentally brought fame to their alma mater in all lines of work.

The faculty roster contains many names of national prominence and some of the greatest authorities in the world on certain subjects are here. It is up to the cadet to pass this inspection in such a way that our regiment will take the place that it deserves among the other Universities of the country.

It is up to the students taking drill to be on their toes during the present test in order that the visitors be favorably impressed. Our guests must leave with a high regard for the R. O. T. C. unit.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT.

Students might well be considering what they are going to do this summer. With vacation but a month away, one should begin laying plans. There are numerous employment agencies around the University and some of the colleges place their students directly.

The colleges of the University should do more of this. It is the most valuable training a student can receive, if he can get some practical application while he is getting the theoretical training offered in the various courses of instruction. Every college should have some organization to secure as many positions for students as possible, and by so doing they would thereby improve the work of the students.

A practical application of theoretical and technical training makes the courses more interesting. It is when students get the chance to put their knowledge into use that they begin to appreciate its value.

It would seem that the different department heads would secure places for as many of their students as possible. Many jobs no doubt could be provided for students during the summer and afford them of a means to make money and at the same time give them some practical experience.

Then the graduate would not be thrust into an entirely new atmosphere and the post-graduation adjustment would not be so trying.

THE FARMERS FAIR.

The students of the College of Agriculture, through their Farmers fair have a distinctive method of advertising their college and at the same time advertising the University of which they are a big part.

Because of the location of the campus, it is the common belief of many people that the College of Agriculture is an institution separated from the University of Nebraska. Others confuse the College of Agriculture with the School of Agriculture, which is the high school of the college founded for the purpose of giving agricultural training to high school students.

Just as the Engineers have their week, the Pharmacists their show, so do the Ags have their day. All of the Ags efforts in putting on a college activity is concentrated into one day. While most of the colleges put forth their efforts for University students only the general public is also invited to the Farmers fair. It is sponsored primarily to let University students and the University community find out about the activities of the college.

It is the largest student activity of its kind and is managed solely by the students of the College of Agriculture. One of the features of the

Now is the time to remember our professors with a May basket. Most of them remembered us.

Agent: Now Farmer Cornstassel, most of your children are in school and you ought to get them an encyclopedia.

Farmer: Heck, I guess I never rode to school.

One solution for the matter of a conveyance to Farmers fair is to go there in a tractor.

Mike: Huh, you're no sailor. You weren't ever on a boat in your life.
Pat: Faith, and I suppose you think I came from Ireland in a hack.

huge undertaking is that everyone works in preparation for it. In co-operating, the students are laying the foundation for the cooperative influence in the agricultural world of which they will become members after leaving College.

Every effort is put forth to entertain the visitors in the best way possible. The large campus will be the scene of the activities. The parade will go down O street.

An outdoor pageant will be a large free attraction. Another is the real wild west show. The usual carnival tents and sideshows, with the follies, snorphen, and the minstrels will be on the Midway which is the carnival grounds for the day.

The educational exhibits, contain exhibits from eighteen different departments of the institution. These are to be representative samples of the work which has been accomplished during the school year and will be instructive to visitors.

WHAT DO THEY WANT.

(Daily Kansan.)
An order of priests in Tibet is forced to gain their early education in cells isolated from all human intercourse. Food and water are poked through narrow holes to them, and they are left to their own thoughts. They are supposed to meditate and become wise—instead they go insane. This is what most of the critics of the American colleges would wish upon the college man or woman of this country.

They write at length about the college men sitting in the front row of the Follies, or lying in the gutter tanked up on gin. The critic likes to mention dancing, smoking, and other "supposed-to-be" sins, as the chief aim and work of the college youth. He does not picture the five days in the week when study holds sway over the campus. Critics appear to want the college man to bury his nose in a book on the first day of school and come up for air on the last. At least that is the impression received from their writings.

It is up to the critic to get to work and offer some good honest criticism or else hold his peace. Mere sarcasm at something he doesn't understand will never reform the modern college, if it needs reforming. They could tell the college man or woman what they want, anyway. Let them offer something worth while, instead of barking at the moon.
