Golf Team Aspirants Play at Country Club
 The University golf team aspirants went around the Country club course yesterday afternoon for the first time. Ross P. Curtis, president of the Country club, notified the athletic office yesterday that the team could have the use of the course. It is one of the best in the state.
 No more playing was done in the tennis tournament because of the rain which made the courts practically unusable. The meet will have to be run off rapidly from now on because of the dual meet which is scheduled at Ames Saturday.

COCHRAN DISCUSSES FOREIGN RELATIONS
Freshmen Hear Lecture on "External Phases of American History."

"We are usually charged with provincialism, which is that state of mind which looks toward one's own immediate circle. We pay little attention to outside affairs. But we are not the only people who are provincial. In fact, we are considerably less provincial than most people," Prof. R. E. Cochran of the history department told freshman lecture students of the College of Arts and Sciences, this week. His subject was "External Phases of American History."
 "The first course in American history ever given in England was started last year at Oxford," he said.
 "Japan, a few years ago, refused to accept an endowment from an American millionaire to install a chair of American history at the Imperial University at Tokyo, saying that Japanese did not want to know anything about American history.
 "Americans are a composite people. We are cosmopolitan in our customs, in our institutions and in our make-up, and our foreign relations are affected accordingly.
 "The external phase of our history has been neglected. Up until the world war our foreign relations were not studied, but we now know that our relations with the world effect economics, prosperity, peace, politics—so they effect all of us. Every event, past, present and future, and every attitude is effected, is influenced, by our foreign relations. Those relations are therefore most important.
 "Those who have studied the financial conditions of 1893 have found that the hard times of that year were an outgrowth of our foreign relations.
 "It makes a lot of different whose glasses you are looking through when you study history," asserted the speaker. He told of having picked up a history such as is used in Canadian schools when he was visiting in that country. Regarding the war of 1812, the United States was described as a brutal aggressor making an unsuccessful attempt to take Canada, who burned cities and forced women and children into the bitter cold of winter weather. The outcome of that war was described as a great victory for Canada, since the Americans did not take Canada. A footnote mentioned the difficulty between England and the United States but nothing was said of the real cause of the war or the burning of Washington.
 MISSOURI—Dr. David Edward Thomas, who left the Congregational pastorate of the University of Nebraska two years ago to become head of the Bible school at the University of Missouri, is delivering a series of lectures at that place on the reconstruction in religion. Among the topics for discussion are "Immortality," "The Gospel of Eugenics," and "Modernism and Its Implications."

Several faculty members of the University appeared on the program of the Nebraska Academy of Science in the annual meetings at Omaha May 1, 2 and 3.
 The principal address of the general session Thursday evening was given by Prof. E. H. Barbour. It was an illustrated lecture on "Fossils of Nebraska," and included descriptions of his recent discoveries of fossils in the Agate ranch country.
 The sectional programs Friday and Saturday included papers by Dr. J. E. Weaver of the botany department on "Ecology in Relation to Plant Production," and Dr. P. B. Sears on "Native Vegetation of Ohio in Its Relation to Prehistoric Population."
 Several articles on "Intestinal Parasites" were given by Dr. F. D. Barker, which were based upon recent investigations of the subject. Dr. H. B. Sponsors to Present Booklets to Companies
 Attractive booklets containing the story of the flag of the United States and the national anthem will be presented by the company sponsors to every member of the R.O.T.C. at a special ceremony in connection with the military parade and review Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock.
 The booklets are the gift of E. H. Long of the College book store, who purchased about 1200 copies and presented them to the R.O.T.C. The pamphlets contain information on how to display and how to respect the flag, the story of "The Star Spangled Banner," the respect to be paid to the anthem, and a catechism on the flag and the anthem.
 Indiana—Indiana University will observe the opening of the first classes by a Centennial convocation on May 7.
