PLAN FEATURES FOR CLASS DAY

Council Meeting, Two Plays, Luncheon, and Dance on Alumni Program Today

URGE REGISTRATION AT TEMPLE HEADQUARTERS

An Alumni Council meeting, an informal luncheon, two plays presented by the University Players in the stadium, and an after-theater party, will be the chief features on the alumni program today. Alumni are urged to register at their headquarters in the Temple building some time during the day.

The Alumni Council meeting will be held at the Chamber of Commerce on Eleventh and P streets. The luncheon is planned for a general get-together of all alumni. The Law barbecue will also be held at noon. The Automobile club park will be the scene of these festivities. A parade down O street will precede the picnic. All members of the State Supreme court and the local Bar Association have been invited to attend the barbecue.

During the afternoon, some special class meetings, group and college reunions, will be held. Alumni are urged to use the afternoon for personal errands as the rest of the week will be too full of events.

The University Players will present two plays in the stadium in the evening beginning at 8 o'clock. A special platform and lighting system has been placed in the mammoth structure for the event. The first play to be given will be "Suppressed Desires," and a three-act play, "A Doctor in Spite of Himself," by Moliere will follow.

The cast for "Suppressed Desires" includes:

Mabel Myrtle Carpenter
Henrietta H. Alice Howell

The cast for "A Doctor in Spite of Himself" will be:

The plays will be followed by an open-air dance. The Coliseum floor has been removed to the space northwest of the Library and a canopy placed over it. The dance will begin at 10:30.

KEYSER TO REPLACE BUCKNER AS ORATOR

Head of Agronomy Department of Colorado College Will Give Speech

Emory Buckner, '04, will be unable to give the alumni oration Friday because he is engaged in the trial of a case which cannot be postponed. Val Keyser, '04, head of the Agronomy department of Colorado State Agricultural College at Fort Collins will give a short address in place of Mr. Buckner.

Mr. Buckner is a member of Root, Clark, Buckner & Howland, New York law firm. He telegraphed R. A. Bickford of Lincoln, also of '04, as follows:

"Am engaged in trial of case which cannot be postponed and will not be concluded until Friday. Have made every effort to secure compromise or adjournment. Physically impossible for me to go west. Please convey my great regrets and best wishes to members of class. Am sending to you tonight by registered a few remarks which you may wish to have someone read in place of my speech. Have looked forward with pleasure to Roundup and keenly regret unfortunate situation.

"Emory R. Buckner."
Mr. Buckner had not been able to attend any reunions since his graduation, and had been looking forward with great pleasure to a renewal of old acquaintances among the alumni and on the faculty. He has visited the campus twice during the summer. While in the university, Mr. Buckner was a member of Alpha Theta Chi, Innocents and the English club.

STUDENT COUNCIL ELECTS OFFICERS

Emmett Maun is Chosen President; Plans Made for Coming Year

PICK JOHNSON FOR NEW VICE-PRESIDENT

Emmett V. Maun, '25, Laurel, was chosen president of the student council for the next year by newly elected members at a meeting held to elect officers and to lay plans for business next year. Richard Johnson was elected vice-president of the council and Frances McChesney was chosen secretary.

The University administration has given an office to the council and plans for financing the activities of the organization are being worked out. Eight drives for funds have been scheduled with the council for next year and have been set for dates planned to work the least hardship upon students. The Mid-west convention gave the Nebraska delegates information in regard to points that have been undecided and the new council will act accordingly at the first meetings in the fall, Mr. Maun stated.

"The student council is fighting for a broader and broader field of activity to work in and as a representative body of students is justifying its existence as a university organization. We have plans for next year that will give students a greater voice in student affairs and will at the same time be for the benefit of all concerned," Mr. Maun added.

The council will have the power of application of a new organization for either recognizing or rejecting the recognition in the University. This power was derived by the authority of the Committee on Student Organizations which felt that the council would be better able to judge the necessity for organizations that might apply for recognition. The committee, however, will take final action on the council report.

Complete Text of Ivy Day Address

"Graduates and fellow students: Once again we are gathered to pay homage to the ideals and traditions of our University. For you who have come back, what golden memories, what reminiscences of delightful college days are conjured up by Ivy Day. Once again you review those flashes of treasured student experience which were woven in and out your stay at Nebraska. Time has not erased them; only softened them and made them all the more cherished.

"What a flood of college pranks, of friendships, of old ambitions come upon you as you once more stroll about the campus. A priceless thing, those memories. No wealth can buy them; no misfortune can take them away. They remain always with you, suffusing your life with a warm glow of sentiment. These are gifts, bestowed upon us by our Alma Mater as we leave her, and for which we are humbly thankful and reverent.

"And as for us, the undergraduates, Ivy day causes us to pause in our crowded student life and reflect just what Nebraska means to us. We find that we have unconsciously grown to love her. But it is only at the thought that we must leave her, that we appreciate how she has become a part of our lives, her sorrows her successes our successes, and her ideals our ideals.

"For a moment, we feel as we would at the loss of an old friend, that to lose her, is to die a little. May those with whom she is entrusted in the future, be mindful of her honor, and worthy of her attention.

Citizenship is Theme
"I have chosen as my theme, University citizenship. It implies both privileges and obligations. How proud are we to have the educational advantages offered us by the state! Throughout attendance at school we get a quickened sense for the real values; admiration for what is admirable; esteem for what is trashy or impermanent. Our capacity for enjoyment of the cultured and artistic is increased manifoldly. We may more closely approach realization of happiness because we are taught to recognize the better things in life, and are in some measure equipped to attain them.

"Through our varied hours of study, our minds are broadened. We see how diverse types of excellence may be; how various the tests; how flexible the adaptation. We learn to shun narrow-mindedness, to know a good man when we see him. Though we may not agree, yet we are led to respect the honest opinions of others. We can enjoy fellowship with those of other creeds without letting prejudice poison our temper.

"During our stay at college we are privileged to develop friendships—friendships which linger with us all through the years, based not upon selfish business opportunities, but upon mental and moral congeniality—friendships which turn back the years as you alumni meet again at the football games or the Homecoming.

Offers All Professions

"Our University offers us the entire review of trades, sciences, and professions and allows us to choose the one best fitted to our liking. After our choice we are given the research, all the experiments, all the counsel which has been devised on that study.

"Why are we the receivers of these bounties? First, because we are citizens of the greatest of democracies, whose principles of equality have developed a scale of education never before equalled. And second, because we are citizens of the state of Nebraska, which is investing her resources in our characters and intellects.

"As we have privileges, so too must we have obligations—obligations to the University itself and then obligations to the state. Our University is a community, a peculiar community, cut off from the outside world. It prospers or declines according to the standards of its citizens, the student body. As citizens, what are our duties to our community?"

Should Help Freshmen

"First, that of adjusting the younger younger classmen to his new environment. He is here, perhaps for the first time, on his own responsibility. Strange faces, a new sense of freedom, swift passing of college events—all tend to confuse him. He secretly hopes to be a genuine Nebraskan, but sometimes his perspective is warped and he adopts certain beliefs and models which later turn out to be false.

"It is for the upperclassmen to help him, set him aright, and start him on a desirable course. This is one service that the fraternities may and should render their school. As a rule, the conduct of freshmen in a fraternity is a reflection of the habits and principles of the seniors or leaders in such an organization. To a certain degree, whether they are conscious of it or not, they give to the freshman a conception of what to look for and get out a University education. If a fraternity is fortunate in having as its leaders men who are well grounded in what is right and what is wrong, then it will have
