Stepanek Addresses Cosmopolitan Club

Orin Stepanek, associate professor of Slavonic languages, who recently returned from a trip around the world, addressed the Cosmopolitan club at the first open meeting, Sunday afternoon, in Temple. Prof. Stepanek spoke principally of the ideals of a Cosmopolitan club. Mr. Werkmeister, historian, gave the history of the Nebraska Cosmopolitan club and Miss Irma Appleby made an appeal for new members.

DRAMATIC PLAYERS PLAN TICKET SALE

Name Committee of Three For Campaign to Be Conducted
October 7, 8, 9.

The dramatic arts department announces that its student ticket campaign will be held October 7, 8, and 9. Season tickets for the plays to be presented this year by the University Players will be on sale at this time. Bennet Martin is in charge of the campaign; Pauline Gellatly and Neva Jones compose the executive committee of the sales.

Because of the great demand for tickets last year, one more play will be added to the schedule. Whereas only six plays were given last year, seven will be presented this season.

Rehearsals for the first production, which will be a comedy, started last week. Herbert Yenne is directing the Players in the absence of Miss Howell.

Goblins Hold Annual Election of Officers

The Green Goblins, freshman men's organization, will hold a meeting Tuesday, September 30 to elect officers for the coming year. The meeting will be held at the Alpha Sigma Phi house, 500 North Sixteenth Street, at 7 o'clock.

Note:—Due to the active memberships of the different fraternities having not been compiled as yet, it is necessary to group the fraternities in their standing using last year's list of active men. The fraternities in each group are equal in their standings.

Watch next Sunday's Daily Nebraskan for new standings of the fraternities.—Adv.

Appoint Officers of
R. O. T. C. October 10

Appointments to the positions of colonel, lieutenant-colonel and three majors in the University R. O. T. C. will be made public by the military department October 10. The appointment of colonel will be made known after the election of the honorary colonel. Selections of the other officers will be made also at this time but they will remain in office only until mid-semester when the permanent officers will be announced. This is done to stimulate competition for the positions.

Prof. Louise Pound
Writes for Magazine

Prof. Louise Pound of the Department of English will have a short article on "Walt Whitman and the Classics," in the October number of the Texas Review. Miss Pound has received from Professor Eugen Mkg of the University of Leipzig a personal copy of the "Festschrift" in honor of his seventieth birthday. The volume is an impressive one containing some forty or more contributions by prominent European scholars.

Freshmen Should Get Green Caps Thursday

About 480 green caps will be received by Farquhar's clothing store Thursday. The shipment was supposed to have been received here last Friday, but was delayed. Freshmen who have not yet secured their caps are urged to do so Thursday. Members of Iron Sphinx, organization of sophomores, are enforcing the wearing of the caps.

A pleasing variety and low prices combine to make The Temple Cafeteria an ideal place to eat.—Adv.

GRUMMANN RETURNS FROM TRIP THROUGH EUROPE

they spent four days where their chief interest was the architecture of the chapels and halls. The University was not in session but many university men were to be seen in the libraries and museums.

Professor and Mrs. Grumman made London their headquarters for three weeks, visiting the national portrait gallery containing the Wallace collection, the Tate collection, the British Museum, the South Kensington Museum, and the Royal Exhibition of Contemporary British Art which they found large and most interesting. They also made many other trips to points of interest in and near London. On one occasion they went to Cambridge where they viewed the chapels and the art museum. Inspection of the Canterbury Cathedral and Windsor Castle concluded their tour of England.

In Paris they visited various police buildings and studied the art collections at the Louvre, the Luxembourg, the Luxembourg annex and the Museum of Sculpture at the Trocadero in addition to the various mercantile collections. From Paris they went to Strassburg and Munich to see the old and new Papinokathek and the exhibition of contemporary art in the glass palace in Munich which contains 2,500 paintings.

In Berlin they checked over the exhibition of the imperial palace and the collection of industrial art in the former residence of the kaiser as well as the old and new museums devoted to earlier and more classical paintings.

At the Kaiser Frederick Museum they found the most comprehensive exhibition of their tour including art from important periods of painting and sculpturing. At the National Museum they were able to see the best examples of German art. The former palace of the crown prince contained collections of more recent movements in German art.

Sans Souci, Notre Dame and Amsterdam concluded their tour. On arriving in the United States Professor and Mrs. Grumman visited for two days in Washington, D. C., where they were interested in the Freer collection.

"We had the pleasant sensation of feeling that the Freer gallery was really the most beautiful we saw anywhere in our travels," said Professor Grumman.

In London, Paris, Munich and Berlin they visited a number of theatres including the Grand Opera in Paris, the Comedie Francaise, the Prince Regent Theatre in Munich, and the state Opera in Berlin.

Professor Grumman will write a series of articles on the art exhibitions which he visited and one of the theatres.
