

OLYMPIAN STUFF

Life around the campus as seen from the Mountain of the Gods.

OUR NAME.

We wish to correct a general (and quite erroneous) impression which we frequently encounter on the campus as to the pronunciation of our name.

We give warning now that we will pay no attention to anyone who hails us with a "Hello, Montry" or any such barbaric pronunciation.

Having fired the first gun in that matter, we feel more at ease.

THE ROCKY ROAD TO CULTURE.

The other day we got some peas in a cafeteria in Kansas City, and the uncouth barbarian behind the counter supplied us with a fork on which the two center tines were bent up.

But we were determined to be cultured. We had to be correct. So we speared the peas with the fork one at a time.

There were two hundred and thirty-seven.

Not very long ago at a jolly little tavern near the school we invented a new salad while at lunch, and had it made to order.

And even unto this day the careful observer, in glancing over the menu at this quaint eating house (we are not giving its location, as we desire it to remain exclusive; we cannot eat with plebeians at the "hamburger joints.") as we were saying, the careful observer will find Bentholmthy salad listed.

Really, we think it quite a tasty dish. As one would say back home, it "isn't half nasty."

However, we will admit that we didn't know such a phrase was in use in dear old England until we read a little book on grammar by Prof. Sherwin Cody, in which he quotes that remark.

THIS WEEK'S TRAGEDY.

Miss Susan Hoagland, in a speech before the Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor last Friday at the Vine Congregational Church, was telling of her visit to the Art Gallery in Glasgow.

"We were delighted with the collections of pictures," she said, "but they had no copies for sale."

Tragedy, friends, simply tragedy.

Just to enforce the pronunciation of the word "khaki," which once we japed you about, we quote the first two lines of a poem we have started:

"Atop a precipitous cliff so rocky,
A soldier lay in dingy khaki—"

Keep that rhyme in mind and you can't possibly go wrong.

And remember how to pronounce our name.

—CLAIRE MONTESREY.

As a football player he's a good poet

LET'S admit that all men are not born for gridiron honors, just as all men are not born poets.

You can admire a man's grit for plugging away at the thing that comes hardest to him.

He does derive benefit in developing himself where he is weakest. But to achieve real success it is only common wisdom to pick out the line for which you have a natural aptitude—and go to it.

Particularly if you are a freshman it may be useful to remind you of this principle, because it can help you start off on the right foot in both your campus activities and your college courses.

If your fingers love the feel of a pencil, why not obey that impulse and come out for the publications? You can serve Alma Mater and yourself better as a first-class editor than a third-class halfback.

Similarly, when it comes to electing your college courses, you will be happier and more efficient if you choose in accordance with your natural aptitude.

The world needs many types of men. Find your line, and your college course will be a preparation for a greater success.
