CONVENTION TO START FRIDAY

Missouri Valley District of Alpha Kappa Psi Meets Here for Two Days.

EACH CHAPTER SENDS ONE DELEGATE; EXPECT MORE

The Missouri Valley district of Alpha Kappa Psi will hold a convention at the Lincoln hotel, Friday and Saturday of this week. Dean Dowrie of the school of Business at the University of Minnesota will preside. Willard Usher, '25, Lincoln, president of the local chapter, will open the convention with an address of welcome.

The Missouri district includes the Universities of Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Minnesota, Nebraska and Washington which is located at St. Louis. Nebraska Zeta chapter is one of the oldest in the district, and through the efforts of Dwight Bedell, graduate of this University school of Business Administration, was able to bring the convention to Lincoln. The district conventions are held during the interval between the biennial convention of the fraternity.

Each chapter in the district sends a delegate, Frank F. Fry, Omaha, representing the Nebraska chapter. It is expected that a large number of visitors will accompany the delegates to take part in the convention.

A banquet for all guests, interested students and faculty members is planned for Friday evening at the Lincoln hotel. Immediately after the banquet, ten pledges of the local chapter will be initiated. Besides the banquet, a luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce is being planned.

DRAMATICS SEASON STARTS THIS WEEK

University Players Will Present "Rollo's Wild Out" October 23 to 25.

The University Players open their tenth season with a presentation of Clare Kummer's "Rollo's Wild Out" at the Temple Theater, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 23-25. The cast includes Dwight Merriam, Edward Taylor, Harold Sumption, Harte Jenks, Darrell Starnes, Bernard Maxey, Pauline Gellately, Martha Dudley, Ruth Schrank, Dolores Bosse, Lillian Shimnick and Henry Ley. Because of the large attendance last season the players have added one more show—a seventh—this year.

"Rollo's Wild Out," one of last season's comedies which ran in New York throughout the year, is presented for the first time in Lincoln by the Players. Four performances of the play will be given, as has been the custom of preceding years. There will be performances Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening with a special matinee on Saturday. The curtain rises at 8:15 in the evening and at 2:30 in the afternoon.

The one wild out in the life of the circusman Rollo is a secret ambition to play "Hamlet." It is made possible and Rollo engages an entire company to support him, including a flashy theatrical manager with a Jewish accent and a fair young Ophelia. The presence of the latter proves to be a disturbing element in Rollo's production. He insists upon regarding her as his Ophelia in real life.

By ingenious handling of the theme the author has dovetailed the comedy plot of "Rollo's Wild Out" with the advancing preparation of the hero to play Hamlet. His encounters with the stolid and provincial relatives are most amusingly contrasted with the atmosphere of the theatre and glimpses of the life behind the scenes.

The whole plot is flavored with brightness, deftly fashioned, and highly original comedy in which satire is edged with sentiment and whimsy with seriousness.

Prof. H. Alice Howell, director of the University Players, is slowly recovering from the injury she suffered in California last summer, but does not expect to be able to return for several weeks yet.

LECTURE GIVEN BY DEAN CUTTER

Talks to Freshman Sections on The "Progress of Medical Science."

PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO HOWARD RICKETTS, '94

"We forget that we are living in a comparatively safe age as far as health is concerned and that this safety is all due to a great deal of hard work on someone's part," declared Dean Irving S. Cutter of the College of Medicine in his address to the freshman lecture sections Monday and Tuesday on the "Progress of Medical Sciences."

Dean Cutter explained how the diseases which had been rampant in the world less than fifty years ago have been brought under control through the recent discoveries of those engaged in medical research. He told how surgery had been made comparatively safe after Pasteur's and Lister's discoveries of microbes and their control.

Tribute was also paid by the speaker to Howard Taylor Ricketts, '94, who lost his life after making a number of very valuable discoveries about typhus in 1910. He was working in Mexico City where he had set up a laboratory during a severe epidemic and had just completed research work showing how typhus is spread and how it could be prevented when he fell victim to the disease.

Dr. Ricketts had just been appointed Professor of Pathology at the university of Pennsylvania at the time of his death. In memory of his valuable work the Mexican government has erected a great pathological laboratory at Mexico City and the University of Chicago has dedicated one of its finest medical buildings to him. Previous to his work in Mexico Dr. Ricketts had spent some time in the Rocky Mountains where he discovered that "mountain fever," which had been dreaded by tourists for so long, was spread only by the bite of a species of wood tick and that it could easily be prevented.

The work in controlling yellow fever, which Dean Cutter cited as an example of medical progress, was explained in detail.

"In 1793 over one-third the entire population of Philadelphia died of yellow fever and but 25 years ago it swept away one-sixth of the residents of Charlestown, S. C. It used to be necessary to keep the port of New Orleans closed for months at a time because of yellow fever," said Dean Cutter.

"Today we hear little about yellow fever. All this progress was the result of a United States Army commission, headed by Walter Reed, which went to Havana to study yellow fever in 1898.

"They knew that such diseases as scarlet fever and diphtheria were communicated from person to person. They set out to see if the same was true of yellow fever. After they had slept with yellow fever patients, used the same utensils with them and still did not contract the disease they concluded that it was not spread in that manner.

"A Spaniard, Finley, had previously expressed the idea that yellow fever was communicated by the bite of a certain mosquito and the members of the commission next set about to learn whether or not this were true. They allowed themselves to be bitten by mosquitoes which had previously bitten yellow fever patients and immediately they contracted the disease.

"After that discovery it was easy to stop epidemics of yellow fever. The knowledge spread to all parts of the world and yellow fever is no longer dangerous.

"Major General Leonard Wood stated that more lives were saved each year as a result of the work of this commission than were lost on both sides during the entire Spanish-American War.

MOREHEAD GIVES POLITICAL VIEWS

Congressman Addresses University Davis-Bryan Club at Luncheon.

Congressman John H. Morehead, candidate for re-election on the democratic ticket in November, told members of the University Davis-Bryan club of his personal experiences in politics and of his stand on the various issues of the day at a luncheon at the Grand hotel Monday noon.

The necessity of a congressman paying particular attention to the wishes of his constituents and representing them at all times was stressed by Mr. Morehead. He stated that he had voted upon every question that had arisen in Congress while he was a representative.

Mr. Morehead attacked the Dawes plan for bringing agriculture back to a profitable basis. It provides for a curtailment of production. A fixed price for corn which would make production of that commodity profitable and then gradually bring farmers into other lines of production was favored by the speaker.

The merits of the democratic national and state ticket were also discussed by Mr. Morehead who characterized Mr. Davis as a high type of man, progressive and fearless.

DECIDE TODAY ON PUNISHMENT

Committee Will Meet to Discuss Violations of Rules by Freshmen.

OFFICIALS REFUSE TO DISCUSS SITUATION

Decision as to what action will be taken with the groups of fraternity and sorority freshmen who violated several University rulings by holding unchaperoned parties on week nights will be reached by the University Senate committee on student organizations at a meeting in Dean Heppner's office at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Various groups on "freshman sneak nights" have held dinners and picnics followed by dancing. These parties in most cases have lasted later than 10:30 o'clock and have been unchaperoned.

Two University rules for both men and women which were violated provide that no parties shall be held except on Friday and Saturday nights and that all parties shall be scheduled with the Dean of Women. The rules of the Women's Self-Governing Association also provide that no freshman women may have engagements on week nights.

The members of the University Senate Committee on Student Organizations are Amanda H. Heppner, dean of women; Carl C. Engberg, executive dean; Prof. R. D. Scott, chairman of the inter-fraternity council; Assistant professor Marguerite McPhee, chairman of Pan-Hellenic council; and Professors E. H. Barbour, J. O. Rankin, and T. J. Thompson.

Both Dean Engberg and Professor Scott refused to comment on the matter when interviewed yesterday. A few such parties were held last year and called to the attention of the committee but no action was taken because the offenders had been severely punished by the fraternities and sororities.
