LOST UNIVERSITY OF PEUDESAVANTS.
There came to our attention recently, the story of the discovery of the records of the lost Peudesavants University. Little is known of the history of the institution, but the records reveal an interesting study of the atmosphere of the place and the story of its faculty and student body which make it worth while for us to repeat some of the record here. Such studies are ever valuable for the contrasts which can be made with our own and other institutions of our acquaintance and for the ideas which we might receive from such comparisons and contrasts. A series of short articles about the University of Peudesavants will be run, therefore, with this aim in view.

WHAT THE RECORDS REVEAL.
"After half a century (this makes the contrast a little easier to make because of the like age of our institution) unfortunate outside conditions of international concern brought about considerable unrest among certain of the students and professors of the University. . . . While many persons felt the loss of some of these men, the University thought it necessary to conform to the policies of the best citizens of the community. . . . As the student body became more restless during the general relaxation from the strain of the preceding few years, certain groups had to be handled more carefully. Those who were heard to be in any way unsympathetic with the University ideal of expansion through the acquisition of larger buildings, larger facilities for the physical training departments, and an increased student body were soon discovered—and handled as was seen fit by the authorities. It has been stated that some students wondered how remarks made to them in a group of students could come back to them from official sources within so short a time as an hour. The effectiveness of such a method is obvious."
—DR. SWIFT.

A CHINESE FRIEND CONTRIBUTES.
We are happy to present to the readers of this column the work of Mr. K. Kwei Chen whose poems are first written in Chinese and later translated into English. Contributions of all sorts are always welcome and we are glad that one of our students from another country has taken an interest in our efforts. May there be others—serious, clever, verse or prose.

CHINESE POEMS IN ENGLISH VERSES.
By K. Kwei Chen.
WHO IS THIS CHAP?
Who is this chap who thinks he's "it?"
He is merely the fellow who has had his chance.
What, indeed, cannot one do if chance permits?"

I DON'T WANT TO WEAR MY HAT
Don't I know that my hair is ugly?
Nevertheless, I don't want to wear my hat.
I, like others, have my own tastes;
Moreover, to afford merriment is a charity.

COURSE IN HANDSHAKING.
The proposed course in cheering and singing which was recently outlined met with unusual approval. Several have expressed the opinion that such a course would meet a need that has long existed. These for degrees of Doctor of Philosophy will be received from those finishing in other colleges from students who have done distinguished research in this line without the advantages of the courses to be instituted in the new curriculum.

The suggestion has come that the suggested course be installed in some institution other than this, or, better, to create a new university where this course of study in cheering combined with others of equal value might be brought together. At such a university, it is suggested, would come the more earnest students who find campus conditions here rather too distracting for serious pursuits of the higher intellectual activities. The number of students, in the minority to be sure, but in a minority strangely bothersome in their ability to influence much of the attention of the authorities, the number of students who allow attendance at classes to interfere thus makes difficult the fulfillment of the true aims of the university.

Other courses will be suggested from time to time, therefore, which, it is hoped, may become the foundation for a new institution, bigger and greater than any in the Middle-West where will be segregated the cream of our youth for purposes of development into men who will be men of the highest type in our communities, pillars of our churches, and leaders in the civic betterment of our nation.

Fundamental in the training of such men is a course which will allow them to meet other men and women with ease of manner and confidence of common interest. Not only should courses of study be concentrated upon this training, but there should be also the extra-curricula organizations for the furtherance of these essential accomplishments. Such courses are herewith submitted.

A NEW POLITICAL SCIENCE?
1. Elementary handshaking. Freshman course. A preliminary survey of the subject, designed to give the student a knowledge of the structures and functions of the grip in clasping hands. A study of the shakes of different periods. Special grips studied: the Rotary grip, the Greek-letter social grip, the political grip, the congratulatory grip and others studied from the personal and social aspects. Credit, 3 hours.

11. Applied Handshaking. Open to sophomores and juniors. The application of handshaking—its principles and methods—to the problems of individual, social, professional, and industrial efficiency. Students with special interests will have the privilege of developing them by extra laboratory work leading to admission to honorary organizations or election to office. No credit.

13a. For juniors and seniors desiring a course of less practical conceptions, but admitting of more aesthetic values. The evening handshake, the handshake made more realistic, holding of hands supplemented by laboratory exercises in astronomy and its relation to the holding of hands. Lecture 1, laboratory 4. Credit, 5 hours. V. VAN V.

OUR NAIVE CONTEMPORARY.
With rare discrimination, the editor of our humorous monthly has devoted a full page to the following announcement:
"Awgwan is the official humorous publication of the University of Nebraska. It contains jokes. . . .
Not really, dear editor, not really!"
—ED ROBINSON.

Now the cheerleaders threaten to have a whole box of lemons on the field for the next game. With this let us forgive and forget.

Couple of days ago I noticed that Rudge & Guenzel's had some of those new Laundered Collars and Cuffs. They're awfully smart on flannel and wool dresses. The collars were in medium and large size priced at 35c, 39c, and 50c; and the Cuffs were gauntlet style priced at 50c.
There were several girls at the counter selecting theirs that day, so if you want a set of these novelty collar and cuff sets you had better rush right down and get them.

A BIG PEN to see you through a BIG four years

WAHL Signature PEN
The big pen for big business

This is a great pen for college men and women! It is made by the makers of Eversharp pencil. It has a huge ink capacity! And the Wahl filling device fills it plumb full every time. It's a big pen. But it is so nicely balanced and proportioned that it fits into the fist most comfortably.
The Wahl Signature Pen writes the instant the point touches paper. The ink begins to flow evenly—always enough, never too much. The patented comb feed makes shaking unnecessary.

The everlasting nib is a wonder. Experts say it is the ultimate in nib-making. It suits itself to any hand—to any style. It is extra heavy. The 14-karat gold is tipped with the hardest and finest grade of iridium that money can buy.
The patented construction of the cap makes it impossible for the pen to leak in the pocket. The cap cannot split, for it is strengthened by the plain gold band. There are two sizes of the Wahl Signature Pen—one at $5 for women, and one at $7 for men! Other Wahl Pens, $2.50 up!
