

PREPARE FOR AGGIE GAME

Gridsters Resume Work In Preparation for Valley Battle.

SPIRIT UNBROKEN BY NOTRE DAME'S VICTORY

Back home, but not broken by their defeat by Knute Rockne's "wonder team," the Cornhuskers began serious work Monday for the clash with the Kansas Aggies this week end. The Aggies have never been easy for any team and have usually furnished the Huskers with their hardest battle on the Valley schedule. "Our boys gave everything they had against Notre Dame," Coach Fred T. Dawson said Monday evening. "It was no disgrace to be beaten. Our spirit is not broken, and we are going ahead now with hard work."

Hard scrimmage will be gone through for the rest of the week. The squad, while somewhat battered, is in fairly good shape. No injuries should persist until the Kansas Aggies game.

Roy Mandery, big end, who had fair success in stopping the "four horsemen" while he was in the game, is out for the rest of the season, probably. He received a leg injury and is now at a local hospital.

The Aggies are rated this season as one of the strongest teams in the Valley. Although defeated by Missouri and Drake, the Valley champion the Aggies have had all the tough breaks. Sports writers declared that Missouri and Drake were as lucky as the man who made ten straight passes.

The Huskers have encountered stubborn resistance this year in every Valley game. Particularly was this so at Oklahoma. The Sooners won 14 to 7.

One thing will be of value. The Aggies, with a Notre Dame coach, use the Notre Dame style of play. The Huskers had a rather thorough drilling in this line last Saturday and should be well prepared for the famous shift. Coach Bachman, former Notre Dame center, may be sorry the Huskers played the original troupe first.

Matzen Urges Support of Schools

John M. Matzen, state superintendent of schools, gave out the following statement Monday morning relative to the observance of American Education week:

"During the week beginning November 17 the attention and interest of the entire state will be centered on education. The main purpose of the week are to inform the public of the accomplishments and needs of the public in meeting these needs.

"This week will afford an opportunity to school people and all civic and business organizations interested in education to impress upon the and needs of our educational program.

"In Nebraska can we not make this week the occasion of the greatest state wide educational rally ever known by putting on an intensive campaign of salesmanship that will really "sell" education to the people? There is a favorable attitude on the whole toward the schools but it is passive, it should be made active. If we hope to enlist an active interest we must advertise the aims and purposes of education and let the public understand the values and virtues

Lost in Chicago

Joe Wostoupal got lost in Chicago. But he reached South Bend in time to give Knute Rockne a few minutes of serious thought. Wostoupal picked up a fumble early in the game when the Notre Dame second team was playing and carried the ball to the 4-yard line. Three plunges put Meyers over the goal line in spite of the fact that the first team was rushed into the fray. A bad pass from center to Layden, who had his mind set on punting, gave "Wosty" his chance.

NEBRASKA TEAM PLACES SECOND

University Stock Judges Win Honors at American Royal Show.

Nebraska's stock judging team won second honors in the college students' livestock judging contest at the American Royal Livestock Show, with 4,438 points. Kansas State Agricultural College was first with 4,495 points, and Colorado Agricultural College third with 4,379 points. Teams from twelve states competed in the contest.

Jay Hepperly, Norfolk, was fifth individual in the contest, scoring 905 points. This was the highest score made by any member of the Nebraska team. Other members of the team are: Dorsey Barnes, Loretto; James Barnes, Chicago; Honor Oschner, Madison; Nat Tolman, Lincoln; and Clarence Fortna, Octavia.

The members of the Nebraska team pay their own expenses and work hard for their places on the team. They receive no reward for their work except the experience they gain. The Nebraska team will compete at the International Livestock Judging contest, the first week in December.

of the educational structure they are supporting.

"It is the duty of all friends of education therefore to think seriously and work hard on the problem of keeping the idea of public education before all the people.

"The hearty co-operation of all school officials, pupils, parents and citizens is earnestly solicited in making the observance of National education week, November 17-23 inclusive, profitable and fruitful."

HUSKERS TO PLAY AGGIES

"Junior Notre Dame" Team Should Prove Formidable Opponent.

SWARTZ AND STARK STILL DO PASSING

Coach Bachman's junior Notre Dame team, which hails from Manhattan, Kansas, will clash with the Cornhuskers next Saturday on the Aggie stamping ground. The Huskers will have plenty to worry about. The Aggies have been unlucky this season, losing three out of four Valley contests, but they have proved themselves a formidable team in spite of this.

K. U. was the only Valley team to take the short of the count from the Aggies, although Kansas State Teachers and Washburn have also bitten the dust. Missouri was lucky to beat the "young Irish" by two touchdowns to one! Ames administered the most crushing defeat, 21 to 0.

Drake, undefeated so far, and probable Missouri Valley champion, managed to pull out with a 7-to-6 win over the Aggies. Somebody did and somebody didn't in the goal kicking line, although sport writers were generally agreed that the Aggies played better football.

The Aggies have always emulated their Indiana models by being good in the passing game. Nebraskans will remember the passing combination of Swartz to Stark and Stark to Swartz, which caused the Huskers so much trouble in days gone by. Two years ago the Aggies very nearly upset the Huskers plans with this aerial attack.

The result of the game is far from certain. The Huskers are favorites, but so were they against Oklahoma. And see what happened there.

Ten Years Ago

The question of "bumming" to the Iowa game at Iowa City was severely frowned on the University authorities. In the past the trip had been made to Lawrence but that year the ramblers were to wend their way three hundred miles eastward. Those who were planning on going by freight were getting started in the first part of the week. At a meeting of the athletic board the "would be Weary Willies" were discussed at length. It was the unanimous opinion that the practice must be discouraged if football was to hold its place in the University and in the minds of the public.

Your hair will stay in place!

IN college, in business—well-dressed men everywhere have learned this surprising fact about their hair.

Water wouldn't keep it in place, and was harmful besides. Old-fashioned pomades left the hair matted and greasy-looking.

But Stacomb, they have discovered, keeps the hair just as you want it all day long—smooth, lustrous. A delicate, invisible cream, non-staining and non-greasy. In jars and tubes—at your college drugstore. (Now also in liquid form).

put a stop to all football practice for the evening. One person, very close to the athletic management, expressed himself as saying that the captain's actions were about on a par with his attitude toward athletics, and everything else, for that matter except drill. Captain Chase was seen later and consented to abandon the field until after Thanksgiving, so that no further trouble was expected from that source. Among the advantages listed by the Milwaukee railway to be found when one traveled on their lines were electric lights and steam heat.
