OLYMPIAN STUFF

Life around the campus as seen from the Mountain of the Gods.

PORTRAITS OF PEUDESAVANT CHARACTERS.
THE INACCESSIBLE DEAN.

There was a tradition on the campus that he was hard of heart. It seemed to please the students to tell their parents that they were watched over by a tyrant. But in truth this was nothing less than calumny. Occasionally, of course, youngsters were sent home because their pranks were extraordinarily stupid. Yet they had only themselves to blame. Had they perceived the sympathy which the warm heart of the Dean held out for them, unquestionably they could have secured another chance, if only pleading their case.

—BOSWELL.

THAT OLD SCHOOL SPIRIT.

We quote from the Sunday issue of The Daily Nebraskan:
"Lute Morse brought the Cornhusker spirit to an apex with his comic interpretations and jokes."

We merely wish to inquire (of some of the Campus Rotary Club members, perhaps) what this far-famed spirit is, that it can be brought to an apex with "comic interpretations" and "jokes." We had formed quite a different conception of it.

TODAY'S EPIGRAM:

Some students cultivate the readers; some the instructors; and still others the subject.

DO YOU KNOW—

What the difference is between Education 137 and Education 121, 21, or 141?

You want to know the answer to that one? There is none.

—DeRESZE.

TO A FLY.

O little fly, ill-nourished, underfed,
How dar'st thou buzz about mine idol's head?

Thou buzzeest with a well-feigned nonchalance,
But dost not win from him a single glance.

He lifts a hand with unconcerned air,
And brusheth thee from off his curling hair.

I weep for thee, thou sad, neglected fly;
I weep for thee, for that I know that I

Have felt the lure of that illustrious brow—
And been as lightly brushed aside as thou.

—CELIA.

IF BIZADS HAD THEIR WAY.

My Dear Madame:

Yours of the 22nd ult. inst. at hand, and contents noted. In reply would beg to state that your query is answered in our last letter (c. f. file 33a), in which we state in incontrovertible terms that we love you, and will ever love you. We do not understand how this question could have arisen in your mind. We have been careful to make our position clear at all times.

If we can be of any further assistance to you, our service department is at your disposal.

Very truly yours,
—CLAIRE MONTESREY.

A PLAINTIVE CRY FROM THEODOSIA.

Is gallantry but a poor faded remnant of medieval times? Is chivalry blown to the winds?

Maidens fall, as well as handkerchiefs, but do willing and eager youths leap with celerity from all sides and beseech the honor of succoring the unfortunate one? Not at all. If she is, to put it mildly, comely and not awkward, some lordly stripling may condescend to aid her. That is, of course, if he has not been too fatigued by the day's honest labor.

On the street car, fair damsels may wrench their arms out in madly clutching the inadequate leather strap and swing precariously back and forth with every jolt of the unfeeling car. And then, when the top book ultimately topples off the miniature leaning tower and hits a dapper gentleman insidiously on the nose—! The poor girl withers and wilts under the furious stare of blasting scorn.

Is chivalry blown to the winds? Or is it merely me?
—THEODOSIA.

HERR BRAINS WRITES FROM RENO.

My Dear Claire:

Geographically speaking, I have just dropped in from Reno, Nevada. You know the place—out where the worst begins (to end)—that far-famed spot where the lawyer's bank account multiplies by division.

Speaking of division, the divorcees of Reno have formed an independence club known as the "Daughters of Alimony." Their slogan is, "Let no man put us under." Thus far the society has only one "Decree," but it is probable that more orders will be added very soon. In fact, I rather expect the club will become national, and before many years will appear on the campuses of our leading universities.

Reno, however, is a town to beware of, for nearly everyone who stops there goes straight to petition. But I am treating the place too roughly, for I met some very nice people there. Two in particular—just a couple of girls. One was a divorcee, and the other was happy too. It might be worth mentioning that one (Which one?—C. M.) was a Pi Phi from the U. of N.

I fooled you there! That means University of Nevada.
Yours until they prohibit ink,
HERR BRAINS.

P. S. Does the Student Council have a president again this year?

P. S. No. 2. Is Burrough's Cafe still open?

H. B.

The difference between Education 21 and Education 141? (Note: The answer is not "120.")
—CLAIRE MONTESREY.

Ten Years Ago

The Board of Regents had returned from its tour of the neighboring schools, where it had studied the buildings and campus arrangements. Apparently they were not so much in a hurry to get the new building program under way as were the professors and students, for the next meeting was not to be held until in the latter part of February.

Mrs. Carrie B. Raymond was announced as being the director of the chorus that was to present a selection from the Messiah. It was not possible to present the whole oratorio, so just those parts appropriate to Christmas were to be given.

For writing ease and legibility

The Wahl Pen was designed for writing ease and legibility. It is a perfected, modern writing instrument which will aid you in acquiring a practical hand, a readable expression of your thoughts.

All metal construction—gold or silver for permanence and serviceability—gives light weight, fine balance, increased ink capacity, strength to resist wear and abuse. And brings the designer opportunity to produce a pen matching the beauty of a handsomely cased watch.

Prices in gold filled or silver models $5 to $10.
