Dance Drama of Youth To Be One of Features of Round-Up

Scores of gaily costumed dancers flitting about the green of the University Stadium Saturday afternoon, will be one of the most vivid of the many brilliant pictures presented before the throngs of the Fourth Annual Cornhusker Round-up, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. This will be the dance drama for which the Women's Athletic Association of the University has been working for weeks.

Youth, grace and melody will mingle in the soft May sunshine, to bring back to the visiting alumni memories of carefree college days and fantastic hints of fairy-tales long forgotten. A charming theme is carried out, in which groups of youths and maidens represent the seasons, as a background of exquisite movement and delightful color harmony to the rhythmic interpretations of the Youth Who Hears the First Lark, the Crocus, the Elf, and the Sun. Solo dances of intricate grace will vary the picturesque group numbers.

The text of the Awakening of the Crocus and the cast of characters follow:
Through all the swaying summer. Lanquor-laden.
The Crocus lingers on.
We see her now, clad in brown husk.
She sadly dances
A sad farewell to summer.
The drifting leaves and swirling winds.
Of gorgeous Autumn.
Cover her close, from the harsh Embrace of Winter.
An impish Elf, in childish glee Impudently mocks the little flower For her misfortune.
Over her wintry bed
The skipping Snowflakes dance
And the sharpe-tongued voices of the Winter Wind
Gibber and Shriek.
And still she slumbers on.
Then, in the rosy Dawning of a perfect day,
The first of Spring
Comes the new song of the Lark Melodius, clear.
Soon the warm sun-rays of Spring Awaken the Crocus
To dance with the Sun.
Spring is here!
And with it come Flower Girls bringing
Gay nosegays of bright flowers, and swaying dancers with swinging Garlands of gree,
And youths and maidens
Pleasure-seeking
Enjoying the soft spring weather.
Dances
Crocus—Katherine M. King.

TO ADDRESS HIGH SCHOOLS

CONSIDER NEXT YEAR'S PLAYS

University Players Announce List of Plays Which are Under Consideration.

The University Players have announced a list of plays which are under consideration for production next year. The date of the first play is set for October 8, 9, and 10. Students who wish to get good season tickets should reserve them now. Seven plays will be presented next year.

Pete Sumption, Hart Jenks, Harold Felton, Darrell Starnes, and Frances McChesney are the University Players who will return to school next fall. Frances McChesney will travel with the Cadman Chautauqua Company playing the lead in "Smiling Through" and Hart Jenks and Darrell Starnes will travel with the Standard Chautauqua company during the summer.

Three plays have been definitely chosen for next year. They are "Romeo and Juliet," a Shakespearean love tragedy; "The parents who sacrifice to send their children to school and Seirre de Bernardo, a famous Italian classic.

A tentative list of eight plays, four of which will be chosen for production next year are as follows: "Girl of the Golden West," a Belasco success; "Auctioneer," also a Belasco premier production; "Little Old New York," a dramatization of Edith Wharton's famous novel of the same title; "The Bride," a recent Broadway mystery play; "On the Stairs," a play dealing with Hindu mysticism; "The Haunted House, one of the best mystery plays of the year; "The Swan;" and "He Who Gets Slapped," one of the most popular New York plays this year.
