ASK STUDENTS TO SUBSCRIBE

Nebraskan Sales Campaign To Be Continued Throughout This Week.

GOAL IS SET AT 3000

Mail and Alumni Subscriptions Heavy but Student Interest Drops Over Former Years

The first day of the Daily Nebraskan subscription campaign ended rather discouragingly, due to the cold weather, but the drive will continue through the rest of this week, and the management expressed hopes yesterday of reaching a goal of 3000 subscribers.

Mail and alumni subscriptions took a big slump on the first day of the campaign over previous drives, but local interest fell down somewhat. The idea of sending a paper home will be boosted during the rest of the campaign.

MAKE PLANS FOR FORMAL INITIATION

Freshman Classes Will Be Excused From 10 to 12 O'Clock Thursday for Convocation.

The class of '29 will be formally introduced Thursday into the traditions, customs, and spirit of the University when the annual freshman initiation takes place at the Armory. Freshmen will be excused from classes, 10 to 12 o'clock. Chancellor Avery, Coach Schulte, and a prominent Lincoln alumnus will speak. The Innocents and Mortar Board are in charge of the program.

Freshman initiation is the annual gathering of all freshman men and women, and will form the greatest single meeting of the class of '29. After the formal speeches, motion pictures and photographs will be taken for historical archives of the University. Last year the motion pictures were included in the news reels and shown over the country.

The University of Nebraska cadet band will play before and after the program. Robert Lang, president of Innocents society, will preside.

The principal speaker at the initiation will be Chancellor Samuel Avery, who has headed the University of Nebraska for the past seventeen years. He will give the address of welcome to the new Cornhuskers, and speak about the ideals and purposes of the University.

Coach Schulte, Nebraska's nationally famed coach of championship track teams, will speak on the loyalty to the school. There will be a woman speaker on the program also.

After the speeches the freshmen will be introduced to Cornhusker cheerleaders and given a chance to practice Nebraska songs and cheers in preparation for the home football games, and other campus occasions.

Will Hold "Welcome Party" for New Students Saturday Evening

Freshmen venturing into the uncertainties of their first blind date; freshmen doing the Charlestown to the tune of any well known waltz; freshmen impressing the sophisticated sorority girl with the home town line; freshmen wondering why the girls they met at Open House didn't recognize them. Upperclassmen doing about the same thing. Musicians soothing the swaying crowd with memory-laden strains of a moonlight waltz, then whipping them to life and frenzy with a fast, catchy fox-trot. Corners filled with stags making repeated visits to the punch bowl.

Such, so the collegiate historian tells us, is a glimpse into one of the most popular social functions of the initial month of the school year, a portrayal of one of the older traditions of the campus, the "Welcome Party," held in honor of the incoming freshman class and sponsored by the All-University party committee.

This entertainment is one of the first opportunities given to the student body to extend the hand of welcome to the freshman, to impress him with the idea that the freshman is no longer a stranger but a loyal and vital part of the University.

The "Welcome Party" will be held next Saturday evening at 8:15 in the Armory. This year, will pull the final curtain upon a spot filled with memories of several such social functions and other expressions of University spirit for all parties will be removed to the new Field House immediately upon its final completion.

A popular orchestra will provide dance music. Games and special entertainment will amuse the students during intermission. Refreshments will be served throughout the evening. Everyone is invited to momentarily forget his studies of the following week and join in the fun that the mixer offers.

"The Welcome Party has always been a popular social function with the student body," remarked Charles Warren, chairman of the All-University Party committee, while preparing plans for the entertainment, "and we extend a special invitation to everyone to join in making this funnest a rousing opener to a series of similar parties which will be distributed throughout the school year."

NEBRASKA HALL TO BE REPAIRED

Chancellor Avery Announces Temporary Closing of Unsafe Building

AFFECTS 1500 STUDENTS

Classes will be held at Original Hours but in Different Meeting Places.

Nebraska Hall is closed for repairs. A heavy outward thrust of the roof on the walls, combined with the poor quality of the mortar, has resulted in final condemnation of the building for use in its present condition, according to a statement made public by Chancellor Avery Monday.

The danger of collapse has been imminent for more than sixteen years, but reinforcements from time to time have strengthened it sufficiently for use.

Classes for the 1500 students affected will take place at the original hours but at different meeting places, as announced in the statement of the Chancellor which follows:

"The following statement applies to Nebraska Hall located on the northeast corner of the old campus. It does not apply to apply to University Hall, the old main building, which is often confused with Nebraska Hall. University Hall, the oldest building on the campus, was strengthened with structural steel and heavy rods a number of years ago, and is pronounced reasonably safe for the present.

"As the result of a conference held on an emergency call yesterday afternoon at which were present Mr. Seaton, operating superintendent, Professor Kesner, structural engineer, Colonel Jewett, commandant of cadets, Ellery, Davis and H. W. Meginnis, architects, and the Chancellor, it was decided to close Nebraska Hall until such structural changes in the building can be made so as to render it safe.

Nebraska Hall was erected in '87 and housed practically all the scientific departments of the University except chemistry. When erected it was large and pretentious for the sum expended. The mortar in the walls was of very poor quality. The roof was so designed as to bring a heavy outward thrust on the walls, which soon developed ominous cracks. Nearly twenty-five years ago a portion of the wall on the southwest corner was removed and replaced with better masonry. The structural weakness in connection with the roof, however, remained.

Some sixteen years ago at the request of the Chancellor, Dean Richards, afterwards of the University of Illinois and now president of Lehigh, made an examination, condemned the building, and recommended that it be demolished. The demands for the room, however, made the carrying out of this recommendation difficult and Dean Richards, while disclaiming responsibility, said informally that he presumed the building would stand for a number of years. The University authorities reluctantly took the chance after lying in a portion of the walls with steel rods.

"The building since that time has been under constant scrutiny. Further evidence of a tendency to collapse becoming apparent about four years ago, a committee consisting of the superintendent of grounds and buildings, Regent John R. Webster of Omaha, and the Chancellor, gave it very careful scrutiny. At this time it was decided that it might be made relatively safe for a few years longer by the further application of heavy steel rods. This was done, and no further tendency of the walls to collapse was noticed until recently.

"Very recently a tendency had been noticed on the part of the walls to break away from that portion tied by the steel rods. It now becomes evident that the walls may collapse in spite of the reinforcement. This tendency was apparently aggravated by wind in the late summer and fall.

"The interior brick walls of the building are apparently entirely sound. The exterior walls, though not well built, show no tendency to collapse except above the third floor where the heavy roof with its outward thrust has a tendency to rock (Continued to Page Four.)
