

START GRIDIRON PLAY TOMORROW

Official Football Season Opens With Most Schools In Small Games.

FEW CONFERENCE GAMES

Saturday's Valley Games
Nebraska vs. Illinois at Urbana
Missouri vs. Tulane at New Orleans
Iowa State vs. Wisconsin at Madison
Kansas vs. Oklahoma A. & M. at Lawrence
Grinnell vs. Cornell at Mt. Vernon
Oklahoma vs. Kansas Aggies at Manhattan

The official football season opens tomorrow. College football teams the country over will swing into action for the first time, in many cases, and in all cases for the first big games.

Every Missouri Valley team plays tomorrow, with the leaders in the Valley, Nebraska and Missouri, playing away from home with out-of-conference opponents. Iowa State plays in the Big Ten tomorrow, matching up against Wisconsin at Madison.

Only three games will affect the standings in the Missouri Valley conference. Kansas plays Oklahoma A. & M., a newcomer in the conference, at Lawrence, Drake plays Washington at St. Louis, and Oklahoma plays the Kansas Aggies at Manhattan. "Dope" on he games has not been handed out so strongly this week, due to the earliness of the season.

Experts Watch Illinois Game.
One of the greatest games in the country tomorrow, and one which experts are watching, is the Nebraska-Illinois game at Urbana. Among those who will watch the Illni and the Huskers is Grantland Rice, one of the foremost sports writers today.

The Husker game will draw increased attention because most of the eastern and Pacific coast teams are playing preparatory games with small colleges. There are no conference games in the Big Ten.

In the East, Yale is playing Middlebury, Harvard meets Rensselaer

Tech, and Princeton plays Amherst. The University of Detroit eleven will journey to West Point to play the Army team, and the Navy meets William and Mary at Annapolis. Pittsburg plays Washington and Lee at home.

Notre Dame Meets Baylard.
Notre Dame, 1924 champions and opponents of Nebraska on Thanksgiving day, will meet Lombard College, after overwhelming Baylor University last week.

There are few important games on the Pacific coast, either. Stanford plays the Olympic Club and California team will play Pomona College.

The University of Washington will play two practice games at Seattle.

HUSKER HARRIERS MAKE GOOD TIME

Rainy Weather and Slippery Roads Do Not Prevent Track Men From Making Records.

In spite of the rainy weather and slippery road, the Husker harriers ran the five-mile course in excellent time Thursday afternoon, in the final trials for the Missouri dual. Lester Lawson, veteran and star from the squad last season won easily, negotiating the distance in 27 minutes 24.6 seconds. The first six men to finish, who will comprise the team which makes the trip to Missouri, covered the course in less than twenty-nine minutes which indicated that the Huskers will have one of the best harrier squads that Nebraska has boasted of in the past few seasons.

Zimmerman, ex-captain, finished second in 27 minutes 57.6 seconds, while Hays, winner of the trials last week finished an easy third in 28 minutes 9 seconds. Reller and Captain Lewis came in for fourth and fifth positions and scaries placed sixth. Graham, the freshman who placed so well last Friday, placed fourth and Keyser, another freshman was among the leaders, finishing ninth.

The Scarlet and Cream distance men will meet Missouri at Columbia Saturday of next week between halves of the Missouri-Nebraska football game. Missouri under the coaching of Bob Simpson have a strong team this season with such men as Laman, Vallet, and Steele, among the leaders. Coach Schulte will be leading the Husker squad into old home territory, and against one of his own great track men when he meets Coach Simpson. Also, among the Husker harriers will be a former Missourian, Zimmerman, who graduated from high school near Columbia.

Several other runners made a good showing in the final trials Thursday among whom are; McCartney, Roberts, Cummings, Kelley, and Arnot. Any of these men are apt to come up enough to earn a place on the team before the season is over, according to Coach Schulte. Ross and Dexter were unable to finish the race but showed possibilities of making the team at an early date.

Huskers Most Feared By Missouri, States Columbia Newspaper

"Nebraska is most feared by Missouri," says a headline in the Columbia Missourian. The Tigers, according to the Columbia paper, are awaiting the Huskers with a well-balanced team which works together without the aid of any individual flashes. The article, in part, follows:

"Hugh Fullerton, nationally known sports writer, concedes the Missouri Valley championship to Nebraska, and gives Missouri second place. This arrangement is very satisfactory to Nebraska, but Missouri alone loses by this selection.

"Missouri will have a harder time this year to gain the championship than she had last year. Kansas and Kansas Aggies will be dangerous contenders.

In spite of all the obstacles thrown in the path of a Tiger championship this year they have a good chance to repeat their work of last season. The 1925 team is along the same lines as that of 1924."

MISSOURI EXPECTS CROWD

Tigers Will Put Up Special Bleachers For Use At Cornhusker Game.

The Columbia Missourian, official student newspaper of the University of Missouri, in commenting on preparations for the Nebraska-Missouri game at Columbia October 10, which will open both team's Missouri Valley conference schedule, says:

Advance information on the attendance at the Missouri-Nebraska football game here Oct. 10 indicates that there will be a crowd almost equalling the Kansas game.

The bleachers that were made last year for the west end will be put up for the Cornhusker game. This is the first time that extra bleachers have ever been needed except for the Homecoming game. The large delegation of rooters coming with the Nebraska team warrants the extra space.

Maybe you think the profs don't give an extra 10 for neatness. They don't write it out, but it's in their disposition just the same. So for required readings, lecture notes and theses, let us suggest the neat, clear work of the good Wahl Pen. Its big ink capacity won't fail you; its fluent easiness will improve your hand and boost your marks; its slim, trim shapeliness will match that golden key.
