

HUSKERS WORK FOR MISSOURI

Football Squad Has Scrimmage and Plays in Last Practice Before the Tiger Game.

LEAVES TODAY AT 1:45

Hard scrimmage and rehearsal of plays were the stressed points for the Husker grid squad in practice yesterday. It was the last regular workout before the Missouri game Saturday. The squad will hop the train for Columbia at 1:45.

The practice was long and drawn out, the intention being to give the Huskers all the work available before the Tiger fracas. Four elevens were running signals until Coach E. E. Bearg brought his first and second string lineups together in scrimmage.

The regulars showed weaknesses in both offense and defense, but nothing serious showed up. Ed Weir, Joe Weir, and Choppy Rhodes were out of the lineup part of the time and Hutchinson was playing center on the white shirted team. Squad Work Light Until Yesterday. The squad has been given comparatively light work this week, until yesterday when Coach Bearg livened things up a bit. The wet field was a handicap.

There is one thing which sideline watchers—as many as are permitted in closed practice—are noticing, and that is that there are a number of likely looking reserves waiting for a chance to get into the fight. The material, which seemed to be sadly lacking at the start of the season, is developing so that there are two or three good men for practically every position.

Some Men Promise Well.

In Dover and McIntyre Coach Bearg has a pair of ends which may be heard from before long, in addition to those who have already attracted attention—Sprague, Joe Weir, Lawson, and Shaner. Sprague and Joe Weir are probably what would be called the first string, but either Lawson or Shaner can fill the position.

Ray Randells at tackle should get into some games before the season is over, but he is forced to the second squad by the superlative working of Stiner and Ed Weir. Molzen is another tackle who will worry opponents when his hand heals up. He was not in suit yesterday.

Besides Raish and Scholz, who are regularly holding down guard positions, Coach Bearg has Frank Pospisil, who wants a chance, and Kriemel-meyer. Hutchinson's place at center backed up by Joe Wostoupal, reserve center and guard.

The Missouri game will be the last out-of-town game before the Drake game November 7. The Huskers meet the Washington Huskies from Seattle a week from Saturday.

A push ball game was held recently between the freshman and sophomore classes at Dartmouth university. The elder class defended the north end of the campus, while the yearlings had to keep their opponents from the south campus.

TIGERS START HARD PRACTICE

Missouri Gridsters, Back From Tulane Trip, Begin Strenuous Week of Work

COACH SEES THE DEFECTS

(From the Columbia Missourian).

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 7.—Thirty tired Missouri Tigers arrived home Monday and that afternoon started the most strenuous week of football practice that any Missouri team has known. Coach Gwinn Henry was pleased with part of the plays Saturday but knows that there are many defects that must be corrected before the Nebraska game Saturday.

Missouri out-played Tulane in every department of the game Saturday, statistics show, and the 6-6 tie was no evidence of the marked difference between the two teams. Missouri out-punted the Greenies, out-gained them from the standpoint of yardage and made nearly twice as many first downs as did the Greenies.

Coglizer, who caught Whiteman's pass and raced to the 1-yard line before he was tackled out of bounds, played the best game of his career for Missouri. His playing throughout the second half met with the approval of everyone who witnessed the game. Provided the husky end has as much success next week with Capt. Ed Weir, All-American Nebraska tackle as he did with Tulane linemen, he should make a strong bid for an All-Western berth.

Bert Clark, who was injected into the fray late in the second quarter, brought the stand to its feet with his dodging and sidestepping through the Greenies' line. The several punts that he returned proved to the coaches that he is ready for Varsity football. Smith, Lindenmeyer and Studebaker credited for their part of the line in great style. Capt. Sam Whiteman proved to be a very able leader and evidenced his knowledge of the game on several occasions when, by quick thinking, he saved the Tigers several yards.

Practice Centers On Forward Pass. Practice will be centered on the forward pass and on the line this week. The forwards did not charge together Saturday and Coach Jack Crangle plans to give them several hours each day until Saturday. The Nebraska line is a revelation Coach Crangle said this morning after returning from the Illinois-Nebraska game Saturday, and the Tiger wall will have a mighty job on its hands Saturday.

Just who will start the game Saturday is as indefinite as was the starting lineup last week. Casteel, who started Saturday played very creditably, gaining four yards and eight yards in the two time that he carried the ball. The third backfield man will probably be picked from Casteel, Clark and Stuber. Considering the brilliant play of Clark Saturday, it is quite likely that he will get a chance to play in the early quarters of the Cornhusker game.

The first practice of the basketball squad of the University of Kansas was held recently in Robinson gymnasium. After practice, Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics and basketball coach said, "Prospects for this season seem exceptionally bright, and indications point to another good basketball team."
