

HUSKERS HAVE HARD PRACTICE

Freshmen Using Notre Dame Plays Offer Varsity Real Competition

DEFENSE IS POWERFUL

The Nebraska football team, confronted with the responsibility of beating Notre Dame on Thanksgiving Day, yesterday took another very strenuous workout in the week and a half preparations for the last game of the season.

Scrimmage with the freshmen and signal practice made an intensive drill. The Varsity, put on the defense against the freshmen, who used Notre Dame plays, was baffled for a time, and the yearlings shoved through the line for large gains.

The Notre Dame shifts and passes, as well as line bucks, were used against the Varsity, and at the outset these plays tore holes in the Husker line. The first year men have the plays down to a nicety, and they can furnish a world of competition for the Husker team.

Coach E. E. Bearg was again using Hutchinson at guard in signal practice, and pulled the active center back to his regular position of roving center on the defense. Joe Westoupal was playing center on offense and guard on defense.

In the backfield which played against the freshmen last night were Jug Brown, Frank Dailley, Choppy Rhodes, and Arnold Oehlrich. Pressnell was running signals with the second string, as were Stephens and Hecht. Locke was kept out of the scrimmage on account of his injury.

The Huskers have one week left before the great climax of the season. In that time Coach Bearg is to develop an offense with drive and power enough to cross a white line which is usually placed at the end of the field for obvious reasons, and to also maintain his stone wall defense.

The defensive department of the squad will undoubtedly come around in time, with added practice against the freshmen. The offense is improving, too, as was indicated by the practice Tuesday, when the Varsity got hot against the freshmen.

In an attempt to evaluate from a purely personal student viewpoint the courses offered in the Harvard curriculum, the Harvard Crimson, humor magazine, has recently published a six-column "Confidential Guide of College Courses." The criticisms of the college catalogue courses were gathered by 40 Harvard students. Criticisms come mostly to those professors who offer a bewildering mass of facts which must be mastered by the students for no apparent reasons.

FRESHMEN USE ROCKNE PLAYS

Yearling Squad Fails to Check Varsity Backs in Recent Fast Scrimmages

The Notre Dame plays are the chief object of the freshmen this week. Working hard on them each evening the yearlings are rapidly mastering them in such a way to give the Varsity a good idea of what they are like. The Irish this year seem to have reverted back to the old style type of football. Although the backfield has several deceptive shifts the plays consist mostly of line smashes, end runs and forward passes. In former years Notre Dame has played an open style game and has succeeded, this year according to the dope Rockne has changed his style of play a little.

The freshmen, in scrimmage with the Varsity, have been on the defense most of the time. The usual sterling defense presented by the yearlings has failed to stop the Varsity, which all goes to indicate that the Varsity's offensive powers are increasing. All through the season the freshmen have been giving the Huskers stiff scrimmage, and not until lately have the regulars been able to pierce the freshmen for consistent gains.

The prospects for Varsity material for next year is very bright, with such men as Ashburne, Holm, Durisch, Hall, Richards, Lucas, Bushby, Zust, Beck, Andrews and Howell all turning out.

DIRECTORIES ARE IN BIG DEMAND

1413 Are Sold Yesterday in First Day of Sale—Supply May Not Be Sufficient

Fourteen hundred and thirteen Student Directories were sold yesterday. Sale will continue today. It is expected that all available copies will be taken before the booth closes. Not more than a thousand copies will be available today. No more can be supplied by the printer.

Directories may be had at tables in Social Science, Temple, Teachers' College and Library buildings on the main campus, and at the booth at Twelfth and R streets. Agricultural College students may obtain them at Agricultural Hall.

"New students who have little idea of the value of the directory in keeping in touch with the old friends and classmates will find it indispensable" according to Marion Woodard, '27, Shenandoah, Ia., business manager.

A good student can read a page of an average book in two minutes and absorb what he has read, according to Professor Charles H. Judd of the University of Chicago.

Junior League Holds Meeting

The first meeting this year of the Junior League of Women Voters was held Wednesday evening at Ellen Smith Hall. Groups of women, who had been asked to attend the meeting as representatives of each sorority house and each rooming house for University women, were present.

Miss Annis Robbins and Miss Adelheit Dettman were the speakers on the program. Miss Evelyn Schellack, president of the organization, presided at the meeting.

"PIPE" COURSES

Human nature is inevitable! A man cannot be condemned for attempting to get the most in return for his output.

But there is a sharp distinction between the one who unconsciously is doing this and the one who does it studiously, the drone.

Due to the generous system of assigning courses in the university a student is allowed a number of elective courses which may be applied toward his degree.

And it is in the selection of his course that one's true interest in himself and education is revealed.

It is regrettable that there are the "pipe" courses in any school, but there are and so long as there is a school here there will be courses which are termed comparatively easy.

And in these courses are found the drones, the dead weight of the student body.

The individuality of a university is affected by them. There are no complicated suggestions for improvement, because there is only one—complete elimination of this element, the drones. —The Oklahoma Daily.

IOWA HAS NEW ENGINEERING COURSE

The Iowa State University is considering a new four-year course to come under the general head of engineering. The new course, according to Dean Marston, is purely an Iowa State idea. It will contain the fundamentals of engineering work such as chemistry, mathematics, physics, mechanics, English, drafting surveying and some shop work. In addition to this it will include a large amount of economics, a course in citizenship and also one in industrial history. In the junior year, students may major in engineering economics, technical journalism or in general engineering. At the end of the fourth year a bachelor of science degree will be awarded.

FOURTH HOCKEY GAME ENDS EVEN

Freshmen and Senior Women Battle To 1-1 Draw—Last Contest to Be Played Friday

The fourth game of the hockey tournament resulted in a 1 to 1 tie game between the Sophomores and Seniors. The end of the first half the seniors lead 1 to 0, the sophomores making their score the last two minutes of play. The seniors played a much improved game, and the opposition was more balanced for this game.

The seniors will play their last game in the tournament with the freshmen Thursday. The freshmen have lost both their games, but have played well, and the seniors have tied with the junior and sophomore teams. The last game will be played Friday, between the sophomores and the juniors. Both of these teams have won and tied a game so far in the tournament.
