ALL NATIONS AND TONGUES
(McGill Daily)

We would hope that the day when men and women could honestly take as their watchwords such phrases as "Nordic superiority" and the "Gentle supremacy" was past; and yet, ever and anon, we see in our midst evidences such as the propaganda which was recently spread abroad, that cannot serve to reassure us. Rather do they enforce the need of a wider education of the supposedly educated, and of the encouragement of cooperation and friendship among the members of different races and religions and tongues while they are at college.

We cannot but look with favour at the coming joint meeting of the Mock Parliament with members of our sister University of Montreal, and the movement to form a joint group to study quite frankly the causes of friction between Jew and Gentile both in the university and without. If these can do nothing more, they will at least bring representatives of different races together in a friendly way; and it is a well-known fact that hate of another race is much easier to overcome when one becomes personally acquainted with members of it. Another event of interest in this connection is the visit today to McGill of a Japanese Christian gentleman who has come from his own country as a missionary. Not many years ago, such an expression of internationalism was unheard of.

One thing we must remember. We are living in the days of post-war idealism; old prejudices have been swept away, and a new vision of a wider friendship is holding sway. But it must be kept in mind that the times following a period of intense idealism are hard times indeed; feelings that seemed buried spring into consciousness again, and hate reappears where love seemed to be supreme. In those days there will be a chance for the expression of real convictions; and we will then show whether we have truly seen the light that the Scottish poet saw in writing of the time when

"Man to man the world o'er Shall brithers be for a'that."

Ohio State Students Travel Through Thirty Seven States on Ten Dollars

Ten dollars stretched over 10,000 miles.

This strange feat was accomplished last July by three Ohio State University students. They are Baker Lybe, CJ-3; Samuel A. Crabtree, CJ-2, and William E. Long, CJ-3.

Lybe Long, and Crabtree "picked up" a car for $25 last summer and began "seeing America first."

Determined to do their seeing at the lowest cost possible, they left home with little financial backing. Their tour led through 37 states and cost them but $10.

When food or lodging required money they worked. On their arrival in San Francisco they were penniless, but tickets for passage aboard the liner Colombia were forwarded by their parents.

Three Hikes Remain On Course Schedule

Only the remainder of this week and the first of next remain to finish up the requirements in the women's hiking course, it was announced yesterday. The minimum requirement in the course is forty-five miles, and gives a credit of twenty-five W. A. D. points. Five points are added for each additional ten miles to the minimum requirement.

Three more hikes have been scheduled for this semester. They are:

Saturday at 9 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Students wishing to go on these hikes are asked to sign on the W. A. A. bulletin board in the Armory.

The number of graduates from Wisconsin high schools increased from 6,000 to almost 13,000 from 1913 to 1924. The enrollment at the state university increased from 4,224 to 8,142 during the same period.

is not the only way in which the truth may be attained. But it furnishes the only means by which human nature can be assured of its truth. There are many cults masquerading as science. We have astrology, spiritualism, and many others which might be likened to the comment on the guinea pig. It's not a pig and it doesn't come from Guinea.

"We are going to make the trip again when we have the chance," declared the "tourists."

"Our trip was prompted by a desire to see the wonders of which we have been studying at school."

Alumni of Ohio State University now living in San Francisco were at the pier to wish their college friends "bon voyage."

The three students are coming home by the way of the Panama Canal and are expected to arrive in a month.

Friends now in school say that the three young men are expected to return to school next quarter.

"How can science aid progress? First, no field should be withdrawn from scientific scrutiny. Care must be taken to guard against destructive agitators who are on the fringe of every reform movement. Science must be careful not to advocate reforms too soon else their advocates will be considered cranks."

"In the second place, science must be devoid of sentiment. It must look toward the betterment of all civilization even though working a hardship on a few. And third, science is and must be long-headed, forward looking. If science was followed in the state legislature, the bills introduced would look beyond the present."
