

HUSKER MATMEN MEET HAWKEYES

Different Rules May Cause Changes; Each Team Has Won Six Meets

FARMER BURNS TO SPEAK

Dr. R. G. Clapp's mat team will tackle the University of Iowa grapplers in the Armory tonight at 7:30. This is the second meet for the Cornhusker wrestlers.

Iowa and Nebraska are tied in the number of meets won, with six each. According to Dr. Clapp, the Iowa team is always strong. Spectators are assured of a good entertainment, as the Iowans are coached to wrestle and not to stall.

Farmer Burns, well-known wrestler, will be present to give a talk and an exhibition bout. The meet will be held under the rules of the Western Intercollegiate Gymnastics, Wrestling and Fencing Association. The rules of the National Association were used in the first meet of the season, but it is stated in the contract with Iowa that the Western rules should be used. This will make considerable difference in the matches. The time of the matches will be twelve minutes instead of ten, and decisions will be made on a two minute time advantage behind. The referee will not be allowed to render decisions.

When contestants go outside the ring, they will be simply brought back to the referee's hold in the center of the ring under the Western rules, rather than giving them the same hold as under the National rules. The scoring under the Western rules will also be changed, more emphasis being put on falls over decisions than in the National rules.

Some of the Iowa squad, Michael, Grattan and Voltmer, have had considerable experience. The match between Michael and Kellogg in the 135 pound class will be a great battle. Two years ago Kellogg represented Nebraska in wrestling, and won the Valley championship in his class. He also defeated Hines of Northwestern, who was the Olympic champion. Kellogg was not eligible last year.

Grattan of Iowa is a three year man on the mat team. He will meet Branigan in the 158 pound class. Branigan has not had his experience, but should put up a good fight. Voltmer, Hawkeye 175 pound man, and Captain Highley, Husker representative in that class will put on an interesting bout. Both have had much experience on the mat and should be on even terms.

The official of the matches will be O. B. Anderson, of the Lincoln Y. M. C. A.

"Zim" and "Zim"

A great deal is always said when an athlete fails to make the scholastic grade in school. Much space is devoted to a man of athletic standing if he breaks his trust with the rest of the world by "getting in bad", as the popular phrase is, and this is the thing that happened to "Pete" Jackson of the Missouri football squad.

In spite of the fact that a man before the world in one way or another generally gets prominent mention following a wild party, there isn't a whole lot to be said in his favor, and it is well that the press should "play up" the matter.

While the wrestlers are settling these questions, the track men, nine of them, to be specific, will be fighting it out on the old line at Kansas City. There are a bunch of lettermen in track at home too, however, who will be running that K. C. A. C. meet at heart though fate has ruled against them.

If the athlete does not gain these principles in his contact with the opponent on the court, the gridiron, the track or where not; he should be replaced by the man who can recognize them. And if Jackson failed to gain from the gridiron in his past two seasons of competition, to the extent that he could not recognize right and wrong, there should be no other decree than to "give him the air." Missouri will no doubt be better off.

CRIPPLED TEAM TO KANSAS CITY

Schulte and Squad, Minus Star Performers, Leave for Indoor Track Meet

ONLY NINE MAKE TRIP

Nine track men and Coach Schulte pulled away from the Missouri Pacific station at 10:30 last night for Kansas City to compete in the annual Kansas City Athletic Club indoor meet. Locke, Weir, Hein and Rhodes did not make the trip. Locke and Weir are still bothered with injuries and sickness and Hein is out on account of scholastic reasons.

It is probable that Pearly Wyatt, Sophomore, will take Locke's place in the short dashes and will also compete in the low and high hurdles in place of Weir. Davenport, another sophomore sprint man, is also entered in the short dashes and in the 440. Wirsig will compete in the pole vault and should show up well for he has been consistently getting up over 12 feet, which is good for early season work.

Lewis and Johnson will run in the 600-yard Shannon-Douglas cup race and Roberts will run in the 1,000-yard handicap race. The mile relay team will be composed of Wyatt, Davenport, Johnson, and Lewis.

The team members and their probable events are:

- Krimmelmeyer—Shot put.
- Lewis and Johnson — Shannon-Douglas cup race, 600-yards.
- Searle—mile.
- Ross—880-yards.
- Roberts—1,000-yard handicap.
- Wyatt—50-yard low and high hurdles; 50-yard dash.
- Davenport—50-yard dash and 440.
- Wirsig—Pole vault.
- Wyatt, Davenport, Johnson and Lewis will run the one-mile relay.

Use of smaller engines in automobiles which, by the use of a supercharger can be made to give enough power to take them up steep hills, may soon be a possibility.

Iowa is sending a goodly outfit of mat artists to Lincoln Friday to meet the Husker wrestlers. Each team has won a victory, and the dope bucket may spill either way; for or against the home boys. Wisconsin took defeat from Iowa. The Kansas Aggies fell before the Cornhuskers. What is the answer?

Kellogg is up against the best wrestler in all the western intercollegiate world if previous record-count at all. Michael, 135-pound man for the Hawkeye team has not been defeated up to date, and that means something. Now Kellogg is no second rater himself, so again the question must come: "What is the answer?"

An athlete has a better opportunity perhaps than the average layman to know that clean living and good sportsmanship are after all, fundamental and necessary. There is a lesson to be learned by playing the game. In fact, that is one great reason for the survival of athletic contests. This lesson is that of fair play, not only on the field of action but also in the routine of life.

In the team which Schulte has taken is some new blood. Several sophomores will be competing for their school for the first time. Wyatt and Davenport are the sprinters who will contest with the best the Valley can offer. Johnson and Roberts are getting into their first race in the middle distances, while Searle is taking the assignment of the mile.

A COLLEGE EDUCATION (McGill Daily)

There have been many who have, in the past, stated very definitely their views on the advantages or disadvantages of a college education. So it is not with the intention of stating something new that we attempt to sum up our views on it; rather it is in the earnest hope that those who are now at college may think their way to their own conclusions, after having seen a viewpoint from which to start.

It would seem that the time spent at college should be a time, essentially, for the mind to become broadened by a vision of the great truths of art and science. This vision is, of course, gained slowly and often through processes that seem principally mechanical; but only as it becomes a real part of the person who receives it does it confer a lasting benefit on him, and through him, on others. And so the dull mechanical drudgery might be accepted with a little better grace, since it is only after digging through a lot of dirt that one finds the gold.

The opportunity which a college education offers to all who are interested in physical as well as mental development is not to be lightly passed over. Seldom, if ever, in the history of the world, was there a time when less physical exertion was demanded of the average individual than at the present. Rapid and cheap transportation, wholesale labor-saving devices, and great changes in the attitude towards organized athletics, have resulted in the possibility of going from year to year without utilizing more than a ridiculous fraction of available muscular energy. But for the college student this is not — or should not be — so; all the various forms of athletics are to be found, and extra-curricular time may well be employed on a playing field or a gymnasium floor. A real chance exists for the development of a sane attitude towards physical culture in the very broadest sense that will stand one in good stead throughout life.

What many graduates look back on as the greatest opportunity of a college education is that of meeting all kinds of men and women, and finding among them those who will form one's circle of friends. The years spent at college are those in which the mind is well able to make contacts with like minds readily, and in which therefore friendships are easily cemented. The joys of true friendship cannot be underestimated, but neither can they well be described; suffice it to say that the many clubs and societies of various kinds provide the medium through which many very real friendships are discovered.

What we have said has been put in the most general terms: if the thoughts expressed serve to classify the ideas of any who came to college with little idea of what was involved, or to mystify any who thought that a college education meant something entirely different, they will have served their purpose.

ON CHOOSING ONE'S COURSES (Minnesota Daily)

Comes the time in the life of the undergraduate when he looks ahead, past the last of the final examinations, to the period in which he selects his curriculum for the next semester. It is an important task, and one that must be treated with care.

Of course there are the requisites, courses prescribed by the colleges after long consultations and conferences of the deans and the department heads and the administration and the men who make up the faculty. These required subjects, in general, are carefully selected and should be met cheerfully by him who is to take them; sometimes a class may be distasteful, but many times that which is distasteful is best for the system. Too, there is the possibility that the requisite may not be well selected; such errors should be corrected before another registration period comes into being.

Now to the electives. Here lies a real opportunity. Electives give variety to a curriculum. They allow the student to show his personal tastes: whether he seeks snap classes, whether he prefers certain subjects because of certain professors, whether he knows just what he needs, whether he does not know what he needs, whether he knows anything at all. There is nothing so enjoyable as a well-rounded curriculum, a course which will include a balance in subject-matter.

Students in Business Administration, if they are able to get the permission, will do themselves little harm—in fact a lot of good—by registering for a course or two in Liberal Arts. So with students in
