Christian Endeavor Worker Sees No Need For Science-Religion Conflict

"There would be less perplexity about 'Religion and the Modern Student' if some religious workers and a few of the secular teachers of these modern students would sign a Locarno peace agreement. They have no cause of war. Both seek the truth and neither has all of it, hence they are in the same boat and should cease rocking it."

So believes Dr. Ira Landrith of Chicago, Extension Secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, who recently addressed bay city audiences. "Because a certain type of Christian propagandist agrees with an equally mistaken group of 'undevout scientists' that Christianity must stand or fall upon the accuracy of the way these devout dogmatists have interpreted Biblical history and other alleged facts of inspiration, the unholy conflict is on between science and religion. And the modern student, if earnest, is confused; if radical, he is in danger of becoming an avowed enemy of religion, the greatest constructive moral and spiritual force in the world."

Christianity is a life, not a chronology, believes the speaker. His plan of salvation involves only faith in

Scholarships In Europe Available

The requirements for eligibility for these scholarship are much similar to the other group, namely:

1. A Bachelor's Degree.
2. Ability to do independent work.
3. A health certificate.
4. A good moral character.
5. American citizenship.
6. Sufficient knowledge of Hungarian to enable the student to understand lectures. Graduates of the medical schools who propose to do graduate work, and pupils of music may be admitted without a knowledge of Hungarian if they have an adequate knowledge of German.

"American Fellows" the announcement read, "are required to register in Budapest before September 5, 1926, and to reside in Budapest during the entire academic year; i. e. until the end of June, 1927."

"Scholarship allowances will be given only for the time actually spent in Budapest. The scholarships cover tuition, lodging in the Nicholas Horthy College, and lunch and dinner at one of the students' messes. A free visa will also be given."

"Application blanks for these scholarships must also be in the hands of the Committee, properly filled out together with all credentials before March 15, 1926."

After completion of his stay in any one of the colleges where these ten scholarships are offered the fellow is required to submit to the Ministry of Education, through the Institute of International Education, a detailed report of his course of study and its results.

Further information as to these scholarships may be secured from the Institute of International Education, 522 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

both have their good points. Too often a graduate of a liberal arts school is unable to start out with a knowledge of any kind of a job, with the possible exception of teaching, while the specialized student often finds that he has neglected his general education to later discomfort.

Surely there must be a happy medium between the two, and an important step has been taken, we believe, in the recent action of Professor Strong of the Economics department, in appointing a student committee to make an extended research as to what can be done toward giving the students of that department less of theory and more that is actually applicable to business, and business methods.

Plan Used at Dartmouth

The same plan was recently followed out at Dartmouth college, the largest liberal arts school in the country, and it attracted nationwide notice. The department of Economics in other colleges were studied, and advice from successful business men was solicited, and the changes suggested will be tried out.

It seems to us that important changes can be made along that line which will tend to put the liberal arts school on a competitive basis with the technical school, without sacrificing any of the advantages that a liberal arts education offers.

Mr. Strong is to be congratulated on his foresight in helping keep Grinnell abreast of Progress; his experiment will be watched with interest by both students and business men.

ity can be canvassed in one evening by this method. The men will report on their success later in the evening, and thus the whole affair will be "cleaned up in a hurry."

Short drives of this sort have met with unusual success at neighboring institutions. At the University of Kansas more than three thousand dollars was raised in one evening.

No pledges will be taken in the campaign Thursday evening "cash only," being the motto.

The budget of the 'Y' calls for $2,000 from the students and that was the goal set in the drive last

PROGRESS IN EDUCATION
(Grinnell Scarlet and Black)

In these days when a growing percentage of young people are attending higher institutions of learning, there are frequent and lengthy arguments concerning the advantages of a technical or specialized school, as against that of a liberal arts college; that more and more business- and professional are demanding men with a liberal arts education, and in support of their arguments, point to the increase in the amount of preparatory work demanded by professional schools.

On the other hand, the specialized schools advise high school students to quit studying history and foreign languages and start right out to fit himself for his life work.

Neither infallible
Taking everything into consideration, neither school has the infallible remedy for success in life, yet
